ALDERMEN ASK BOND ISSUE TO CANCEL '30 TAX

Urge $250,000,000 Issue as Relief.

Special Tax Session

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Legislative leaders agreed tonight that a special session to deal with revenue and taxation problems was virtually certain. It was expected to be called between July 15 and Aug. 1.

(Further details on page 6.)

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

(Picture on back page.)

The city council committees on legislation and efficiency recommended legislation yesterday afternoon to increase the city's bonding power sufficiently to fund Chicago's tax bill for 1930."

ALD. J. R. QUINN.

The city's tax bill for 1929, payable last July, was $191,929,971. Its bill for 1929, payable on May 15, is $329,597,869 and its 1930 bill will be 9 per cent higher. So the recommendation involves an estimated bond issue of $250,150,000 to take the place of the 1930 tax bill.

As another measure of financial relief, the two committees voted to call on the board of assessors to enforce the personal property tax law. The aldermen attempted to make a conference engagement with the board yesterday afternoon, but none of the five assessors was in his office. Another effort will be made today to get a date for Monday.

Relief Plans Meet Check.

The council committees three times declined to suggest any aid for the property owners on their 1929 and 1930 taxes. About $50,000,000 of the 1929 taxes and $121,000,000 of the 1930 taxes remain unpaid.

Ald. James B. Waller [43d] urged some suggestions for the relief of the taxpayers of these two years, and was turned down twice. Later John A. Reichert, chief of the finance committee staff, urged one of Waller's proposals, but the committees adjourned without considering it again.

Waller and Richert urged issuance of bonds to redeem outstanding tax warrants, and Waller proposed to reduce the penalty to one-half of one per cent a month for delinquent taxes and also to extend the date for the 1930 tax sale.

In the two and a half hours of discussion, in which perhaps half of the 31 members of the two committees took part, no one suggested a cut in governmental expenses as a means of aiding the taxpayers.

Debate Over Personalty Tax.

Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] in the early stages of the meeting demanded that the legislature provide for assessing personal property on the same basis as real estate.

"Isn't there sufficient law to tax personal property now?" asked Ald. John A. Massen [48th].

"There's sufficient for 99 counties of the state," replied Corporation Counsel Busch.

"If you go down to the legislature asking for personal property tax laws," interposed Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], "they will tell you to go back home and have the boards of assessors and review enforce the present law."

"Are these two committees when they go to Springfield going to ask the legislature to exempt $2,500 worth of personal property for each owner as the council recommended yesterday," asked Ald. John F. Healy [6th].

Council Plan Under Fire.

"We'll not ask the legislature to violate the constitution," answered Ald. Massen.

"That council recommendation is utterly impracticable and unconstitutional," said First Assistant Corporation Counsel Hornstein.

As an ultimate measure of tax relief, the committees adopted a resolution of Ald. Waller to ask the legislature to call a constitutional convention. An estimate of the earliest relief from that method was 1934.

The plan for immediate aid was sponsored by Ald. James R. Quinn [10th]. His resolution, substituted for the Waller plan, follows closely the program of the Chicago Real Estate Board. The 90-odd bills of that board

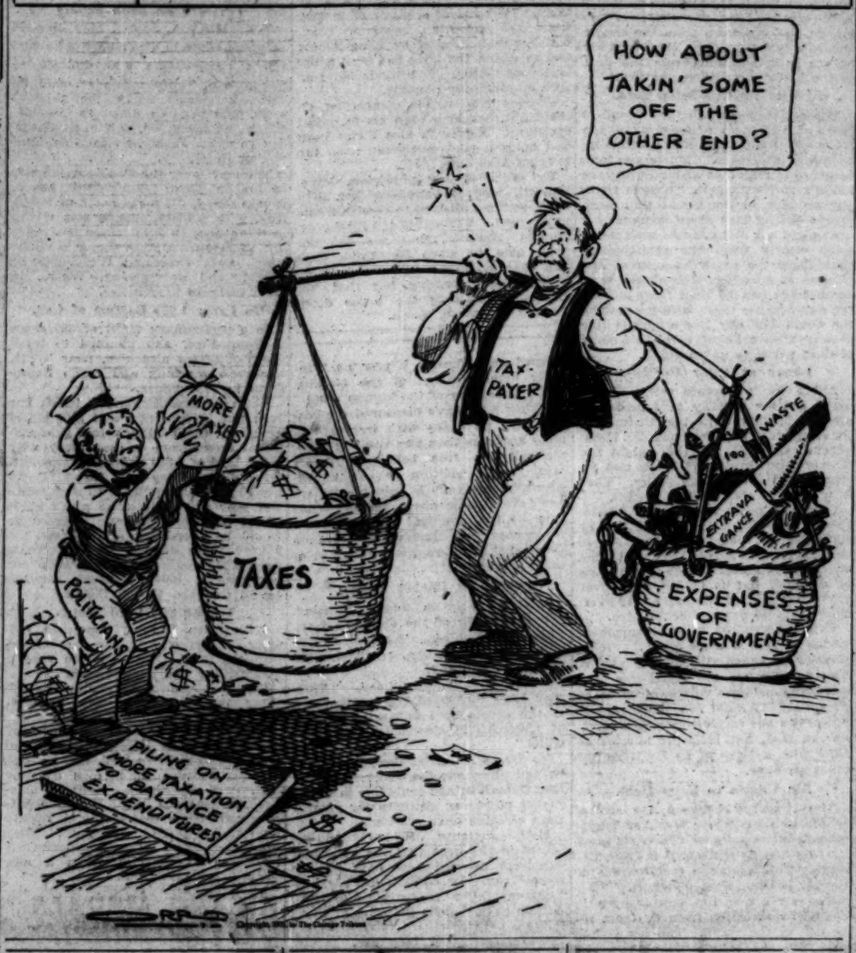
THERE ARE TWO WAYS OF BALANCING A LOAD



Bandit Slain, Pal Caught by Hero Victim

A fast working gasoline station owner late last night disarmed one bandit, killed him with his own revolver, and captured his fleeing companion when they tried to hold him up in his place of business at 13016 Baltimore avenue. The foiled robbery resulted later in the arrest of two other men and the breakup of an alleged gun gang.

The hero of the encounter is Rudolph Zbinden, 50 years old, the oil station owner. His bandit victim was Ralph Cruikshank, 21 years old, of 10620 Avenue F. Cruikshank was to have been married today. The captured robber is Harry Hitson, also 21, of 7442 South Shore drive.

Bandit Draws a Gun.

Zbinden and his son, Rudolph Jr., 14 years old, were in the oil station when Cruikshank and Hitson drove up in a rented car. Cruikshank alighted and followed Zbinden into the office for some oil. Inside the office the bandit drew a revolver.

This was no new experience for Zbinden. In 1906 he had disarmed a robber in Pittsburgh and routed him. So when Cruikshank leveled his revolver, Zbinden knocked it to the floor, then picked it up, and fired once, the bullet entering near the bandit's heart.

Despite the wound Cruikshank staggered to his car, at the same time urging Hitson, who was standing nearby, to get away on foot. Hitson stumbled and was caught by Zbinden and several passersby. Cruikshank drove to 132d street and Baltimore avenue, where he died.

Sweetheart Questioned.

Meanwhile Policemen Mat Obarski and Arthur Morrin took Hitson to the East Side station. He was questioned by Lieut. John Treacy. On his story detectives went to 8440 Burley avenue, where they found Cruikshank's sweetheart, Agnes Gatowski, 18 years old, whom he was to have married today, and Mildred Nykel, 19, of 8947 Mackinaw avenue. Later police seized Charles A. Scott of 9736 Avenue L and Stanley Witkoski of 9709 Ewing avenue, both 20 years old, alleged bandit pals of the men.

LIQUOR WORTH $40,000 SEIZED ON WAY TO CHICAGO

Hoopeston, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—A truck supposedly loaded with tomatoes turned out tonight to be loaded with liquor, police said, and Harry Lewis, its Negro driver, and a white man were held for explanation.

Lewis' companion, whom police believed was his guard, refused to talk, but the Negro said he was driving the truck with its $40,000 cargo of whisky to "somewhere near Chicago."

Yesterday was Chicago's warmest day thus far in 1931. The maximum of 87 at 3 p. m. was only one degree lower than the record for May 28, established in 1895.

Today, according to the forecast, will be cloudy and cooler, with showers probable in the morning. Mostly fair skies and moderate temperatures are promised for the Memorial day holiday tomorrow.

John Macklin, 11 year old, son of Sergt. John C. Macklin of the regular army, instructor of the R. O. T. C. at Joliet High school, was drowned yesterday when he fell from a raft into the deep waters of an abandoned quarry at the east edge of Joliet. In Chicago, William Banks, colored, 49 years old, collapsed from the heat at Wisconsin and Clark streets and was taken to a hospital.

Large crowds flocked to the beaches and parks during the day. The Lincoln park beaches will not be formally opened, however, until July, it was indicated by Oscar W. Knop, superintendent of athletics.

Day at Circus or in School? Pupils Wonder

Newburyport, Mass., May 28.—(AP)—There's a circus coming to town tomorrow and Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis has ordered the police to see that no youngster goes to school while the clowns and elephants are here.

The superintendent of schools, however, has ordered an all day session and threatens prosecution of any one who interferes.

While the bewildered children wondered what they were to do, and their parents were equally perplexed, Mayor Gillis and Supt. Starr M. King were firm tonight, one determined that the children would go to the circus, the other insisting they'd go to school.

Orders Police to Bar Pupils.

Mayor Gillis, after an unsuccessful effort to persuade Superintendent King to order the schools closed for at least the afternoon session tomorrow, inserted a notice in a local newspaper today announcing there would be no school on Friday. This notice he followed with orders to the chief of police to have men stationed at every school building with instructions to admit no one but the janitors.

Superintendent King explained his refusal to close the schools by pointing out that the state requirements called for 180 school sessions, while with an interrupted schedule from now until the end of the year there could be only 175.

Points to Lost Time.

During the present term, he said, many days were lost while repair work was done on the buildings as part of an unemployment relief program.

Gillis said it was the custom here to close the schools on circus day, that the children had looked forward to seeing the circus, and that he was going to see to it they were not disappointed.

POLICE STATION GASOLINE BLAST JOLTS COPPERS

A gasoline explosion in the basement of the Rogers Park police station early this morning rocked the neighborhood and sent several policemen sprawling from their seats. Two men in basement cells were burned about the hands and face. At first it was believed a bomb had been exploded in the place. The station is at 7075 North Clark street.

The blast was caused by gasoline dripping from a 400 gallon tank in a room off the garage used to supply patrol wagons and squad cars. The fire department quickly extinguished the flames.

Desk Sergt. Martin Mullen was hurled across the room by the force of the detonation, and Lieut. William Lang and Frank Morrell, chauffeur for Captain of Detectives John Norton, were thrown from their chairs. The injured men in the cell room were Edward Stevens and his brother, Charles, of Waukegan, who had sought lodging for the night.

ITALY EXECUTES AMERICAN; SHOT BY FIRING SQUAD

Convicted of Plot to Kill Mussolini.

BULLETIN.

ROME, May 29.—(Friday.)—(AP)—Michele Schirru, naturalized American citizen, was executed at 4:27 a. m. today after his conviction last evening on a charge of plotting against the life of Premier Mussolini.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 28.—At dawn tomorrow, Michele Schirru, Italian born naturalized American citizen, will be bound to a chair and shot in the back by a firing squad as the penalty for plotting to kill Premier Mussolini by bombing and other activities against Fascism.

This form of punishment was prescribed by seven military judges of the special tribunal for the defense of the state, after an all day trial, during which Schirru testified that he at one time intended to kill il duce in order to bring about the fall of Fascism.

Fifty minutes after they had begun deliberations the judges returned a verdict finding Schirru guilty of seven charges, including plotting against Mussolini, shooting three policemen, one of whom died; possession of bombs, being an anarchist and carrying arms.

Takes Sentence Calmly.

Schirru took the announcement of the sentence in complete silence. He was pale, but showed no other emotional strain. The crowded courtroom, however, which had at various times during the day been disorderly, broke into wild cheers and sang the Fascist anthem, "Giovinezza." Schirru walked calmly from the courtroom, surrounded by guards.

Schirru, aged 32, went to New York shortly after the war. His father, who now lives near Sassari, helped him to establish a wholesale banana business, which he later left to engage in anti-Fascist agitation in America. He married and had one child, a daughter, named Carmela, who is still in the United States.

After being widely sought for his anarchistic activities in Europe and America, Schirru was caught loitering late on the night of Feb. 3 with another anarchist in the Piazza Colonna, a street over which Premier Mussolini frequently travels. His whereabouts had become known through his association with a Hungarian adventuress, Anna Wokonski.

Tries to End Life.

When police attempted to arrest the pair, one fled through the bushes at the side of the road, but Schirru whipped out a revolver and opened fire. One policeman fell dead. He then turned the gun on himself, inflicting serious wounds.

Search of his room revealed bombs and letters associating him with numerous plots against the premier and the state. Evidence of organized plotting was also found.

Taking the stand this morning, Schirru was asked to reenact the scene of the shooting. Without a gun he went through the motions so vividly and realistically that the police restrained him to keep order in the court. Schirru admitted most of the charges, but declared that his idea of killing Mussolini had been abandoned and that he was about to leave the country with his American passport when he was arrested. He told of his association with numerous European anarchist groups.

WOMAN, HEROINE OF "MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB," 90

LONDON, May 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Hughes, who is said to be the Mary of the nursery rhyme "Mary had a little lamb," celebrated her 90th birthday today at her farm home at Llangollen, North Wales. She received congratulations from children in all parts of the world.

Mary, who is blind and suffering from chronic rheumatism, delights to relate how years ago her little lamb was turned out of school.

Congressman Mooney of Ohio Dies of Pneumonia

Cleveland, O., May 29.—(AP)—Congressman Charles A. Mooney, Democratic representative of the 20th Ohio [Cleveland] district, died at his home today of lobar pneumonia. He was 52 years old. He was first elected to congress in 1918, but was defeated in the Harding landslide of 1920. In 1922 he was elected again and has been in congress ever since. He was particularly active as a member of the rivers and harbors committee.

Firemen 'Fish' Infant from 45 Foot Well

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—[Special.]—Little Lauretta Jane Fonders, 23 months old, fell into an abandoned well 45 feet deep in the yard behind her home at 8633 West Lisbon avenue this evening.

LAURETTA FONDERS.

Her mother, Mrs. William Fonders, was at a window calling the child to her supper when she saw Lauretta slip feet first into an aperture little more than a foot wide and disappear into the earth.

Mrs. Fonders screamed. Then she explained excitedly to her husband and his brother, Edward. The father rushed to the well. The uncle ran to the nearby Fondale grocery and telephoned to the police and the fire departments.

1,500 Witness Rescue.

In a few minutes there were present in the Fonders back yard members of the following detachments: Rescue squad No. 1 of the fire department, engine company No. 34, truck company No. 13, all commanded by Battalion Chief Edward Schuffenhauer; two radio equipped police squad cars and a dozen motorcycle policemen.

From the grocery went forth messages to the neighbors. The activity at the scene and the reports spread through the neighborhood for blocks. Half an hour after the firemen and policemen arrived a crowd of more than 1,500 was milling about the Fonders home.

Shaft Too Narrow for Adult.

Efforts were organized at once to extricate the child. It was found that the sides of the well contracted as they neared the bottom and that little Lauretta was wedged between the walls, with her feet in a few inches of slimy mud. The space all the way down was too narrow to permit the passage of an adult's body.

The word went forth that the only way to rescue Lauretta was to sink a shaft at the side of the well and to cut through when the 45 foot mark had been reached. From the hundreds in the crowd messengers dashed out and returned with shovels and picks.

Digging Is Too Slow.

He and his brother and policemen and firemen fell to with a will. But nearly an hour's work took the shaft down only about eight feet. Realization came that the work would have to be faster. Peter Haag, a neighbor, suggested that his 9 year old son be let down head first to pick up the little girl. That plan was rejected. Fire Chief Steinkellner pointed out that the boy might drop the little girl, even if he could get all the way down into the well.

There were hurried conferences. A suggestion was made that an attempt be made to grapple the little girl's dress with a pike pole, a long sharp instrument used to rip shingles from roofs. That suggestion was discarded also. The child might be seriously hurt by the device.

Wire Offers Solution.

Then appeared Alvin Horn, superintendent of repairs for the Milwaukee public schools, a quiet and methodical workman. He sent to his home for yards and yards of heavy electric wire. This wire he bent into a loop, one that would slip over little Lauretta's shoulders.

Hopefully, with the assistance of the firemen, he lowered the noose into the deep well. There was a moment of suspense as he fished about and caught the motionless infant with his improvised device. Then, slowly, Horn began pulling up on the wire. In less than a minute more, amid the cheers of the huge crowd, the tear streaked, dirty face of little Lauretta appeared. She was still conscious.

The police squads forced a lane through the throng. The motorcycle detail took stations in front of an ambulance that was waiting. In the arms of her father Lauretta was carried out. The ambulance swept away. The motorcycle detail opened its sirens. Traffic was heavy, but the ambulance made a four and a half mile run to a hospital in eight minutes. Physicians said the few bruises the child received would soon be well.

Hawks Starts to Girdle France in 2 Days' Flight

LE BOURGET, France, May 29.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, American speed flier, soared away this morning with the intention of girdling France by air in two days. He planned to spend the night in Marseilles, traveling by way of Rouen, Lemans, Nantes, Bordeaux, and Toulouse. Tomorrow he will return to Paris via Lyon, Dijon, and Nancy, hoping to land here at 3 o'clock.

TWO ALMOST DIE OF THIRST IN BALLOON'S CAGE

Land in Alps; Set Altitude Record.

Air Record Broken

Walter Lees and Frederick Brossy broke the world's non-refueling endurance flying record at Jacksonville Beach, Fla., yesterday, staying up 84 hours, 33 minutes, over 9 hours longer than any previous mark.

Another American flyer, Thomas Ash Jr., took off from Tachikawa, Japan, for Samushiro beach, 380 miles away, from where he expects to start a 4,000 mile nonstop flight across the Pacific to Tacoma, Wash.

OBER GURGI, Austrian Tyrol, May 28.—"Providence was with us on our ten mile flight above the earth and we achieved everything we wanted." Prof. Auguste Piccard, Swiss scientist, and his companion, Charles Kipfer, said tonight in describing their balloon flight into the stratosphere. Their adventure sounds like a Jules Verne story come true.

As they spoke, flashes of lightning darted through the window of the inn in which they are resting, 9,000 feet below their balloon, which is attached to a glacier upon which they had landed at 10:08 o'clock last night, eighteen hours and thirteen minutes after they had taken off at Augsburg, Bavaria.

Met by Rescue Party.

Almost given up for dead, the two scientists had emerged from their strange contraption, consisting of a huge gas bag and a hermetically sealed metal ball, used as a gondola, at dawn and had started down the mountainside. They were met half way by a rescue party, which assisted the tired adventurers into this tiny village.

"We didn't know in what country we were," Prof. Piccard laughingly as he related his story. He and Kipfer, pale with fatigue, reclined on their beds as they talked. They had just awakened from a seven and a half hour sleep.

He professed great surprise when told that he and his companion were believed dead from their long trip into the sky and that their balloon was pilotless.

He admitted there were times when he believed they were near destruction.

Tells of His Fears.

"Look at the storm raging tonight," Prof. Piccard said. "Providence helped us land last night before the storm became dangerous. More than once we thought we would smash into the huge mountain sides. For a time we believed we did not have enough ballast to make the balloon behave properly. But it had taken us up nine miles in 25 minutes and we knew it would bring us down safely.

"Luck with with us, too, when we landed on the glacier. I had perceived a storm was approaching. I feared its intensity would prove too much for us, so I settled the balloon on the ice. We bumped along for a few feet and stopped. Ten feet from where we landed and nestled for the night was a huge crevasse gaping to swallow us.

"In our flight we reached higher than we had intended. During the first part of the ascent we were so occupied with the mechanical problem of handling the balloon that only at a height of 9,935 miles were we able to begin taking the principal measurements. The altitude of 9,936 miles was the highest we reached. We stayed in the upper strata several hours. From the observations we made at this point I conclude that ultra violet radiations are probably caused by radio activity of the stars.

Oxygen Nearly Gone.

"Our oxygen supply nearly gave out. There was only a tiny bit left when we landed. In another hour we would have suffocated to death. Before settling down I exchanged signals with a farm. My signals apparently were seen. The only casualty in the landing was a hole in Kipfer's trousers, received when he fell to the floor of the gondola. The instruments, which worked perfectly throughout the flight, were not damaged in the least."

Prof. Piccard told of their hunger and thirst in the air tight metal ball, in which the temperature rose as high as 104 degrees Fahrenheit. Outside in the stratosphere, the temperature was estimated by the scientists as about 80 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. They told of licking beads of moisture, which ran down the walls of the gondola—the condensed moisture of their breaths.

"The first thing we did upon landing was to swallow snow," Prof. Piccard exclaimed. "I never tasted anything better than the snow rubbed with an orange peel."

Asked why he had not landed earlier, the scientist revealed that a broken air valve had been discovered when he tried to open it at a height of 12,000 feet above the Alps.

Always in Control of Balloon.

"Therefore we waited until night when the lowering temperature contracted the gas in the balloon," he explained. "We were always in full control of the balloon."

After refreshing himself with a sip of tea, Prof. Piccard continued, saying that the world seemed a strange place to him although he had only been off it eighteen hours.

"All I saw during that time," he said, "was blue space. The earth was somewhere between nine and ten miles beneath us and atmospheric conditions at that time were against our seeing it. We were busy with our observations for some time and then we began to thing about getting down again. We had already been up longer than we expected.

"We had to be careful not to release too much gas, otherwise we would have descended like a stone. The balloon obliged us by lowering itself almost of its own accord to about 12,000 feet, but then the expansion of the gas, owing to the warmer atmosphere in the afternoon sunlight—it was cool in the morning when we left—checked our descent. We were afraid to let any more gas go, for as night time approached the air would cool, the gas would contract, and the balloon sink—and we were not certain where it would fall. We wanted to choose our own landing ground and at that moment we were over the inhospitable Alps.

Hours Pass Slowly.

"The hours passed all too slowly for us. We were held poised, it seemed, immovable above the sharp points of snow-capped peaks and precipitous looking glaciers. Slowly we sank down and, by a stroke of great good luck, when the gondola finally touched, it was on soft snow covering a flat ice field.

"We are happy to have served science, and I believe our observations will certainly prove valuable.

"There is no doubt whatever that we reached the stratosphere and that our observations will reveal something of importance in connection with the radio activity of stars and the variation of strength of this radio activity at various heights. Radio activity of the stars is one of the most important factors when considering the problem of transmission of light in the universe, and my flight may in the end prove to be a modest step toward the solution of this problem."

Among the scientist's most treasured results are some cylinders of air which he filled when the balloon was almost ten miles high.

Guard Balloon on Icecap.

Referring to the exact scientific value of the flight into the stratosphere, Prof. Piccard declared that it will take weeks to compute the figures on the instruments. He announced that he intended making a second flight into the upper regions for further discoveries.

A detachment of Tyrolian Alpine chasseurs today guarded the balloon on the icecap as swarms of curious mountain climbers struggled to get a glimpse of the craft. Tonight they are trying to protect it from the storm, which is raging throughout the region.

Scientists flocked into this village tonight, attempting to gain scientific information from the tall professor. After brief talks with Prof. Piccard they said they were convinced that he obtained "sensational" figures and that he had succeeded in determining the ionic charge of the upper atmosphere. This was one of the aims of the flying Brussels professor, who is searching new methods of exploiting this energy.

The balloon and its instruments will be brought into the village tomorrow by salvagers if weather conditions permit. Prof. Piccard intends to remain here three days, recording his registrations and observations.

World Altitude Record.

One record is claimed, and that is a new world altitude record.

"We rose 52,500 feet," Piccard exclaimed. "That in itself is a record."

At dawn this morning Ober Gurgl was unaware that the scientists' balloon was resting on a glacier above the village and that the two men were huddling inside the gondola suffering from the bitter cold. At 8 o'clock the balloon was sighted from below by George Schreiber, the village innkeeper, who had been able to follow its course for several hours last night. Believing that he had seen the balloon come to earth, Schreiber went to bed, and this morning peered at the icecap and saw a dark bulge against the sky. He then organized the rescue expedition, which met the scientists half way up the mountain side.

U. S. MAYORS HAIL PERSHING; 'DRINK' TOAST TO FRANCE

PARIS, May 28.—(AP)—The visiting American mayors spent one of their busiest days in France today, dividing their time among a luncheon at the American club, two receptions, a trip to the colonial exposition, shopping and sightseeing. The receptions were given by the ministry of public works and by Mrs. Walter E. Edge, wife of the American ambassador.

Gen. John J. Pershing left his duties as president of the battle monument commission to attend the luncheon at the American club. He was given an ovation when he appeared after having received permission from Theodore Rousseau, president of the club, to come in late. Pershing asked as many mayors as possible to visit the graves of American soldiers, who died in the word war, on Memorial day.

During the luncheon Judge Frank N. Padden, representing Chicago, proposed a toast to France and to America and the visitors responded—or at least raised their champagne glasses.

TEN MILES INTO THE SKY,

Map shows route balloon of Prof. Auguste Piccard and his companion, Charles Kipfer, Swiss scientists, took on their record breaking flight ten miles high and into the stratosphere. The balloon ascended at Augsburg, Bavaria, at 3:55 a. m. Wednesday and, after climbing 52,500 feet, drifted for eighteen hours over southern Europe, landing on a glacier in the Alps at 10:08 p. m. Wednesday just above the town of Ober Gurgl, in the Austrian Tyrol, a few miles from Innsbruck, Austria.

Chicagoan Hails Balloon Feat as Aid to Better Flying

BY ROBERT WOOD.

The record breaking balloon flight of the Swiss scientists, Piccard and Kipfer, into the stratosphere over the Austrian Alps comprises a valuable contribution to the future of aviation, according to J. S. McDonnell, Chicago plane builder and aeronautical engineer.

The stratosphere—the upper region in the isothermal zone, where the air is rare and clear—has long been studied by areonautical experts, said Mr. McDonnell, with a view to the development of a stratosphere airplane fitted with a sealed cabin and capable of great speeds through the thin air where weather is no longer an obstacle to flight.

Air Perfectly Clear.

"When Piccard and Kipfer reached 35,000 feet they passed beyond weather, as we know it; there were no clouds or rain and the air was perfectly clear," said Mr. McDonnell. "The air in the stratosphere is one-eighth the density at sea level. Theirs was the first expedition into altitudes above 40,000 feet, and therefore of great value to aviation. Aeronautical engineers are convinced that great speeds can be attained in the stratosphere, where the planes would be above clouds and fog which provide the greatest obstacle to air transportation in the lower altitudes."

The rarefied air was the cause of the difficulties encountered by the scientists in their descent, the engineer explained. The bag in which the air explored the sky was completely filled when they reached their maximum altitude, he said, making it necessary to release hydrogen gas to bring the balloon down.

How Descent Is Made.

"As they d scended the pressure increased, contracting the hydrogen into a small space, causing their speed of descent to increase. To correct this they likely released liquid hydrogen into the bag to make up for the losses. Ordinarily ballast is carried to be thrown out in descent, but this was impossible because of the great altitude the balloonists planned to attain."

Mr. McDonnell, however, was unable to explain the purpose of the fantastic straw hats with the plush linings which the scientists wore on their expedition. He thought they looked like peach baskets, but admitted that he had never before encountered such equipment in his pursuit of science.

CHARGES FRAUD IN BRITISH MOVE TO GET FACTOR

A letter, alleging that a purported representative of the British consul at Chicago attempted to induce a Chicagoan to prepare a false affidavit against John [Jake the Barber] Factor, whose custody is demanded by England on charges of swindling, was read to United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday by Senator Otis F. Glenn, chief counsel for Factor. Attorney Franklin R. Overmyer, representing the consul, characterized the latter as trash.

The letter was written by Harry G. Green, investors' representative, 180 West Washington street, to Senator Glenn. It said that a man named Hector Follansbee who produced alleged credentials from the British consul, asked Green to file a false affidavit claiming knowledge of Factor and branding the latter's transactions a huge fraud.

Senator Glenn asked that Green and Follansbee, if he exist, be subpoenaed. Attorney Overmyer declared that Follansbee was unknown at the consul's office. Commissioner Walker overruled Senator Glenn's motion on the ground that the matter was not material.

$1,540 CASH AND PISTOL FOUND IN EX-CONVICT'S CAR

It required more than three hours yesterday for Carl Rusk, 29 years old, of Hartford, Mich., to make up his mind to claim $1,540 which a police squad had found in an automobile in which he was riding.

The car was halted at 53d street and Stony Island avenue by Sergt. Ray Crane and his men. With Rusk was Frank Brennan, 26 years old, 6920 South Laflin street. A search of the car disclosed the money, wrapped in a paper and stuffed into a door pocket. In another pocket police found a pistol.

Both Brennan and Rusk expressed surprise at the finds and denied ownership. After they had been taken to the detective bureau, however, Rusk finally declared the money was his and that he had received it for delivering seven suitcases, contents unknown to him, to a man named Sailor in a loop hotel. But as Rusk had served time in the Pontiac reformatory and Brennan at Bridewell, the police decided to keep the money pending an investigation.

AFFECTIONS OF POODLE SEND THREE TO COURT

The fickle affections of a pet poodle were blamed for the difficulties which brought into Municipal Judge Trude's court yesterday Frank Ahern, owner of the Evergreen Park Golf club; his friend, J. C. Carruthers, 3714 Lake Park avenue, and Mrs. Margaret Monahan.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ahern were getting a divorce," an attorney explained to the judge. "Mrs. Monahan took a dislike to Mr. Ahern because her poodle liked to follow him about the hotel. She decided to play detective for Mrs. Ahern."

According to the testimony, Mrs. Monahan went to Carruthers' room and declared that Ahern and a woman were inside. In reply, Carruthers beat her and knocked her down. Mrs. Monahan said. Carruthers maintained that he only pushed the woman away and closed the door on her.

Scientists Describe Area Reached by Balloon.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—The stratosphere, remote belt of the upper air, which was penetrated yesterday by Prof. Auguste Piccard in his balloon, is described as a region of perpetual arctic cold, where the air is too thin for men to live and where stars shine by day in a purple sky.

Dr. W. J. Humphreys, physicist of the United States weather bureau, in his description said there are no clouds in the stratosphere. An aviator or balloonist, looking down from the stratosphere would hardly see the earth, but only a haze resulting from the dust in the lower atmosphere, he said.

Seventy Degrees Below Zero.

The stratosphere has been found to begin at a distance of from six to ten miles above the earth and extends indefinitely into space. Its average temperature is placed at about 70 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. There is virtually no dust in the air at that level except dust of burned up meteors.

At night the stars can be seen much more clearly from the stratosphere than from the earth because of the absence of dust, Dr. Humphreys said. Some stars can be seen there during the day because there is no glare from the sun. The sky has a purple hue because it is not seen through a cloud of dust particles as on earth.

Lower at Polar Regions.

Above the temperate zones of the earth the air steadily gets colder at greater heights until the altitude of six or seven miles is reached, Dr. Humphreys explained. At this height the temperature reaches 70 below and remains constant at that figure. That is where the stratosphere begins.

Over the polar regions the stratosphere is lower, beginning at five or six miles up, but its temperature is only 60 below. Above the tropics the stratosphere starts at nine or ten miles of altitude, but is colder than over any other part of the earth. It averages about 80 degrees below zero.

Temperature of the stratosphere varies a few degrees daily. It is warmer in summer, colder in winter. Usually it is warmer and lower over storm regions than where fair weather prevails. Winds are mere gentle breezes in the stratosphere, Dr. Humphreys said, but below it hurricanes blow with a force of as much as 100 miles an hour.

Air Unable to Keep Heat.

The boundary between the stratosphere and the lower level, or troposphere, is the point at which air loses heat as fast as it absorbs it from the earth. This keep the temperature of the air at that level constant.

The air below the stratosphere is heated by radiation from the sun, reflected by the earth. The heated air rises, but gradually cools, sinks again toward the earth, and pushes up more heated air.

Conditions in the stratosphere have been measured with instruments attached to small gas filled balloons. When the balloons reach a certain height they burst, because the pressure of the atmosphere falls with increasing height until it is less than the pressure inside the balloon. The instruments float back to earth on a small parachute.

U. S. Scientists Praise Flight.

Three American scientists tonight voiced hope that the balloon flight of the two Swiss physicists would yield man knowledge of a mystery shrouded force, the cosmic ray, that may mean much in everyday life.

Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, hailed the safe return to earth of Prof. August Piccard and Charles Kipfer as "another demonstration of the fertility and prodoctivity of the human mind."

"They may have measured the cosmic rays up there with instruments more accurate than any working automatically in free balloons," Abbot said. "Any addition to our knowledge of these rays is valuable for we know very little about them. What may be the practical value of them we cannot say. But when Roentgen discovered the X-ray, who dreamed of today's radio?"

Suggests Rocket Planes.

With quick praise, John A. Fleming, acting director of the Carnegie institution of Washington's department of terrestrial magnetism, received news of the flight's end.

"O, fine!" he exclaimed. "They may have measured the conductivity of the atmosphere and other factors of electrostatic electricity—all worth while."

To Dr. W. J. Humphreys, weather bureau physicist, the flight suggested that human beings could live in sealed rocket planes at altitudes far greater than airships have reached.

Both Fleming and Humphreys joined in the hope that the balloonist explorers secured new data on the cosmic ray. Dr. Abbot, described as "extreme" the penetrating quality of cosmic rays. Some describe them as "like a bullet," others "like a wave," he explained, and they are literally everywhere that man was explored.

Earth Bombarded by Them.

"It is as though the universe were being continually bombarded with them from every possible direction," Abbott continued. "They shoot through the atmosphere, and penetrate into the water. Perhaps continually passing through you and me, they may be of great importance—or of none at all—to our health. Not until we know more about them can we say whether they may be of use to man.

"For about 15 years scientists have been working on them. We believe they cannot be generated by the sun, because they come from everywhere. It was a Dr. Hess of Austria who suggested they were generated from outer space—beyond the hundreds of miles of atmosphere around the earth."

$10,000 GIFT FROM RESEARCH FUND AIDS BALLOONIST'S VENTURE

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 28.—(AP)—The achievement of Prof. Auguste Piccard, who set a new world altitude record by his balloon flight into the stratosphere yesterday, is a triumph of many years of modest, unassuming work. Prof. Piccard, who is said to have obtained much data of great value to science, has been a teacher of physics in Brussels University Polytechnic Institute since 1922. He is Swiss by birth.

Prof. Piccard spent most of his money on his unsuccessful attempt to rise into the stratosphere last October and he returned to Brussels in a state of dejection. His wife and his colleague, however, gave him new encouragement, knowing his resolution and the careful plans he had drawn up, but kept secret from the world at large. He received a grant of $10,000 from the scientific research fund, which was instigated by King Albert and to which the king has been a liberal contributor. This made his venture of yesterday possible.

Charles Kipfer, his companion on the flight, has long been his technical assistant. Kipfer is also Swiss born and holds a pilot certificate from the Belgian Aero club.

By order of her physician, Mme. Piccard, who is expecting her fifth child, was not allowed to receive newspaper men. A friend of the family explained, however, that she had not been able to sleep for three days and that shortly before she received a message informing her that her husband was safe she broke down under the nervous strain.

U. S. WAR ACE OFF TODAY ON NO-STOP PACIFIC FLIGHT

Hopes to Reach Tacoma in Forty Hours.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 29 (Friday.)—Thomas Ash Jr. hopped off from Tachikawa for Samushiro beach, the starting point for his trans-Pacific flight, at 10:50 a. m. today. It is a four hours' hop.

TACHIKAWA, Japan, May 28.—(AP)—Flying alone in a monoplane he considers cumbersome and difficult to manipulate, Thomas Ash Jr. said tonight he would begin the perilous 4,400 mile nonstop flight to Tacoma, Wash., as scheduled, at 7 a. m. Saturday [5 p. m. Friday, Chicago daylight saving time].

The start over the Pacific ocean will be made from Samushiro beach, Hondo island, 380 miles north of Tokio. Ash, with a distinguished war record in the American flying force in France and four years of trick flying in Hollywood, Cal., expressed confidence he would land at Tacoma, Wash., in from forty to fifty hours.

To Carry 1,020 Gallons of Gas.

In a preliminary flight of 380 miles to Samushiro, Ash planned to leave the Tachikawa airdrome, near Tokio, tomorrow morning and reach Samushiro in four hours.

The mile long Samushiro beach has been put in condition and Ash hoped his plane, the Pacific, would gain sufficient momentum to soar away with a full load of 1,020 gallons of gasoline.

Harold Bromley and Harold Gatty were forced to put back to Samushiro last year when the same plane burst an oil feed line, but Ash believed he would be successful and receive the $25,000 prize offered by the Tokio newspaper Asahi to the first foreigner to make a nonstop flight between Japan and the United States.

Denies She'll Go Along.

Miss Ruth Barron, American aviatrix, denied reports she was to accompany Ash. She plans to take a steamer for home next week.

Tachikawa arranged to send Ash away tomorrow with the heartfelt wishes of the Japanese people.

The hope for success expressed by the mayor and other officials and 1,000 schoolchildren will not be less cordial because their own aviation idol, Seiji Yoshihara, recently damaged his seaplane in the Kurile islands of Japan while attempting a twenty stop flight to San Francisco. They hoped Yoshihara also would bear their greetings to America when a new plane is supplied him.

AWARD MEDALS TO TWO SHERIFFS SAVING NEGROES

Atlanta, Ga., May 28.—(AP)—Two Texas sheriffs who saved Negro prisoners from mobs have been awarded decorations for courage and judgment by the commission on interracial cooperation.

They are Walter W. Covington of Beaumont, sheriff of Jefferson county and W. K. McLemore of Shamrock, former sheriff of Wheeler county. Dr. W. W. Alexander announced today.

PILOTS REST FOR TRIP TO CAPITAL AS "WAR" WANES

Army Flyers Hope for Flawless Record.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, May 28.—(Special.)—The army air fleet spent the day dressing up for the trip to Washington tomorrow and the show over the capital Saturday. The end of the "two weeks' war" is in sight and Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, commanding the First air division, is taking every precaution to bring the maneuvers to a close without a casualty in his ranks.

The wraps were off the engines at five Long Island flying fields this afternoon and thousands of spark plugs were getting a thorough cleaning. The pilots were enjoying a holiday—their first in ten days—for they are about ready for their final thrust at the phantom enemy.

Reply to "Bomb" Scare.

At headquarters out on Mitchel field officers were making a routine check-up of the unannounced "raid" on upper Manhattan last night in which a score of apartment house windows were reported broken by the explosion of photographic bombs. Geometry and developed pictures were resorted to by the photographic unit to convince startled New Yorkers that the three billion candle power flares had been exploded over the Hudson river and not alongside apartment house windows.

Almost every one of the 672 planes that started the maneuvers two weeks ago at Dayton will make the trip to Washington tomorrow. The winged forces will stage serial parades over Camden, Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore en route to Washington.

Call New York Poor Host.

The flying men will leave New York without regrets, for many of them are disgruntled over the treatment accorded them at the Long Island flying fields. They have voiced complaints because they were quartered in unheated hangars with damp concrete floors and open-air bathing facilities, compared to comfortable hotel rooms at Chicago and other points on the air tour. In addition they have been compelled to purchase $16.50 books of mess tickets, about half of which they have been unable to use.

Now that the "war" is on the wane there are heavy clouds of politics in the air. Officers and observers who have been flying with the fleet believe the success of the maneuvers virtually assures the appointment of Gen. Foulois, head of the flying army, as the next chief of air corps.

Fleet "Attacks" Capital Forts.

Norfolk, Va., May 28.—(AP)—Its previous strategy ending in failure due to the sharp lookout of land defenders, the "black" fleet turned to its guns today in an attempt to batter its way past Fort Story and Fortress Monroe to strike at Washington and Baltimore. The annual joint army-navy battle problem, dealing this year with the defense of the Chesapeake, moved into its final stage today after repulses of the attacking force during the two previous days. The attack upon the two defending forts will bring the maneuvers to a close.

Plan New Liquor Trial for Former E. Chicago Mayor

United States Attorney Oliver L. Loomis of the northern Indiana district announced yesterday that he would begin preparations immediately for a retrial of former Mayor Raleigh P. Hale of East Chicago and six others on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. Hale and the other defendants won a reversal in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago on Wednesday.

NEW ENDURANCE RECORD IS MADE BY DIESEL PLANE

Fly 84 Hours, Nine Over Old Mark.

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., May 28.—(AP)—Walter Lees, who drove a horse car to pay for his flying lessons, and Frederick Brossy, whose hobby is "motors," today succeeded in their ambition to stay aloft in an airplane without refueling longer than man has done before.

Lees and Brossy landed their Diesel motored Bellanca monoplane on the beach here at 7:20 E. S. T., setting a world's nonrefueling endurance record of 84 hours 13 minutes. This was 9 hours 10 minutes better than the former mark, made by two Frenchmen in Algeria, northern Africa, in March this year.

Third Attempt Successful.

In a third attempt for a record flight with a Diesel motor, Lees and Brossy took off from the beach at 6:47 a. m. [E. S. T.] last Monday with 398 gallons of fuel oil aboard.

Good weather favored the flight from the start, and with the exception of a few thunderstorms the long grind of shuttling back and forth over the oceanside was uneventful. Cooking was done on a small oil stove and the aviators had plenty of sleep in a hammock strung in the cabin.

All three trials at the mark were made here. In March they failed because one of the fuel tanks sprang a leak. In April, when within three hours of their goal, they were forced down by a storm.

Fly 6,000 Miles.

While flight officials declined to estimate the distance flown by the men in their long grind, aviators figured Lees and Brossy must have flown approximately 6,000 miles, a little more than one fourth the circumference of the earth.

MAYOR PROMISES MORE WEEDING OF PAY ROLLERS

Political Favorites Must Go, He Tells Engineers.

Honest and vigorous enforcement of the civil service laws, preceded by the ouster of pay rollers holding fat jobs through political favoritism under the old city hall régime, will be one of the main objectives of the new city administration, Mayor Cermak declared last night. He spoke before 300 members of the Western Society of Engineers at the Hotel Sherman.

The mayor's pledge followed the completion of the first hearing by his recently appointed civil service commission earlier in the day. Three policemen were discharged and three fined heavily for derelictions in duty. Chairman Richard J. Collins said the penalties should serve as warnings that the commission will not tolerate dishonest or inefficient employés.

"Follow Spirit of Law."

Mayor Cermak told his audience that he believes strict compliance with the spirit as well as the letter of the civil service laws will go a long way toward eliminating the pay roll padding of the former administration.

Much already has been accomplished in paring down pay rolls, and this will continue as the new commission gets into action, the mayor promised. He said there is to be a complete reclassification of the service.

"This is highly necessary," the mayor explained, "because of the utter disregard for many years of the requirements of the civil service law.

"Promotions in the past have been effected, not thrpugh the civil service law, but as a result of illogical and arbitrary departmental and council orders, suggested by persons more interested in advancing the fortunes of their political favorites than the good of the service."

Asks Engineers' Help.

Mayor Cermak urged the engineering society members to coöperate with him in attracting a high quality of applicants to examinations for technical positions. He also asked their support of the policies to be invoked in the building department under John E. Ericsson, new building commissioner.

The mayor announced that he expects within the next few days to appoint a commission to complete the revision of the building code, which was started but not finished by the former administration. He said he contemplated making this commission a permanent advisory body to the building commissioner to interpret the new code during the revival in building "which is inevitable with the approach of the World's Fair."

Mayor Cermak declared that he has definitely severed the police department from politics and is demanding less politics and more economy in the school board. Every effort is being made to straighten out the city's financial tangle, he said, although a special session of the legislature probably will be required.

Policemen Are Disciplined.

Four of the policemen disciplined at the first hearing of the new civil service commission received their penalties Wednesday, the opening day of the hearing. Yesterday Policeman Michael J. Grant of the 23d district was stripped of his star. He was accused of leaving his post without permission.

Policeman Martin J. Coyle of the traffic division was fined thirty days' pay. According to the evidence, he was off duty on Feb. 4 and accompanied by a woman when he fired six shots at a group of railroad workers with whom he engaged in a dispute.

Mayor Cermak listened to a part of the testimony presented at the civil service hearing. During the day he also visited the offices of several other members of his cabinet, among them Building Commissioner Ericsson, Edward J. Denemark, commissioner of compensation, and Jefferson A. O'Connor, commissioner of public service, but found only Mr. Ericsson on the job.

BOY RUNS FROM MOTHER; HIT BY AUTO; IS BLINDED

Breaking away from his mother's grasp, Richard Paul, 4 years old, ran in front of an automobile at Hinman avenue and Keeney street, Evanston, last night and was hurled to the pavement.

His skull was fractured and he was taken to St. Francis' hospital. After examination Dr. Junius Gregory said that Richard would live, but that he probably would be blind. His optic nerves are believed to be shattered.

The accident happened while Mrs. Paul, carrying an infant in her arms, and holding Richard by the coat collar, was on her way to the home of W. D. Jordan at 703 Hinman avenue, Evanston, to spend the night. She had closed her home yesterday at 1662 Farwell avenue preparatory for departure today for Boston to join her husband, Stanley B. Paul, to establish a permanent residence there. The driver of the car was David H. Gifford, 7066 North Paulina street.

Two deaths yesterday in Cook county raised the 1930 toll to 469. The victims:

Shirley Weiner, 13 years old, of Kankakee. Died in St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights, of injuries received last Sunday in an automobile collision near Chicago Heights.

Miss Hazel Beck, 18 years old, 6845 Northwest highway. Died at the Oak Park hospital a few hours after her automobile crashed into another car being driven by Vito Pantaleo, 1223 South 19th avenue, Maywood, at Harlem avenue and Jackson boulevard, Oak Park.

Sentenced 5 to 12 Years for $5 Million Stock Fraud Sale

Hartford, Conn., May 28.—(AP)—Frederic E. Kingston, head of F. E. Kingston & Co., securities brokerage firm, which went into receivership last year, today was sentenced to state prison for from 5 to 12 years in connection with the promotion of stock sale enterprises involving $5,000,000. His brother, Harold E. Kingston, convicted with him on three counts of conspiracy and fraud, received a prison sentence of from one to five years.

MAYOR WILL USE CHARLIE DAWSON FUND FOR POOR

Adds $1,000; Mrs. Conkey to Investigate Cases

Mayor Cermak yesterday announced that the $5,000 in cash recently sent him by THE TRIBUNE as the gift of a fictionary "Good Time Charlie" Dawson would become the nucleus of a fund devoted to emergency charity cases. The fund will be known as the Good Time Charlie Dawson fund.

The mayor declared he was adding $1,000 to the fund from his own pocket and would ask his friends to donate other sums. It is expected that the fund will thus become permanent.

"I have been greatly puzzled concerning disposal of the money said Mayor Cermak. "Thousands of petitions have been sent to me asking for help from the fund. There is no doubt that some worthy cases are cited in these letters.

"There are many families greatly in distress now who have not been aided by the regular charities. Many people are too proud to accept charity from the organizations. Others don't know how to gain it.

"Again organization methods are sometimes slow. There may be a family in pitiful plight right now for whom $50 in cash would be a Godsend. The purpose of this fund will be to furnish speedy help for worthy cases."

The mayor will confer with Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, newly appointed commissioner of public welfare, he said, and ask her to take charge of the investigation of cases brought to his attention. He declared that every precaution will be taken to see that the money goes only to the deserving.

O'GRADY NAMES FIVE ON SUBCOMMITTEE TO HEAR VOTE CONTEST

Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], chairman of the city council judiciary committee, yesterday appointed a subcommittee to hold hearings on two aldermanic election contests. The contests are those of Dr. James H. Taylor against Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th] and Eugene L. Nusser against Ald. George W. Robinson [36th]. Taylor and Nusser, both former aldermen, who were defeated at the last election, charge errors in the count of the ballots. The subcommittee that will hear their complaints is composed of Ald. O'Grady, Frank J. Corr [17th], Frank E. Konkowski [31st], William H. Feigenbutz [45th], and James R. Quinn [50th].

GIRL CAN'T GO TO AUTO RACES; JUMPS IN LAKE

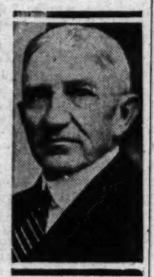
Disappointed because her friends left without her, ostensibly to drive to Indianapolis for the auto race, Rose Engel, 19 years old, of Muskegon, Mich., jumped into the lake at 51st street last night. She was rescued by Ray Monzin of 5650 Maryland avenue.

The girl and her friends, Estelle Zellman, 19, also of Muskegon, and Earl Wyatt, 22, and Trebor Lane, 21, both of Detroit, drove here Tuesday. The girls stayed at 1512 Hyde Park boulevard and the men drove back to Detroit. They returned yesterday. Last night the men told Rose they did not have enough money to take her to Indianapolis and drove off with Estelle. They returned later, however. Hyde Park police booked Rose and Wyatt, her friend, for disorderly conduct.

URGES GOVERNOR OF TENNESSEE BE IMPEACHED

House Committee Brings In Report.

Nashville, Tenn., May 28.—(AP)—Impeachment of Gov. Henry Hollis Horton is warranted, a committee formally reported to the Tennessee house today. The committee announced articles of impeachment would be presented as soon as they can be prepared.



GOV. HENRY HOLLIS HORTON. [A. P. Photo.]

Administration leaders accused the governor's opponents of delaying the presentation of the articles today to allow time to electioneer for the fifty votes necessary to prefer the indictment. There are 99 representatives.

"We've got them licked," Horton supporters said as the struggle for votes continued in hotel lobbies and rooms tonight.

The nature of the charges against the governor was not disclosed. Investigation into the administration of Gov. Horton began shortly after the 67th general assembly convened last January.

The primary reason for the investigation was the collapse of banks with nearly $7,000,000 of state funds on deposit.

These banks, the investigating committee charged, were institutions in which Col. Luke Lea, administration political leader, and Rogers Caldwell, Nashville financier, were interested.

PRESENT 2 BILLS FOR LEGALIZING DOG RACE TRACKS

Both Alike; Legislators Are Mystified.

Two bills to legalize dog racing and place dog tracks on the same footing with horse racing were introduced in the lower house of the legislature at Springfield yesterday by Representatives Grove C. Borders of East St. Louis and Claude L. Rew of Harrisburg. The bills were identical, one a carbon copy of the other, but each representative expressed surprise that the other had the bill.

ATTORNEY HARRY OLSON.

Borders said he had been requested to introduce the bill by business men in his district, denying that Al Capone or any other gangsters were interested in the measure. Representative Rew also said he had introduced his bill by request, but could not recall who had asked him to do it. "Some fellow from Chicago gave it to me," Rew was quoted as saying, "I can't recall his name."

Provide for License Fee.

The bills would empower the state department of agriculture to license one dog track in each county outside Cook county, which would be allotted two tracks. Pari-mutuel wagering, like that allowed in horse racing, would be permitted. Cook county dog tracks would have to pay $500 daily license fees, while downstate tracks would pay $350.

Operators of the tracks would be allowed to deduct 6½ per cent profit from the pari-mutuels. The bills were sent to the license and miscellany committee and the consensus among the legislators was that they probably would stay there.

Meanwhile no attempt was made to operate the dog tracks at Thornton and Cicero last night, after attempts to open the tracks on the two preceding nights had been met with raids by the sheriff's and state's attorney's forces. Crowds of several hundred persons milled around each of the tracks last night, but squads from the two county law enforcement agencies were among those present and the tracks remained dark.

Attorney Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, has been retained by the dog track promotors in their fight to establish dog racing.

Gambling Cases Continued.

Gambling charges against the two managers and nine mutuel clerks who were arrested in the raids on Tuesday and Wednesday nights were continued until next Thursday by Justice of the Peace William W. Ward in Morton Grove yesterday afternoon. William Fineran, manager of the Cicero track, and Thomas Healey, manager at Thornton, were arrested on charges of keeping a gambling place and the nine clerks are charged with pool selling.

FALL FROM LADDER PROVES FATAL.

Gustave Schaer, 56 years old, 6523 South Seeley avenue, died yesterday in the Chicago hospital of an infection which resulted from a fall from a ladder during his employment as night engineer of the Lake Shore Drive hotel five days ago.

OLD CHARGES AGAINST DR. TONNEY TERMED 'UNJUST' BY BUNDESEN

Health Commissioner Bundesen yesterday requested the new civil service commission to dismiss permanently the "unjust" charges filed against Dr. Fred O. Tonney, director of the health department research laboratory, by the former city hall administration.

Dr. Tonney was placed under suspension for two months near the end of the last administration. One of the charges filed against him then was that he had absented himself without leave. Records in the city hall showed that he was on sick leave while recuperating from an operation during the time mentioned in the charges. Other charges were found as baseless by Commissioner Bundesen.

"It is clear to me," Commissioner Bundesen wrote to the commission, "that the charges were unwarranted, that they were contrived for the purpose of removing from the service a faithful and effective officer, and that they should be permanently dismissed and Dr. Tonney exonerated."

"The proceeding instituted against Dr. Tonney was not only a wrongful attack upon him but a blow to the security of every member of the department. I desire to state that while I am commissioner of health no member of the department will be unjustly subjected to such treatment."

With the letter were transmitted testimonials subscribing to the meritorious service of Dr. Tonney and affidavits from well known scientific men praising his record.

AGED WATCHMAN WHO SAW CHICAGO GROW IS RETIRED

After forty-six years on duty at the Pennsylvania railroad's bridge over the south branch of the Chicago river, Anton Wachdorf, 70 year old bridge tender, will retire next Monday. Under the railroad's pension regulations retirement is compulsory at the age of 70.

ANTON WACHDORF.

Mr. Wachdorf was born in Germany May 14, 1861, and was brought to Chicago by his parents while a small boy. In 1876 he entered the employ of the railroad, and in 1885 he became a bridge engineer, operating the steam draw bridge. Later he became operator of the large lift bridge which now spans the river.

BEER BARREL AIR PUMP BLOWS UP AND KILLS MAN

A beer party of employés in the rear of an auto sales company at 4655 Washington boulevard ended fatally last night when a compressed air pump that was being attached to a barrel of beer just tapped exploded.

Peter Kill, 21 years old, of 4413 Wallace street, a stockroom worker, was the man fatally injured. He died an hour later in the Garfield Park hospital, where he was taken by R. J. Kenny of 1520 East 59th street, and B. Carson of 2342 North Hamlin avenue. According to police, Kill tried to force the pump connection into the barrel and the device exploded.

BANDITS REVISIT MICHIGAN AVE. TO ROB; 3 CAPTURED

Three men who were planning to rob the Saks-Fifth Avenue store at 840 North Michigan avenue yesterday were not given an opportunity to carry out the plot. Two of them were recognized as they strolled along the boulevard as participants in the robbery of Hogan & Farwell, Inc., real estate agents at 664 North Michigan avenue, on April 6, the police were notified and the trio captured at Michigan avenue and Chestnut street.

They are Edward Lang, 22 years old, 4820 West Chicago avenue; Alvin Lindsey, 27 years old, 2730 West Washington boulevard, and Robert Luense, 23 years old, 2910 West Washington boulevard. Lang and Luense were carrying pistols when Sergts. Tobin and Dorsey of the Chicago avenue station seized them. At the station, after they had been identified in the real estate holdup, they admitted their intention of raiding the Saks store.

Lieut. Gene Barry questioned the trio on a possible connection with the murder of Samuel Bloom on Wednesday in his home at 4501 North Troy street, and ordered that a woman friend of the robbers be taken into custody. Testimony at the Bloom inquest, which was opened yesterday and continued to June 9, indicated that a woman was in the home with Bloom and answered the telephone about the time the murder is supposed to have occurred. The name of the bandits' friend was withheld by the police.

HOLIDAY LURES MILLION IN CARS; DETOURS LISTED

Suggest Trips to Places of Historic Interest.

BY HAL FOUST.

With favorable weather, a million residents of Chicagoland will start the summer touring season this holiday week-end, judging from Memorial day traffic of past years. The radial highways widened last year will accommodate more cars and at faster speeds, and hence for greater distances, than on former Decoration days.

The exodus of motorists from the city for the double holiday in the country will start this afternoon and continue tonight and tomorrow morning. The returning traffic is expected to reach congestion volume between 6 p. m. and 9 p. m. on Sunday.

List the Main Detours.

Because the paving season is in full swing, motorists are advised to study their maps and latest road reports to avoid bottle necks this week-end wherever possible. There follows a survey, prepared by the Chicago Motor club, of detours on main highways in the metropolitan area:

JOLIET ROAD [Ill.-4]—Closed for twenty-one miles from Willow Springs road to Joliet.

LAKE STREET ROAD [Ill.-5]—Closed for 2.5 miles between Ontarioville and Elgin.

ROOSEVELT ROAD [Ill.-6]—Pavement broken up one mile east of Glen Ellyn to permit repaving. Traffic can get through during construction but is advised to use North avenue, Ill.-64. Also under construction for 2.5 miles from Geneva east. Traffic can get through during construction or may use a detour over gravel roads to the south. Traffic here also advised to use North avenue. Closed for five miles from De Kalb to Malta.

OGDEN AVENUE [Ill.-18]—Closed for 1.4 miles from Mannheim road to Wolf road. Also closed for .3 miles for construction of grade separation in La Grange.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY [Ill.-22]—Closed for four miles from Crawford avenue to Will county line.

Detours, and their condition, which may be encountered on week-end trips outside the metropolitan area are listed by the motor club as follows:

US-12—1 mile, east of Madison, Wis., fair.
Ill-5—5 miles, from Ontarioville to Elgin, good.
Ill-4—21 miles, from Willow Springs road to Joliet, good.
Ill-6—5 miles, Creston to Malta, good.
Ill-7—14 miles, Marseilles to Ottawa, poor.
Ill-18—Two detours in La Grange, both good.
Ill-49—1 mile, near Richton Park, good.
Ind-6—2 miles, near Westville, good.
Ind-43—1 mile, at Wanatah, good.
US-12—5 miles, Grand Beach to New Buffalo, good.
US-31—Several run arounds, while bridges are being constructed near Holland, Grand Haven and Muskegon.
Mich-21—West of Grand Rapids, short and fair.

All detours are marked.

The favored Memorial day destinations, if the weather is warm, are the lakes and woods of northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, northern Indiana and southern and western Michigan; although there will be thousands streaming over the concrete to the scenic and historic valleys of the Kankakee, the Illinois, the Rock and the Mississippi rivers. Indiana and Illinois state parks also draw crowds.

The drive to Milwaukee, 92 miles, can be made along Sheridan road, through the beautiful estates of north shore suburbs and with stops at Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training station which might be in keeping with the significance of the holiday. A return trip can be made on U. S. 41 and Ill. 42A, or the motorist can circle in Wisconsin to see the lakes around Oconomowoc.

Out the Lake street highway 163 miles, in the hills of Daviess county, is the quaint old town of Galena, where U. S. Grant was a store clerk before the civil war. North avenue to St. Charles and then Roosevelt road westward leads to Dixon, on the Rock river, 104 miles from Chicago, where Abraham Lincoln, Jefferson Davis and other well known names were on the roll call of the army that fought Black Hawk.

A few miles north of Dixon is the White Pines state park, a heavy forest on gentle hills with sparkling Pine creek cutting through moss covered cliffs. Also north of Dixon is the Rock river road, Ill. 2, to Rockford, which makes a scenic circle drive, using the Lake street highway for the return to Chicago.

Park Overlooking Mississippi.

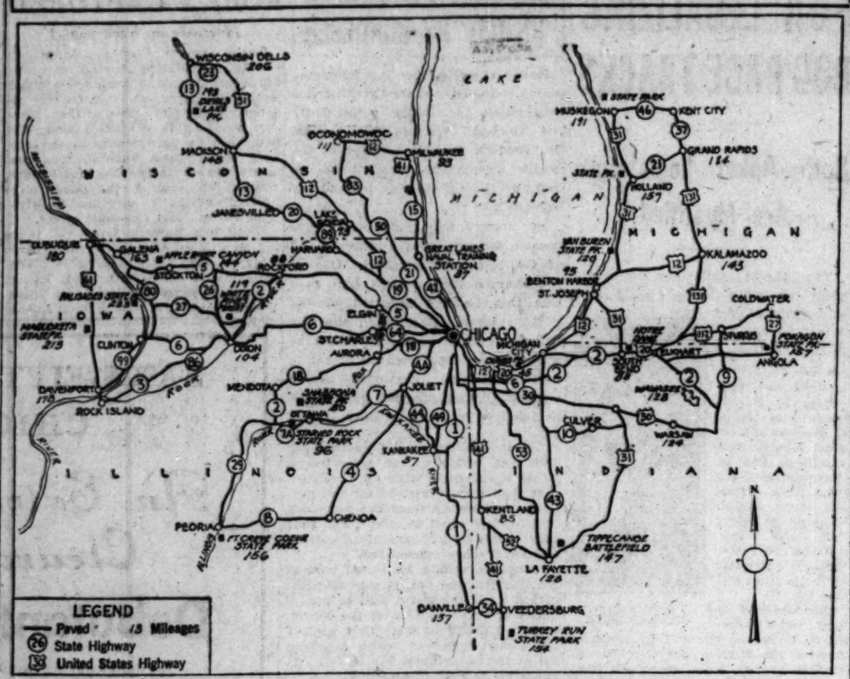
Farther west, 233 miles from Chicago, is the new Illinois state park in the palisades overlooking the Mississippi river.

Rock Island, farther south on the river, offers a destination appropriate for a day dedicated to the memory of war veterans. The government maintains its largest arsenal there, and there's a historical museum of military equipment. The city is 178 miles from Chicago, using Roosevelt road to Dixon and then proceeding down the Rock river valley on Ill. 26 and Ill. 3.

Starved Rock, in the wooded cliffs of the Illinois river, 96 miles from Chicago, can be reached via Joliet, but the preferred route, due to detours for construction, will be over the Ogden avenue road, Ill. 18, to Mendota, and then south on Ill. 2.

Pavement winds in the bluffs of the Illinois river south and west of Starved Rock, on Ill. 7A, 7, and 29, to Peoria.

AUTO TOURS FOR WEEK-END SHOWN



This highway map shows the routes and mileages to the more popular destinations of the million motorists who, it is anticipated, will open the summer touring season over the holiday week-end. The map was prepared by the Chicago Motor club.

TESTIFIES HE PAYS FOR AID IN SELLING LAND TO NEW YORK

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Joseph Horowitz, a real estate broker, "knew who to go to" in the matter of selling land to city departments, Ely Maran, president of the Golding Realty corporation, today told Leonard M. Wallstein, special assistant corporation counsel, who is inquiring into the acquisition by the city of school sites by condemnation.

Mr. Maran testified that he had so much trust in Mr. Horowitz's knowledge "of what departments to offer land to" that once he paid him a $10,000 commission when the normal payment would have been $4,240.

Mr. Maran got damages of $168,097 for one school site in the Bronx, and $216,000 for another school site in Brady avenue, the Bronx.

After the first sale he gave $6,500 to Mr. Horowitz—$1,500 in cash, by request, he testified. He denied the implication that the payment had been made because Mr. Horowitz had favorably influenced the condemnation.

LINCOLN ROUTE THROUGH STATE IS MAPPED OUT

Report Made by State Commission.

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—After a year's research the commission named by Gov. Emmerson to locate the route traveled by Abraham Lincoln's family on its journey from Hodgenville to central Illinois, reported today.

The route, as provided by the last general assembly, is to be known as part of the "Lincoln National Memorial highway."

The highway department was directed to locate it for marking, but when its proposal was published, controversies arose which led Gov. Emmerson to name a committee of five men—Logan Hay, Springfield; Oliver R. Barrett, Otto L. Schmidt, and Henry Horner of Chicago, and Paul M. Angle of Springfield.

North from Vincennes.

From Vincennes, Ind., the revised route runs north along the Illinois bank of the Wabash through Russellville, Heathsville, and Palestine to Hutsonville, instead of by way of Lawrenceville. From Hutsonville it extends to the Old Paradise settlement in Coles county by way of the Old Vincennes-Chicago road through Old York to Darwin, thence in the direction of Grandview to near the village of Dolson, then westward to the Richwoods settlement in Clark county.

From this point it will run to the present city of Charleston, crossing the Embarrass river at Blakeman's ford and from Charleston it will traverse the old Paris-Shelbyville road to Old Paradise [not to be confused with the present town of Paradise], a short distance southwest of Mattoon.

Passes Through Decatur.

The route continues to Decatur and from Decatur to a point on route 10 north of the Lincoln farm in Macon county. From route 10, a spur would be constructed south to the site of the Lincoln cabin. Route 10 would be followed to Springfield.

From Springfield route 125 would be followed to a point south of the site of Sangamon Town on the west bank of Sangamon river, thence through Salisbury, New Salem, and Petersburg and past Concord cemetery to the town of Huron. From Huron to Oakford the course of the road, as surveyed by far as practicable from Oakford to Beardstown.

WISCONSIN WRITER SHOOTS HEROINE OF BOOK; SENT TO PRISON

Wausau, Wis., May 28.—[Special.]—Enraged and jealous because she refused to marry him, Walter Grunewald, 48, late last night shot and seriously wounded his sweetheart, Miss Jean Zick, 27, whom he had made a heroine of his book, "The White Queen."

Less than sixteen hours after the shooting Grunewald was on his way to state prison at Waupun to serve a sentence of from ten to twenty-five years after his plea of guilty to charges of assault while armed with intent to kill imposed upon him by Judge A. H. Reid in Circuit court.

Two hours after the shooting Grunewald walked into the city police station and surrendered. He was arraigned in County court and bound over to higher court under $5,000 bonds which he did not furnish.

Miss Zick was in serious condition at a hospital here, but hopes for her recovery were held by attending physicians. She was shot in the left side when her assailant poked his .32 automatic through a hole in the screen door of her home after she answered his knock at the door.

Miss Zick collaborated with Grunewald on the writing of "The White Queen," the scenes of which were laid in Africa, where Grunewald spent years working in diamond mines. As an expression of his love for her Grunewald cast her in the leading rôle.

Grunewald claimed to the police that Miss Zick was responsible for the loss of his business two months ago and said she ruined his "character and reputation by talking about me."

MODIFY DEMAND, WARNING GIVEN MOVIE OPERATORS

Unless officials of the Moving Picture Operators' union modify their demands as to the number of operators on duty in picture houses conspiracy indictments will be sought next week, Charles E. Lounsbury, assistant state's attorney, indicated yesterday.

Three hundred exhibitors, owning small houses, have appealed to the racket bureau against a union ruling requiring the employment of two operators to a shift. The exhibitors assert that one operator is sufficient.

DRAFTS LAW TO BAR STARS ON PRIVATE AUTOS

Would Restrict Official Badges to Officials.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein yesterday completed the drafting of a proposed city ordinance which would prohibit the use of stars on automobiles except those owned by elected and appointed public officials.

The ordinance is the result of the adoption of a resolution by the city council several weeks ago after numerous complaints were received that private citizens were unlawfully using stars, badges, and official emblems of the city, apparently for the purpose of winning special favors from traffic policemen—favors which are supposed to be accorded only to public officials in the line of duty.

Fines Are Provided.

The ordinance carries as penalty for violation a maximum fine of $50 and a minimum of $5. It reads in part: "It shall be illegal for any person, firm, or corporation to affix on any vehicle any emblems or badges of authority purporting to represent the local, federal, or state governments." The ordinance will be presented to the council at its meeting on June 10.

A reporter who toured downtown streets yesterday found bright brass stars, other official badges and, in some cases, fake emblems gleaming at the tail lights or on the radiators of automobiles, some of them parked in choice spots at the curb.

One motorist apparently is attempting to carry the influence of a Chicago city badge into Indiana. His sport coupe bore an Indiana license number and above it a star which bore the words, "City of Chicago—Official." The license number was 740,679.

Stars but No License Plates.

Two cars were found which carried official city stars but neither state nor city license plates. On the tire cover of one of these automobiles was the lettering, "Chicago Night Club Entertainers." The other was parked in Wacker drive west of Wells street near the street intersection.

Most of the stars noted in yesterday's tour carried the lettering, "Chicago World's Fair—I Will 1933," but, without close inspection, gave the same official appearance as the genuine badges found on several cars of public officials parked about the city hall and county building. The World's Fair stars have been disclaimed by the World's Fair commission.

One automobile was found parked in Wacker drive bearing the star of a city official, a last year's city vehicle tag, No. A-362329, but no state license plate.

Other World's Fair Stars.

Other cars bearing World's Fair stars were found parked at various points. Their license numbers and the names of the persons to whom the licenses were issued are:

184360....William Brandt, 1413 S. Spaulding
228,016....Chas. F. Fricke, 4950 Nelson-st.
87,207..W. H. Collins Jr., 7207 Oglesby-av.
75,817....Samuel Katz, 14 North Michigan

Other official stars found in the tour included a "City Law Department" badge on a car whose license was issued to Esther Hornstein, 5610 Blackstone avenue; a "Police Retirement Board Trustee" star on an auto whose license was issued to Hugh T. McCarthy, 4212 North Keeler avenue, and a "Deputy Bailiff, Circuit Court" star on an automobile whose license was issued to Leroy Cohen, 31 West Lake street.

Around the police headquarters at 11th and State streets, where a whole constellation of legitimate stars might be expected, not one brass badge was in evidence. The police, who are authorized to display stars, apparently get along without them for their cars.

PLAN RESCUE FOR MICHIGAN MAN IN PARAGUAY PRISON

Lansing, Mich., May 28.—[Special.]—The Lansing chamber of commerce acted today to launch a federal investigation into the reported plight of John Francis Wright, a former Lansing and Chicago resident, who is said to have been held for the last two years in a prison in Paraguay on a trumped up murder charge.

C. W. Otto, secretary of the local organization, today forwarded information in the case to Senator James Couzens of Michigan with a request that the matter be taken up by the United States diplomatic service.

Wright is said to have been superintendent of a large ranch near Porto Pinaco in northern Paraguay. Some two years ago, according to word received here through a British ranch owner who told of Wright's case during a recent visit to Philadelphia, two British subjects were ambushed in Paraguay, one being killed and the other severely wounded. A native Paraguayan confessed to the murder when questioned by the local authorities, but later, it is alleged, at the instance of an enemy of Wright, accused the latter of inspiring the crime.

Wright was thrown into prison at Asuncion and has been kept there since, it is charged.

Wins Contest Over Employer's Will.

Miss Nan Kamp, 31 years old, yesterday reaped a $96,265 reward for having broken an engagement to marry seven years ago. Acting Probate Judge Harry C. Daniels granted the young woman that amount as compensation for her refusal to marry.

Miss Kamp, a resident of St. Louis, was secretary to the late Samuel Levitt, wealthy hotel owner of Chicago and St. Louis, who died last Dec. 29, leaving an estate valued at more than $1,000,000. His will gave Miss Kamp a bequest of $3,735 and distributed the remainder of the estate between his widow, Bessie, and three children, all living in St. Louis.

Suit Reveals Broken Romance.

The secretary filed a claim against the estate for $96,265 and revealed the unusual story of the broken engagement.

"I became secretary to Mr. Levitt in 1921," she told the judge. "In 1923 I became engaged to be married."

She refused to reveal the name of her fiancé, saying that he has since died.

"Mr. Leavitt was upset when I told him that I was contemplating marriage," she testified. "He asked me not to get married and promised to bequeath me $100,000 in his will if I broke off the engagement and remained his secretary until death."

Produces Agreement in Court.

Miss Kamp insisted upon having a written agreement telling of the promised bequest and the hotel owner signed it, she said. She produced this agreement in court. After Levitt had signed the agreement she notified her fiancé that the engagement was broken and worked faithfully for her employer until his death, she testified. When she was bequeathed only $3,735 she filed a claim for the difference between that amount and the promised $100,000.

Harry K. Curtis, an attorney, son of Vice President Charles Curtis, was a witness for Miss Kamp. He declared that she was known as an expert on real estate values and had undoubtedly helped to build up the Levitt fortune.

Mrs. Levitt, the widow, announced that she would appeal to the state Supreme court from the decision.

BEN WEBER HELD FOR KILLING AGOA IN LABOR DISPUTE

Slaying Occurs at State and Van Buren.

Benjamin J. Weber, business agent of the Chicago Window Washers' union, local 134, was held for murder last night, following the death of Daniel Agoa, secretary of the Chicago Window and Building Cleaners' Contracting association, whom Weber shot four times yesterday morning. Agoa was 38 years old and lived at 1129 North Leclaire avenue. Weber is also 38 and lives at 9114 South Loomis street.

Story of the Shooting.

They met in front of a Childs restaurant, State and Van Buren streets, where Agoa had breakfasted with two window washing contractors, Benjamin Kugler, 326 South State street, and M. Dresdner, 107 West Van Buren street. Two men who feared each other, Agoa and Weber talked for a minute. Then Agoa punched Weber in the nose. Weber drew his gun and fired four times, even after Agoa was down, according to witnesses. Turning, he ran into the arms of Policeman Leo Hemrick, who disarmed him without a struggle.

Later Weber was brought by police to St. Luke's hospital where Agoa lay.

"Well, you threatened me and I got you first," Weber said to Agoa.

"How could I get you?" Agoa moaned. "I didn't have a gun."

Weber Admits Slaying.

The deathbed identification was made. Statements of witnesses had been taken. Weber admitted the deed. At 2:10 o'clock Agoa died.

The trouble between the men was known to the state's attorney's office. Only last Tuesday Assistant State's Attorney's Edwin Duffey and Donald Thompson of the prosecutor's racket bureau, had settled a strike and lockout in which Agoa and Weber were arrayed against each other.

Agoa had been one of the first prohibition agents appointed in the Chicago district. In 1922 he was discharged and he was subsequently sent to Leavenworth penitentiary for asking money from a man he had arrested for a liquor violation.

How to SUNBATHE HEALTHFULLY AND avoid SUNBURN

1 In the beginning, expose yourself to direct sun-rays for a short time—until your skin has become accustomed to the sun. In small doses the sun refreshes and benefits. In large doses it burns.

2 To have a safe, comfortable sunbath never expose your skin to the sun while it is wet.

3 While nothing in the world will positively prevent a burn if you expose yourself carelessly, you can avoid an ordinary burn and lessen a bad burn by sunbathing with the skin dried off and protected with an application of Nivea Creme before and during exposure. This precaution will assure you a fresh, healthy and invigorated skin.

4 When you have not taken these precautions and a sunburn or skin dryness develops after exposure, apply Nivea Creme—it will quickly soothe and cool your skin.

5 Druggists, department stores and chain stores will supply you with Nivea Creme.

JORDAN BLAMES POLICE KILLINGS ON HOLDUP FEAR

Accused Slayer, on Stand, Offers 'Freak Defense.'

CRIMINAL COURT.

Eugene Piantkowski, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Philip Finnegan.

Leonard Boyce, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Ross C. Hall.

Howard Bonham, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Victor Francis, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Donald Murphy, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory; Philip Epstein, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Frank Jordan, bank robber on trial for the murder of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, took the stand in Judge John Prystalski's courtroom yesterday to offer what his attorney characterized "a freak defense." He testified he shot and killed Ruthy and Policeman Patrick Durkin at Michigan avenue and Randolph street because he feared he was being robbed, adding he fired in self-defense after someone first shot at him. Ruthy and Durkin were trying to arrest Jordan on bank robbery charges.

Jordan took the stand late in the afternoon after the state closed its case with the testimony of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock and Chief of Detectives Norton. He was the sole witness for the defense. The case is expected to go to the jury today after rebuttal evidence by the state and final arguments.

Jordan Tells His Story.

In the witness chair Jordan lost the sleepy attitude which he has maintained through the trial and became tense and alert, glancing now and then at the four bailiffs who surrounded him to prevent a dash for liberty. He talked in a low voice. His attorney, Daniel Wolf, repeatedly asked him to raise his voice so that the jury might hear.

Jordan said he was born in St. Louis 30 years ago. He said his real name is Carl Carlson. He left school at the age of 13 to work in Moline and Rock Island, he said. He told of coming to Chicago in 1923 to work as a cook in a restaurant and of being sent to the penitentiary for robbery with a gun.

Suicide Testimony Barred.

Previous to this sentence he had been in the navy, he said. At this point the trial was halted and the jury was sent out of the courtroom when Attorney Wolf attempted to bring out that Jordan had shot himself in the head in an attempted suicide over a love affair. Attorney Wolf denied that the testimony was being introduced to support an insanity plea. He said that a freak defense was being presented. Judge Prystalski ruled against the defense on the objection of Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne and the jury was recalled.

Jordan said he was released on parole from Joliet prison in 1930 and in March of this year was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth prison by Federal Judge Thomas Slick in Hammond for interstate transportation of a stolen automobile. He escaped by leaping from a train in which he was being taken to the prison by deputy marshals.

Tells of the Shooting.

On the day of the shooting of Policemen Ruthy and Durkin Jordan said he had gone to 158 North Michigan avenue to keep an appointment with a Miss Mildred Jackson. His wife waited for him in their car. After leaving Miss Jackson, Jordan said, he went to Randolph street and Michigan avenue to buy a paper and was grabbed from behind as he took his change.

"I broke loose and some one shot," Jordan said. "I pulled out my gun and shot. [Here he showed the jury a special pocket he had in his coat to carry the gun.]

"I did not know who grabbed me and was afraid and startled. I had $900 in my pocket and thought some one was holding me up."

Jordan Is Cross-Examined.

Under cross-examination by Prosecutor Ditchburne, Jordan said he did not know he had shot Ruthy or Durkin, saying he did not see the men. Attorney Ditchburne read from Jordan's testimony at the coroner's inquest in which he said he saw both policemen. Jordan declared he did not remember giving the answer credited to him. He declared the gun, shown him by Ditchburne, to be his.

In its rebuttal the state is expected to produce ballistics experts to testify the fatal shots were fired from Jordan's gun.

In his testimony Acting Police Commissioner Alcock told of the confession made by Jordan to Mayor Cermak. Another state witness was Albert Pacelli, 11 years old, a newsboy. Chief of Detectives Norton testified that at the questioning of Jordan a woman who was living with him was among those present. At this Jordan shouted, "liar." Bailiffs ran to his side. Though his face became purple, Jordan made no further comment.

NEGRO POLICEMEN BEFORE JURY IN NARCOTIC CASE

Policemen Wellington Britton and James Howland, colored, yesterday went on trial before a jury in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes on charges of conspiracy to violate the narcotic law. The government charges the policemen conspired with Jackie Reynolds and James Claiborne, both Negroes, to hijack eighteen ounces of morphine brought to Chicago by Billie Poole and Joseph Campbell, Kansas City Negroes.

Reynolds and Claiborne have entered pleas of guilty. They were called as government witnesses by Assistant United States District Attorney Miss Mary D. Bailey. Reynolds testified that Britton and Howland arrested them with the Kansas City Negroes and that while they were under arrest Howland returned to an apartment at 3618 Michigan avenue, where he seized the morphine.

Suspect Accused Woman as New 'Poison Victim' Is Found

Investigators preparing evidence on which they will demand from the grand jury an indictment charging Mrs. Margaret Summers with the murder of four men last night added another possible victim—who is still alive—to the list of workingmen who, it is suspected, were fed poison in her home.

MRS. MARGARET SUMMERS.

The latest of the supposed victims to be discovered is George Kaiser, 54 years old, 433 Beethoven place. He is now in a hospital and his case has been diagnosed as one of tuberculosis. Physicians say there is no doubt that he has the disease, but that there may have been complications due to metallic poison. He formerly was a roomer in Mrs. Summers' home.

Kaiser, like most of the others Mrs. Summers is alleged to have given harmful potions, was a peddler. He has been confined to bed since March 28. Assistant State's Attorney E. A. Ferrari announced last night that he had found two insurance policies on Kaiser's life, each naming Mrs. Summers as beneficiary.

Question Husband's Kin.

Ferrari and Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks last evening questioned two sisters and three brothers of Thomas Summers, the husband whom the woman is alleged to have killed last year.

They also were in conference with Walter Fairfax, 8314 South Morgan street, a brother of James Fairfax, the first husband of Mrs. Summers. James died seventeen years ago. According to the brother his death was supposedly due to typhoid fever.

"We were suspicious about it then," Walter added, "but nothing was done about it."

The sisters of the dead Summers, Miss Agnes and Margaret Summers, and the brothers, Raymond, Stephen, and James, gave the prosecutors the gossip and the suspicions that had been aroused at the time of the husband's death, and were said to have added a few statements of a possibly incriminating nature said to have been made by Mrs. Summers.

Meanwhile the woman under arrest, who is 47 years old, continued to maintain that she was innocent. She declared that she had only been "ambitious and industrious," and that taking out policies on the lives of the men who died had only been a foresighted move on her part. She has collected a total of $6,700 insurance on the lives of those she is alleged to have poisoned.

They are, besides the second husband, her nephew, Thomas Meyers, 17 years old, and two roomers, Thomas Lanagan and William Reenan. About both her husbands Mrs. Summers talked freely in the presence of her attorneys, Harrold Levy and Emmett Byrne.

"Jimmy Fairfax was a teamster," she said. "I married him when I was 16. He never made much money and I took in roomers to help out. I tried to get hold of money and when I got it I tried to keep it."

"Then for 12 years I was a widow. I worked in a factory in Milwaukee during the war for a little while, but kept roomers most of the time. I always was one to try to get ahead."

"Not a Good Provider."

The trouble with Tom Summers, who was a lodger in her home before becoming her husband, was that he was not a good provider, Mrs. Summers asserted.

"Tom never was much of a man," she explained. "He was always drunk. He had a lot of teams but instead of driving them himself he'd just rent them out to other fellows."

As for insurance, she denied that she had induced any one to take out insurance with herself as beneficiary, as is charged by the prosecutors.

"Did you ever poison any one?" she was asked.

At this she glanced up cautiously and said, "O, no, I never did anything like that."

Special Exhibit

All day tomorrow a special floral exhibit will be open to the public from 8 o'clock until 6 at the Garfield park conservatory. Candlestick lilies, brought from Siberia, will be on view for the first time, as well as a wealth of old fashioned blooms.

LABOR STRIKE IN SOUTH WARDS IS SETTLED BY CITY

The strike of 26 city laborers, who were working on the installation of a new lighting system in three south side wards, was settled yesterday at a conference held between Mayor Cermak, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, and union leaders. The strike, according to Commissioner Sprague, was the result of "misunderstanding and stupidity."

Civil service laborers had been working as linemen helpers when the latter were laid off with other temporary appointees. Through a misunderstanding the linemen helpers, when they went back to work, were put in the positions of the laborers, and the laborers were left in the helpers' places. After the union laborers walked out the city officials agreed to have the men put in their right jobs.

The union men at the conference were Michael Carrozza, head of the city street laborers; Irwin Knott, head of the electrical union; J. W. Ga. ey of the International Hod Carriers and Building Laborers' union, and Fred Sass and John Sutherland of the city sanitary teamsters' union. Another meeting will be held next week to work out an agreement on the previous strike of street laborers.

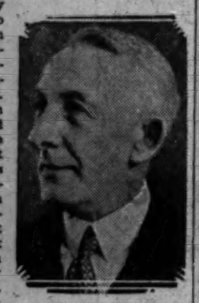
REVENUE CRISIS MAKES SPECIAL SESSION LIKELY

Chicago's Problems Will Be Held Over, Too.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—[Special.]—A special session is looming up for July or early August to deal with the problem of revnue and taxation. Gov. Emmerson has issued no definite word, but close friends of the administration tonight declared that some six weeks from now they look for a message from the governor calling the legislators back from the bass and muskie lakes of Wisconsin to tackle the tax situation.



GOV. EMMERSON. [Wallinger Photo.]

It is in line with remarks the governor has been dropping for the last three months that unless the legislature produces some sort of constructive plan the lawmakers will have their noses back at the grindstone during the dog days. Administration men expect a session extraordinary to be called for somewhere between July 15 and Aug. 1.

Chicago Measures to Hold Over.

Meanwhile, it became more and more evident today that the leaders expect nothing will be done in the final three weeks before June 20 on the major Cook county tax measures. There will be hearings next week on the Igoe bills, embodying the program of the Cermak advisory committee, but the talk among leaders in both houses is to the effect that as a special session on the subject of taxes and revenue is almost a foregone conclusion, the subject matter will be shoved over for that time.

A few measures are getting through, but they are minor affairs, piecemeal stuff not linked up with a comprehensive program.

Income Tax Fight This Week.

Income tax, which has passed the senate, comes up in the house Wednesday as a special order. Indications today were that its support has been materially weakened by the amendments inserted two days ago, putting into the bill a lurking possibility of double taxation and of the payment of income tax upon property taxes. At present it looks like a stiff fight, and many members look for a grist of inquiries from farmers and small business men and taxpayers in general as to what the bill means when they get back home for the week-end. Some who have supported the bill say double taxation will take a lot of explaining.

Weeks ago Gov. Emmerson sent a special message to the assembly dealing with the whole subject of taxation and setting forth it was the most difficult problem before the legislators as well as one of the most important. His friends say the message he is now outlining will be emphatic and will cover the situation not only in Cook county but downstate as well, where counties are hard pressed to collect taxes enough to meet pay rolls.

Joint County Rule Favored.

One proposal growing in favor is that of a constitutional amendment to enable two or more counties to combine under one set of officers without losing their identity as counties, thus chopping down the payrollers. Meanwhile the legislature is putting through appropriation bills, and already it looks as if the governor will require a sheaf of blue pencils to knock out items enough to cut down proposed expenditures to revenue in prospect.

For the last two weeks the session has had the appearance of turning into a flop so far as large measures are concerned. At this stage congressional reapportionment is regarded as perhaps the biggest thing left in the sack. As affairs now stand, the main opposition to the proposed redistricting is coming from the congressmen themselves. Many of the disputes over territory, the leaders believe, can be ironed out. In a conference late today it was agreed that party caucuses of the house members should be held next Tuesday to straighten out troublesome boundary lines if possible.

Mexicans Flee to Streets as Quakes Rock 2 Towns

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—(AP)—Earth shocks which spread alarm in various parts of central Mexico yesterday were repeated today, accompanied in some places by torrential rains and underground rumblings. Dispatches from Arteaga, Michoacan, said two light tremors were felt there shortly after 9 a. m., and a report from Acatlan, Puebla, said that a shock at 4 a. m. caused inhabitants to seek refuge in the streets and other open places.

ALDERMEN URGE CANCELING 1930 TAX WITH BONDS

Propose Funding to Aid Realty Owners.

to put its program into effect were denied admittance to the legislature last Wednesday.

Quinn's Program Explained.

Quinn asked first that the real estate valuations be placed on a 100 per cent basis, instead of on 37 per cent of the full value as at present. He estimated this would increase the city's bonding power by $350,000,000. Then he would reduce the tax rates so that the actual taxes paid would not be increased.

The last step he proposed is to issue bonds to lift the 1930 taxes, which are now estimated at $250,151,000. Ald. Quinn argued that cancelling the 1930 taxes would encourage tax payers to their 1928 and 1929 bills.

Several aldermen aimed speeches at "tax racketeers" who they claimed are persuading property owners not to pay their taxes. Ald. O. F. Nelson [46th] had the committees adopt a motion to "condemn" any organization which urges people not to pay their taxes.

Hodes Makes Protest.

"That is just laughing the question aside," said Ald. Hodes. "You are not providing any relief for the real estate owners of 1928 and 1929. You are shooting at the association of real estate taxpayers. Let me show you how big they are.

"Cook county's 1929 tax bill is $276,000,000, of which $121,000,000 is delinquent. Of the 1928 tax bill of $233,000,000 about $50,000,000 is unpaid. That is a total of $171,000,000 of unpaid taxes for the two years. The association of real estate taxpayers represents $400,000,000 worth of real estate, according to its own declaration, which means at most $2,500,000 in taxes.

"A total of $168,500,000 in taxes for the two years has not been paid by property owners affiliated with that association. They haven't paid because they can't, and you have proposed nothing for their aid. Other wealth than real estate must pay taxes if the owners of homes are to be aided."

Hodes Tilts with Nelson.

"Why haven't you named any personal property tax dodgers?" asked Ald. Nelson.

"I have," shot back Hodes. "I named several to the state tax commission last December, but I do not criticise them, because everybody is dodging his personal property taxes—probably some of us aldermen in this very room."

The plan of Ald. Waller will probably be considered again, it was predicted, after the aldermen think it over. His plan is to issue bonds to pay tax anticipation warrants which the taxes will not pay. This, it is estimated, would require about a third of the bond issue required under the Quinn plan.

Injunction Hearing Deferred.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan deferred until next Monday the request yesterday of 3,000 property owners for a temporary injunction prohibiting the sale of their real estate for the 1929 taxes. Ferre C. Watkins represented the taxpayers. Attorney Thomas D. Nash for the county collector and Louis E. Geiman of the state's attorney's office were on the other side.

Nash pleaded that the bill for injunction attacked the validity of the real estate assessments with which the collector had nothing to do. He suggested that Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington for the board of assessors and Attorney Roy Massena for the board of review be called upon to defend the assessment and tax [illegible] because those boards determined what the taxes shall be.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT FAILS.

Ralph Dailin, 56 years old, missed his mark yesterday when he attempted to shoot himself in his head in his home at 250 West 73d street. He was found in the bathroom by his wife with a slight flesh wound in his head.

TREASURY SEES UPTURN SOON AS HARVEST COMES

Optimistic as Deficit Hits Billion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Better business conditions in the fall were predicted today by officials of two cabinet departments as the treasury deficit for the current fiscal year topped the billion dollar mark for the first time today.

WILLIAM N. DOAK. [Harris and Ewing Photo.]

Treasury officials based their optimism on the belief that the late summer would see a general improvement in agriculture which would be reflected in better all around economic conditions. Secretary of Labor Doak informed President Hoover that employment conditions in May were slightly better than in April, which in turn had shown an improvement over March. Officials of both departments said there is reason to believe an upward trend in business is due to come in the late summer or fall.

Watch Crop Season Reaction.

The period of crop maturity of 1931 was held out as a hopeful period for improvement. Even though prices for farm products may be low, it was pointed out at the treasury, good crops will stimulate not only the farmer's buying power but his confidence in the future. This better buying power will be helpful to the small town tradesmen, the improvement gradually reaching outward until the producer feels the result.

In virtually all depressions of the past, said an official whose experience in the observation of business cycles began with the great panic which started in 1873, the upgrade trend has occurred during a crop maturity season. Frequently this upgrade is not immediately observed. It was pointed out that in the early autumn of 1879 there began to be signs of a breaking up of the protracted sag in business of that period, although unmistakable signs of improvement were not so evident until in 1880, despite the fact that was a campaign year.

Improvement May Be Under Way.

Officials said that even now the fundamentals underlying the general business situation may have begun to improve. It was recalled by a high treasury official that the current depression was not recognized here as an actuality until six months after business began to lag. In view of the fact that the depression developed gradually, officials expect recovery may take a considerable period.

Treasury officials expressed the belief that business will go no lower, although no big improvement should be looked for during the summer months.

They said that while some other factors were held to be favorable, including some substantial orders obtained by big producers, the real hope for improvement lay in the improvement of agricultural conditions with the maturity of crops. It was said that developments from the crop maturity until early in 1932 will determine whether the depression is at an end.

Won't Discuss Financial Plans.

Officials would not comment today regarding the government's financial plans for raising money to meet the large deficit with which the treasury will close the current fiscal year. There were some indications that the treasury might announce a large long term bonding issue in the near future, but reports of this nature went without official confirmation.

The treasury statement showed that on May 26 the government had a deficit of $1,000,792,430.

Ordinary government receipts from July 1 through May 26 amounted to $2,792,571,800, a decline of 560 million dollars from the same period of the 1930 fiscal year, while expenditures amounted to $3,793,363,300, an increase of 236 million dollars. It now appears that the estimate of total expenditures announced by President Hoover some time ago—$4,435,000,000—will be approximately correct.

ASK HOOVER TO CALL CO-ORDINATING TAX SYSTEM CONFERENCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Tax officials from three states today urged President Hoover to call a conference of federal and state officials to study the problem of bringing about better coördination of government and local taxing systems.

H. S. Hicks, clerk for the Illinois tax commission, was one of the three tax officials. The others were Mark Graves, tax commissioner of New York, and Henry Long, tax commissioner of Massachusetts.

On leaving the White House, the tax officials said that President Hoover sympathised with their desire to effect better coördination between taxing units, but gave no indication that he would call a conference.

"We suggested to President Hoover," stated Commissioner Graves, "that state and federal revenue systems ought to be better coördinated. We told him that heretofore congress has planned federal finances without much reference to what the various states were doing and each of the states planning its own revenue system without much reference to what the federal government was doing along that line.

"It seemed to us—at least—that the time has come when there ought to be a little better aggregate planning. We, therefore, suggested that a conference of federal and state officials regarding the raising of taxes would be a good idea. We have not, however, proceeded far enough to suggest any definite lines for such a conference.

"In a case where one state passes a tax law which is not in effect in other states, it naturally works a hardship, and it would therefore seem more advantageous to have uniform tax laws.

"This could not be done by legislation, but it is my opinion that a meeting of tax experts representing the various states could undoubtedly work out a better situation."

CITY WILL GET $2,000,000 TO PAY EMPLOYES

Two million dollars with which to meet the city pay rolls will be available next week as the result of action taken by the Commonwealth Edison company yesterday. The company will advance the money to the city on compensation due under the franchise ordinance although payments are not due until late in June.

City Controller M. S. Szymczak declared that city employés, including policemen and firemen, who have been waiting since May 16 for their salaries, will probably be paid next Monday or Tuesday. However, their salaries for the last half of May will then be due and only one-fourth of the $2,000,000 will be left to meet this pay roll.

The city now owes its employés $1,491,413. The remainder of the $2,000,000 will be held to meet other pay roll needs.

"No statement can be made at this time as to when funds for pay roll expenses will be available after today," said the controller. "It will be impossible to tell that until the 1931 tax warrants are salable and the sale of the warrants depends upon legislative action."

The controller sent a letetr to County Treasurer McDonough complimenting him on the fast remittance of the city's share of the taxes. The letter declared that at this date in 1930 only $47,000,000 had been turned over to the city while $65,000,000 has now been sent to the city by the county treasurer.

Thomas Sheehan Named Fire Department Attorney

Corporation Counsel Busch yesterday announced the appointment of Thomas J. Sheehan, 33 North La Salle street, as city fire attorney. For ten years Attorney Sheehan was chief clerk and chief examiner for the Cook county civil service commission and under Mayor Dever was an assistant corporation counsel assigned to the zoning board.

U. S. LENDS 400,000 FARMERS $47,000,000 FOR DROUGHT RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—More than $47,000,000 of the combined drought relief appropriations of $57,000,000 made available for aid to individual farmers had been loaned up to last Tuesday, the last day for which totals were available, it was learned at the department of agriculture today. The money has been distributed to about 400,000 farmers.

The rehabilitation of Arkansas has caused the accumulation of heavy debts to the federal government, the figures revealed. Individuals in that state alone received $7,630,000 from the feed and seed loan appropriation and $1,612,000 from the rehabilitation funds, or a total of $9,292,000.

The Arkansas loans were made through the Memphis office of the department of agriculture, which approved a total of 179,546 loans totaling $22,049,000.

Another large center of distribution was the St. Louis office, where loans numbering 95,441, for a total of $9,412,000, were made. The local headquarters of the department passed on 72,817 loans with a value of $9,229,000.

Indian Joe Huszar to Come Back in Irons

Sergt. Harry Larson, investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, left yesterday for Pueblo, Colo., with orders to bring Indian Joe Huszer, terror of the western roads as chief of police and later constable of Broadview, back to Chicago in leg irons and handcuffs. Huszar is under sentence of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary for assault to kill as result of his notorious operation of a speed trap on Roosevelt road outside of the city limits.

MUSSOLINI CALLS HALT ON ATTACKS AGAINST CHURCH

Opens Negotiations with Vatican to End Row.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 28.—Disorders continued in Rome today in connection with the dispute which is going on between Fascism and the Vatican over the Catholic organization Azione Catolica and its membership and activities. Several arrests were made of persons who indulged in arguments and fisticuffs in public places, and there was much scurrying about of policemen.

Both the Fascists and Catholics today indicated that the first act of the incident has been played, and second act will now commence. This act will consist of diplomatic exchanges, and will likely end in the resignation of several leaders of Azione Cattolica who have aroused the Fascists' ire. Word has already been passed to the press to moderate its abusive language.

Last night some of the Fascists lost their heads. In the heat of the general frolic, which they were staging as a demonstration against the Azione Cattolica, one gang went to the offices of the Civilta Cattolica, a Jesuit magazine published in Via Repetta. They broke in and threw a lot of books out of the windows into the street and set them on fire. They also tore down a portrait of Pope Pius XI. and threw it out into the street.

It was this incident which decided the authorities today that things had gone far enough, so a halt was called by Premier Mussolini on the rough-neck activities.

Refuting charges presented two days ago that the Azione Cattolica leaders had held a secret meeting, in which speeches were made urging an organization of the Catholics so Azione Cattolica would be ready to take over power in case of an emergency, Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, tonight printed reports of the speeches in question, showing that nothing on the subject had ever been said.

Expect Affair to Be Hushed Up.

Vatican circles state that reports that the cardinal secretary of state was about to resign are only a part of the campaign against Azione Cattolica.

The Vatican considers that the insults against the pope during the incidents of the last two or three days are a violation of the concordat with the Italian government, which recognizes the person of the pope as sacred and inviolable, the same as the king.

Most observers consider that the whole affair will shortly be hushed up and that the Fascist purpose of getting rid of several leaders of Azione Cattolica, whom they believe to be working for the reestablishment of the old popular Catholic party, will be accomplished.

Count de Vecchi, Italian ambassador to the Vatican, and Borgoncini Duca, papal nuncio to Italy, held a conference tonight, at which some such settlement was apparently gotten under way.

Col. Randolph Tells East Chicago Is Smashing Crime

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28.—[Special.]—Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, told the business leaders of Philadelphia today that Chicago has turned over a new leaf in civic affairs and that its law enforcement agencies, as never before, are coöperating to smash organized crime.

COL. ROBERT I. RANDOLPH. [J. H. Coquitte Photo.]

"The house cleaning we started a little over a year ago has been effective and Chicago is more nearly clean than any other metropolitan center I know about," Col. Randolph asserted in an address before the Philadelphia Association of Commerce.

Under the lash of a reawakened public conscience, the police, prosecutors, courts, and quasi-public agencies of law enforcement have made unprecedented inroads into the strongholds of the underworld, the Chicago business official stated. He especially commended the success of United States District Attorney Johnson for his income tax prosecutions and State's Attorney Swanson for his drive on racketeers, kidnapers, and arson and bombing gangs.

Blames Dry Law for Crime.

Much depends, said Col. Randolph, upon the new city administration, which is in the handr of Mayor Cermak, "a man of experience and ability." He declared that the citizens of Chicago are confident that his administration will straighten out the city's muddled finances and establish a degree of law and order that is as good as any other city in America.

Col. Randolph laid the blame for Chicago's troubles largely upon the prohibition law, which he said has poured a stream of gold into the underworld and made wealthy crime barons out of cheap bootleggers.

The speaker frankly stated at the outset of his address that there has been some justification for Chicago's bad reputation, but he contended that it has been exaggerated by hostile newspapers in other cities.

Cites Conditions in U. S. Capital.

"I am not defending our reputation by pointing an accusing finger at another blacker one, but I do insist that many hypocrites, cities and people, have been distracting attention from themselves by pointing the finger at us for a long time.

"Even Washington, the national capital, suffers from the blight. The bootlegger plies his trade in the shadow of the White House and the Wickersham commission solemnly gives its opinion that 'there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement of the law.'

"There they recently tore down the old central market on Pennsylvania avenue. The result was a plague of rats, that has spread all over the city. Of course, the rats were there all the time. They fattened on the toll they took from the public market, and no effort was made to exterminate them. There is a parallel there to the criminal gangs that are fattening and daily growing bolder on the public market for alcoholic liquors. They can't be driven out until that institution is torn down."

Calls Capone Social Outcast.

Col. Randolph described Al Capone as an "ephemeral bugaboo, upon which much of the bad reputation of Chicago is embroidered." Capone, despite his wealth, he said, is an outcast, "a harried, hounded, prosecuted, persecuted, anti-social alien, permitted neither to live in peace nor depart in peace.

Referring again to the new spirit of Chicago, the speaker pointed out that many cities have started to follow Chicago's lead and are themselves "organizing decency to fight organized crime."

Hear Dialect

The days they lived in old Kentucky were recalled last night by 150 former Kentuckians, who met in the Congress hotel for a Kentucky jubilee. The affair was a joint dinner of the Kentucky Society of Chicago, the Evanston and North Shore society, South Side society, and alumni of the University of Kentucky.

There were readings in Kentucky dialect, Kentucky music, and Kentucky yarns which at least the Kentuckians believed. C. H. Gullion, president of the Chicago society, presided. Among others present were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Traylor, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Carnahan, Opie Read, Mrs. W. A. Pusey, Mrs. E. J. Buffington.

The Chicago society was formed seven years ago with former Gov. Edwin P. Morrow as the first president.

LITTLE HOOVERS DEPART TODAY FOR CALIFORNIA

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—A large bag of peppermint candy caused President Hoover today to make an extra trip to his executive office.

After once going to the White House, he returned late today to get the candy which he had obtained for a gift to his three grandchildren, who are leaving tomorrow for California.

President Hoover spent considerable time tonight with his grandchildren and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. They are scheduled to leave tomorrow about the same time the President departs for his Memorial day speech at Valley Forge. They will spend the summer at the President's Palo Alto home.

IOWA ILLITERACY LOWEST OF 33 STATES TABBED

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—Iowa holds the low illiteracy record among the 33 states for which census returns now are available.

Despite low figures turned in for other states, the Iowa mark of 0.8 per cent illiterates successfully has withstood competition.

The national advisory committee on illiteracy announced today that only 15,879 Iowans above 10 years of age could not read and write. Of these 777 were Negroes, 5,932 foreign born whites, and 8,177 native whites.

PRISON REPORT UNDER FIRE IN HOUSE DEBATE

All but Two Finally Vote to Approve It.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—[Special.]—Two hours' time was consumed in the house of representatives today as the result of a bitter attack on the report of the prison investigating committee by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago]. He described it as "the most asinine and foolish report" that could have been made, but in the end voted that it be approved in a record roll call, which registered all but two members in the "ayes" column. These two voted "present."

Schnackenberg's chief plaint was that the committee was guilty of mollycoddling convicts at Joliet and Stateville penitentiaries and that the character of the hearings "seemed to be such that rioting was encouraged rather than discouraged."

Attack Proves Surprise.

His attack was surprising, inasmuch as he is classed as a Republican leader of some power and by his charges was reflecting upon his close colleague, Representative Roger F. Little [Rep., Champaign], Gov. Emmerson's floor leader and chairman of the committee. Little and the other members replied vigorously to his charges.

From the Democratic side came a hot retort from Rep. M. E. Bray of Litchfield.

"The trouble with you," he told Schnackenberg, "is that you've been trying to get on the front page all session and you were displeased that you weren't chairman of this committee."

Bitter remarks were made by M. L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], the minority leader, and by Harry M. McCaskrin [Rep., Rock Island]. Little and William G. Thon [Rep., Chicago] took the stand of the righteously indignant and defended their report in highly audible voices. At the conclusion one member remarked that the echoes from the six addresses would still be rebounding about the chamber when the house convenes again Tuesday.

Says Convicts "Pampered."

"I want to say one word in behalf of those people in Illinois who believe there is too much pampering of convicts," Schnackenberg began. "The public is astounded at the treatment accorded these criminals by allowing them to testify before the committee. The report given to the house is the most asinine and foolish that could have been returned.

"The report says that the shooting of three convicts on Feb. 22, when they escaped over the walls, was 'unnecessary and could have been avoided,' yet it adds that the guards who did the shooting were simply obeying orders. It doesn't say who should be criticized."

Mr. Schnackenberg then recounted his version of this so-called "massacre" and ended with a plea for commendation of the guards participating in it.

The criticism of the report was "unwarranted and in bad taste," Mr. Little replied. "The committee did not provoke the riots; if it hadn't talked to prisoners it would have been criticized.

STATE COMMISSION TO SURVEY PRISONS CREATED BY HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—Creation of a legislative commission to make a study and survey of punishment to be imposed upon persons convicted of crime and of the parole system of the state with a view of reducing prison populations was voted by the house of representatives today.

The bill, which was introduced in the senate by Richard Barr of Joliet, was sent to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson for his signature by a vote of 78 to 13 after a bitter debate in which a number of members opposed the appropriation of $25,000 for the work of the commission.

An appeal for passage of the bill was made by Minority Leader Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, who said that some means of reducing prison populations must be found. He pointed to present crowded conditions of Illinois prisons and to the increasing number of criminals each year as reasons for the survey.

If the bill is signed by Gov. Emmerson, the commission consisting of the president and four members of the senate and four members of the house, will start work at once. The group will pay particular attention to the value of suspended sentences, probation, terms of sentence, and proper administration of parole.

THE BUSY BEE KEEPS THE HUMAN RACE BUSY, TOO

New York, May 28.—(AP)—Thousands of Mrs. Olive Liebert's bees went on a tour at Avenue C and East Fourth street, Brooklyn today.

It got so that people couldn't walk around the neighborhood without bumping into a bee with painful consequences. Patrolman John Cronin was stung; a horse cavorted as a coterie of bees lit upon him here and there, and four workers in a manhole couldn't get out on account of all the bees looking for places to alight.

The bees were finally induced to swarm into a tree and the danger was over.

Mr. Cronin went to Mrs. Liebert and served her with a summons for maintaining a nuisance. She said she had kept bees for 16 years and they were not a nuisance.

"They were good for 90 pounds of honey a year," she protested.

"It is not the honey that concerns the law," said Mr. Cronin.

Bees Delay Firemen.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—Bees proved more troublesome than flames today to volunteer fire fighters of Silver Springs, a Washington suburb. Speeding to a fire, the truck of volunteers met a bee swarm. The bees stung, the truck stopped, and the firemen fought. When with swollen faces they reached the fire they found it under control with damage slight.

Mexico Bars Singing of Anthem in Barber Shops

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—(AP)—Disrespect for the Mexican flag would be punishable by imprisonment for from six months to four years under a penal code drawn up by a government commission for promulgation soon. The code also provides imprisonment of from three days to a year or a fine of from $12 to $500 for persons guilty of making improper use of the national anthem. This is intended to put a stop to the playing of the hymn in barber shops and music halls.

Emmerson Vetoes Bill for Cuban War Memorial

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson vetoed two bills today—one to appropriate $50,000 for a memorial in Cuba to the Spanish war dead and the other an appropriation of $363,000 for the construction of new buildings at the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Quincy. Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] introduced the first and Representative H. D. Sullivan [Dem., Quincy] the second.

TWO ARE KILLED IN MINE BLAST NEAR DUQUOIN

Duquoin, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—Two miners were killed by a gas explosion late tonight in the mine of the Union Colliery company at Dowell, five miles south of here. Another miner was overcome, but is expected to recover. Seventy others escaped uninjured.

The dead are Edward Eaton, 40, and Dossey Mathis, 38, both of Duquoin. Eaton's body was brought to the surface, but Mathis' was pinned beneath a motor used to haul out coal, and extra workmen were sent into the mine to recover it.

Lycurgus Rees of Elkville was overcome and taken to a hospital here.

Officials of the mine said the explosion probably was caused by sparks from an electrical motor igniting the gas.

CITY TO TRANSFER MICHIGAN AVE. TO SOUTH PARK

Another saving to the city, which will approximate $50,000 a year, was reported yesterday by Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch in a letter to Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee.

Mr. Busch declared that there now exists no reason why the city should not allow the south park commissioners to assume control over that stretch of Michigan avenue lying between Randolph street and the north end of the link bridge. Pending litigation in the past held up the transfer.

With the transfer, to which the commissioners have agreed, the city will be relieved of the necessity of paying for traffic lights and policemen on the boulevard.

SLAVE LABOR IN THE MODERN WORLD.

When the accomplishments of the soviet five year plan are analyzed it is found that the Russians have been successful in increasing the production of wheat and petroleum. The output of wheat this year will probably equal the average output of pre-war years and may well surpass it by a considerable margin. The output of oil, according to Mr. Wales, has already reached the goal set in the five year plan. To these two commodities perhaps two others, lumber and cotton, might be added.

On the other hand, there have been notable failures in other directions. In producing coal, automobiles, tractors, other farm machinery, and machine products of many sorts, in railroad building and maintenance, in various branches of the construction industry, the failures have been outstanding.

The contrast is striking and it can readily be explained. The soviets have succeeded in the fields in which slave labor would be expected to produce fairly satisfactory results. The characteristic successes of slave labor are in industries in which tasks are simple and constant supervision of every worker is possible. Accordingly, no reliance need be placed upon the skill and conscientiousness of the individual workman. His effort is exacted by the threat of punishment. In the antebellum south the lash was used; in contemporary Russia the somewhat more refined cruelty of starvation and exile serve the same purpose.

Large-scale wheat farming as practiced in Russia is at least as adaptable to a slave economy as was cotton growing in the old south. The tasks are for the most part extremely simple. With modern American machinery such as the soviets are using the operations are almost automatic. The only point at which the system is in danger of breaking down is in the upkeep of the machinery, and here the evidence indicates that the soviets have failed lamentably. The care of machinery does require intelligent and conscientious attention which a slave system has never and can never expect to achieve.

What is true of the growing of wheat is true to equal measure of the cutting of forests, the growing of cotton and, with some exceptions, of the drilling of oil wells. The contrast appears in such industries as stock raising. Here the soviets have done badly because animal husbandry calls for intelligence, skill, and that peculiar kind of watchfulness which comes with ownership. That, incidentally, is why "The Lord is my Shepherd" is so powerful a metaphor. A forced laborer is worse than useless at such critical times as the lambing season, when, without the greatest care, many of the ewes and lambs may be lost.

The failure of the soviet system in animal husbandry is paralleled by its failure in machine industry, and for much the same reasons. It is often said that the machine tender is a mere robot, an automaton. If that were true, the soviets would not be discarding 80 per cent of their heavy castings as defective and their tractors sold at $6,000 would not cost $36,000 to build. The fact is that the greater productivity of modern machinery has created a greater demand for character in workmen than previous economic systems knew anything about. Failure to oil a bearing can shut down a machine costing $100,000, necessitate expensive repairs, destroy production schedules, and thereby destroy profits. The horseshoe nail that cost a kingdom is an old story and it applies with greater force today than it ever did before in the history of mankind. Modern industry presents millions of opportunities for disaster from the neglect of minor details. In all but its simplest and crudest processes, like the growing of wheat, modern industry, therefore, must have free labor.

MORE LAW FOR MOTORISTS.

Proposed legislation requiring the licensing of all automobile drivers has deservedly influential backing, notably that of the Chicago Motor club. There is no question of its motive nor of the careful consideration that has been given it by its proponents. There is no question that conditions demand every practical correction we can contrive. The accident and fatality rates are deplorably high and the toll they exact unnecessary.

Nevertheless, too much should not be expected from the licensing of drivers. There are many regulations and legal restraints upon reckless or incompetent driving already in the laws. They are so largely ineffectual because of nonenforcement by authority and disobedience or neglect by drivers. Both are everywhere and always to be observed on the highways. Licensing will provide a new check so far as it is faithfully administered, but will also invite, as other regulations do, the profitable evasion of its rules. We should not care to predict how much effectual restraint upon bad driving will be realized, but if experience with existing regulations means anything, it warns us that a licensing system will be disappointing as a corrective, at least until the morale of enforcement agencies is higher than it is at this time. Licensing will open a new opportunity for selling favors. That is one fact we can count upon.

There are two things certain in the problem of safety. One is that whatever our regulations they must be better enforced. The other, we are confident, is that the most effectual correction is the development of physical conditions which make accidents less liable—namely: the abolition of grade crossings to the greatest extent practicable and the widening and better design of thoroughfares. This will reduce the hazards produced by reckless and inefficient driving to a far greater extent than any legal penalty or restraint, even if it were strictly imposed.

HORSE RACING AND DOGS.

Dog racing, begun at the Hawthorne and Thornton tracks, was stopped by state's attorney's men under Pat Roche. Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, is attorney for the dog track promoters. He says the right of the track owners to race the dogs and permit pari-mutuel betting will be made an issue in the courts. The dog racers claim what the horse racers have.

Mr. Olson says the dog tracks have been cleared of their hoodlum associations. In the past they have had nothing else. The races have been crooked rackets operated by gangsters with the pretense that they were the poor man's substitute for the expensive sport conducted by men of wealth with state sanction and supervision. The horse crowd got legalized racing with betting by bribing the farmers with a percentage of the profits. The track license fee is $2,500 or $1,500 each racing day, conditioned on the distance of the track from Chicago. The state takes 20 cents on each ticket of admission sold, and the director of agriculture sends an inspector to each track. The racing association pays the inspector $50 a day and he is to see that the pari-mutuel operators do not take more than their legal percentage.

The money from license fees and percentages is turned into the state and county fair funds and is paid to the farmers in premiums on their exhibits. Thus the racing gentry of the city contributes cash to the rural districts which have relaxed the moral rigors sufficiently to permit it. Usually in the rural prohibition belt horse racing and betting are linked with the use of alcoholic beverages as wayward propensities of the ill affected to be suppressed by the moral rural legislator. The subsidizing of the county fairs brought the virtuous to a more tolerant view of the sport.

In the debate on a pending bill to prohibit pari-mutuel betting—one of the familiar incidents of legislative behavior—Representative Doyle of Decatur, opposing the proposal, said the profit to the fairs in the last two years' racing had been $1,506,243, expended "to promote the agricultural interests and for the 4-H clubs. Why stop this revenue?"

The horse racing has furnished amusement and an exciting game for the crowds which like it and has been managed without scandal or notorious offense to public order. The fiction that it is valuable to the breeding of useful animals isn't overplayed these days when the average man gets his motive power at a filling station. Horse racing accepts the fact that people like to gamble. The dog races play on the same instinct, and their promoters ask for the same privileges. The law, which in this respect may be no good, says that betting is legal only at the licensed horse races out of which the county fairs and the state fair take their bit, and if that is a glorious injustice the dogs may make the most of it. The chasing of a mechanical rabbit can't be called sport. The promoters in the past have qualified as public nuisances and the right of the poor man to be gypped by fixed races has been abridged.

The citizen who can take an afternoon off may go to a licensed horse track and leave his bank roll there. Some of it will pay a premium on a prize winning Duroc-Jersey hog. Another citizen may not spend his evening dropping his roll at a dog track to pay a premium to a Capone gorilla. The discrimination may lack logic, but down at its roots it seems to indicate, if anything, that the hog is a more useful social animal than the gorilla, that gambling should have an expensive equipment and that it should be in the afternoon and not at night. Of these reasons the hog is the best.

THE SINEWS OF ORGANIZED CRIME.

"There never was a time in the history of America when the work of the police was so necessary. In every large city the police and prosecutors have been bewildered by a new type of crime that is able to control money running into many millions of dollars; that is organized and has a secret service of its own to get information; that is intelligently directed and whose whole function it is to get money out of violating the law; a type of crime that has developed its own methods of enforcing its decrees."

This is not the irresponsible assertion of a propagandist or muckraker. It is that of one who speaks from direct and ample knowledge and personal experience, District Attorney Johnson. It gives the gist of the problem of organized crime in America as it has developed in the years of the prohibition experiment. Illicit liquor is the source of the millions referred to and these millions are the life blood of organized criminality. Obviously the new crime situation puts a strain upon the police it never was exposed to in any such force in the past. Obviously this calls for every effort to raise and support the morale of the police, and, as Mr. Johnson points out, this requires an exceptionally strong civil service commission. But so long as the fundamental strength of organized crime remains, efforts to improve police, important as they are, can only result in a partial amelioration of conditions. Until the main sources of criminal wealth are dried up, organized crime will thrive. The only radical and sufficient method of destroying it is to adopt a practicable method of regulating the liquor traffic. The path to this necessary reform is blocked by fanaticism, and fanaticism should no longer be allowed to overrule the common sense of the nation.

ON WITH THE SLAUGHTER.

[The Peoria Transcript.]

With less than a score of working days remaining before adjournment date, June 20, the Illinois legislature must get busy and kill bills. With last week's crop of proposed statutes the introductions for this session have reached the staggering total of 1,825. Of this number only about 25 have been acted upon by both houses. It is now up to the committees to begin killing.

We hope the killing will be done quickly and with as little pain to opponents of the measures as possible. Some of the bills are what the cynics call "meat bills"—that is, they are designed to enable legislators to trade patronage for deadly votes or to [in some instances] sell their killing vote outright. This is perhaps an unavoidable evil. But it will be less an evil this year than usual. There are too many bills to be killed. Some of the death blows will have to be given for nothing.

Get the Mayors Out of the Trenches Before Christmas!

Old Hank Ford ought to charter another ship and send over to France and bring our touring mayors home. They've broken loose, American fashion, and are making speeches all over the place. One of them made a speech over a half hour long the other day at the grave of the Unknown Soldier, where no speeches were ever made before, France thinking silence the greatest tribute that could be paid its hero. As soon as they find out about Napoleon they're liable to burst right into his tomb and make six speeches interspersed with the chorus of "Over There" or "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

And they'll probably assure the French that the war debt will be canceled as soon as they get home and to run along and forget about it. They're liable to stage a big party in Notre Dame and tell the president of France that his feet aren't mates or to jump in the ocean and keep going 'til his hat floats, or something like that, and bring on another war. When our army was in France we had it more or less in control, but the mayors have broken loose and we ought to get 'em back home. And besides, from press reports, they're drinking up all the champagne, and what will our tourists do this summer?

EFFICIENCY.

"And, speaking of efficiency,"
Said Elmer at the Rotary,
"Did any of you ever think
How many tubs and tubs of ink,
That might be used quite otherwise,
We waste in dotting little i's?

"And is there any reason why,
I ask you, we should dot an i?
The big I, which I much prefer,
Myself—it's so much statelier—
Demands no dot; it stands alone,
Like lofty obelisk of stone.

"The dots that have been placed on i's,
Laid end to end would, I surmise,
Form one long, luring dotted line
That all our mortgagees might sign,
Or, used as periods, thus (.), avail
To halt how many a witless tale!

"O, let us, then, throw off our fetters,
Treat little i like other letters;
Defy tradition, utilize
Our time at golf, or making pies,
Or piecing quilts, or swatting flies,
Instead of dotting little i's."

You Never Can Tell These Days.

RHL: Horace Hodderpool holds the record for being lost in all the minor and major league towns of the country. Horace, as you have already guessed, is a country boy reared and educated on the handle of a plow. His father, a fine and thoughtful character, owned one of the first gang plows, but Horace, strange as it may seem, was an only child. At the tender age of twelve Horace threw a fast breaking outcurve with an early Ohio potato into old man Button's bay window. The next day he settled on a cash basis for a dollar seventy and a nickel's worth of putty, and signed up to hurl for the township baseball team. From that day Horace Hodderpool's enthusiasm for the game developed, and now we find him one of the greatest out of town baseball fans that ever left a cow unmilked. Until the present baseball season Horace Hodderpool has managed to defeat the confusion the city held for him by joining the first line of waiting people he came upon in the general direction of the ball park. This season, however, all is changed, and Horace Hodderpool is unhappy. He is unhappy because he is never quite sure, when he takes his place in line, whether he is a block and a half from the gate of the baseball park or nine blocks from an office that has advertised for a man to wheel out ashes.

BREAKING THE DRUG HABIT.

DR. ALEX LAMBERT gives the following as the best method to get a morphine addict away from his habit. This is the conclusion of a long, careful and extensive study made by the mayor's commission of New York City.

First, they find out the daily dose of morphine used by the addict. They then cut this off by gradual reduction extending over a ten day period. Let us say he was taking ten grains daily. They give nine grains the first day, eight the second, and one grain less each day until the drug has been withdrawn. On the second day of treatment they give one-half grain of codein every four hours to quiet the withdrawal symptoms.

The dose of codein on the second day of its use is one grain every four hours. After that, the dose of codein is increased one grain until it reaches five grains. From then on, five grains is given every four hours. This is continued until three days after the last dose of morphine was given. Then begins the process of getting rid of the codein by a method of reduction or tapering off. By the end of three to seven days the dose of codein is reduced to the vanishing point. It is then stopped.

During the treatment laxatives are given if necessary, and there may be some treatment to meet the symptoms. This treatment requires about three weeks from the time when the first reduction began in the dose of morphine to the time when no more codein is given. There should be very little restlessness and no pain and few of the other symptoms of withdrawal.

There then comes the problem of building up the patient's appetite and strength and increasing his weight. Subsequent to that comes the far more difficult and serious problem of building up character and stamina. Most addicts are such because they have what is called inadequate personalities. Some of them have developed positive vices, largely because they needed money or had other difficult situations to meet. To cure a man of his habit by stopping his drug and cleaning his system of the dregs and then stopping is generally not worth while. A little later he is back where you found him. A follow-up to build character is difficult, time consuming, and may be disappointing.

DEVELOPING OF CHEST.

L. A. writes:

1. I am a girl 20 years of age, and I was told because my chest was not very developed that I would probably have tuberculosis some day. Is that true?
2. Is there any way in which I could develop my chest?

REPLY.

1. There is some proof that a person with a badly developed chest resists consumption poorly.
2. Yes, by rowing, swimming, carrying weights on the head.

2. What is the treatment?
3. Is burning warts all right?
4. How may I prevent two young warts from growing? What about spirits of camphor?
5. Is it possible to get poison ivy in winter?
6. Is there anything to prevent poison ivy? A doctor's helper told me to eat a few leaves in the spring to prevent poison ivy.
7. Do you think it would be safe to eat the ivy?

REPLY.

1. Among the causes are: Venereal disease, cancer, age, weather, occupation.
2. Depends on the kind and location.
3. It is for most warts.
4. Repeated applications have been known to cure.
5. Yes, by wearing gloves, shoes, and other poisoned garments.
6. No, except avoiding exposure.
7. No.

LOANS.

Oak Park, May 20.—[Legal friend of the People.]—Being in need of cash, I foolishly used my auto as collateral for a loan from a finance company. I received $250 from them, after their assurance that the rate I would have to pay for the loan was only 7 per cent. A few days later I received their booklet with the coupons that I was to use with my payments. It contained information that I was to make 12 payments starting at $27.26 a month and graduating to $28.99 the twelfth month, making a total of $337.50. The percentage thus figures about 33 1-3 per cent. Isn't this rather high? B. P.

It does not seem probable that they let you have the money without your first signing some sort of an agreement. If the coupon booklet was inconsistent with such agreement, then you could take the position that the original agreement would control. The maximum that can be stipulated for by contract is 7 per cent per annum in ordinary cases. In absence of agreement as to interest 5 per cent is allowed after due on notes or other instruments in writing; on money lent; on accounts settled; on money received to use of another and retained without owner's knowledge; on money withheld by an unreasonable and vexatious delay, and on judgments. Pawnbrokers may charge 3 per cent per month, and licensees of state board of trade and commerce may charge 3½ per cent per month on loans of $300 or less. An agreement to pay more than the legal rate is usurious and only the principal can be collected. Under 1929 statute the 7 per cent limit does not apply to collateral loans exceeding $5,000.

COLLECTING FROM ESTATE.

Chicago, May 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — Six months ago my mother died, leaving a will which gives my sister and myself equal shares on all money and personal property. My share of the money was left in equity in a mortgage in my sister's home. The will has not been settled yet. 1. Can I get hold of the whole amount of cash I am entitled to if I demand it? 2. Do I collect interest from the date of my mother's death or must I wait until the will is settled? 3. Can my brothers, who were left only $5 each, collect one-fourth of the estate as they claim they can? 4. Who must take steps in having the will settled or probated, as it is now in the hands of the real estate man who wrote it?

J. A. M.

1. Ordinarily, distribution cannot be forced until after the expiration of one year.
2. If the executor is collecting interest he should account for it to you.
3. Not unless they can set aside the will on some such ground as undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.
4. Presumably the executor named in the will.

BERLIN.—It is understood that Germany's reply to the American note concerning Germany's submarine warfare, which will be delivered to the American ambassador tomorrow, will be furnished to the German press for publication on Sunday. The answer, in substance, will embody a proposal to the United States to defer definite consideration of Germany's submarine policy and President Wilson's demands until the two governments have had an opportunity to establish just what sort of a vessel was sunk—a peaceful merchantman or an auxiliary cruiser.

ROME.—The Austrians, fearing an Italian occupation, have evacuated Trieste. The troops have concentrated in the hills, the railroad has been cut off and the city is undefended.

LIVERPOOL.—The American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed, investigation by Lieutenant Commander Towers and Naval Constructor McBridge of the American embassy disclosed. They produced evidence showing that the injury to the Nebraskan was from a torpedo and not from a mine.

WASHINGTON.—Aroused by the spread of anarchy and hunger in Mexico and by the continuing murders of Americans, President Wilson has decided that the United States must stand ready to intervene with force if necessary to relieve and pacify the revolution ridden country.

BERLIN.—A reverse at the hands of the Russians in the fighting along the River San, in central Galicia, is announced in a statement from the war office. It is said the Germans in the region of Sieniawa, on the left bank of the river, were forced back and lost six cannon.

LONDON.—The Daily Chronicle's Rome correspondent states that the Austrians are in full retreat along the whole of their defensive line, burning houses, stores, crops and forage and destroying roads and bridges—in fact, laying waste entire provinces.

CHICAGO.—Plans for "model tenements" or any other kind of tenements in Chicago are denounced by Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation Army, who is here on his annual inspection tour. He sees no good in towering apartment buildings, but looks upon them as a menace to home life and decent living.

BERLIN. — St. Petersburg dispatches say that Dr. Hendrik Muller and Dr. Leyds, representing the Boer republics, have appealed formally to the Hague arbitration board, promising to abide by its decisions on issues involved in the South African war.

CHICAGO. — The train carrying President and Mrs. McKinley and their party on the return from their western tour passed through Chicago at 3 o'clock this morning. The train has been traveling at a little more than half speed on the trip because of the illness of Mrs. McKinley. Reports were that she was bearing up well and seemed little the worse for the long journey from the coast.

HAVANA.—The constitutional convention, by a vote of 15 to 14, accepted the Platt amendment fixing Cuba's relations with the United States.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Gens. Joe Wheeler, Fitzhugh Lee, and John B. Gordon were the notable figures at the opening session of the confederate veterans' convention, which was presided over by Gen. George W. BOSTON.—The mysteries of Christian Science—its inception, development, growth, and, in a word, the inside story of a most remarkable movement—probably will become an open book in the course of the trial of the libel suit of Mrs. Josephine Curtis Woodbury against Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy. Mrs. Woodbury once was one of Mrs. Eddy's intimate friends and co-workers. She seeks $150,000 damages.

SARATOGA, N. Y.—Ransom Cook, one of the oldest residents and a prominent inventor, died in his 87th year. His most famous invention was Cook's auger, and he was also the patentee of the Armstrong cannon, which he tried to induce the United States to adopt without avail. An Englishman who obtained a copy of his plans adopted the invention as his own and made a fortune by the sale of h' alleged patents to several governments.

NEW YORK.—The Evening Post opposes the plan for the improvement of the Illinois and Michigan canal at government expense and the perfecting thereby of a ship navigable stream between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi. Consequently that sheet, which is now under the control of Horace White, Carl Schurz, and others, takes occasion to antagonize the movement for a canal from Hennepin to Rock Island. The paper designates the old Illinois-Michigan canal as a sewer for the city of Chicago.

AFTER PROHIBITION—WHAT?

Chicago, May 22.—A few days ago the writer had occasion to listen to some dire predictions for THE TRIBUNE.

In an Oak Park "L," at a certain station in Oak Park, a very pompous looking individual came in and deposited numerous suitcases, brief cases, umbrellas, and coats over a large area of seats. He proceeded to announce that he was a dry in loud language. The paraphernalia which he deposited on the seats remained there throughout his trip to the loop. His loud conversation was with a tall but meek looking individual such as you find at the head of church boards.

The loud mouthed individual told just how THE TRIBUNE was to be put out of business. He spoke of the energetic work of the Anti-Saloon league in congress which would soon result in THE TRIBUNE being put out of business through a special gag law which operates on the basis of sedition.

He said, "Why, THE TRIBUNE has constantly told its readers to disregard the prohibition law—this in itself constitutes sedition." He further said, "One of these days when they all go to work they will find a large placard over the front door—'closed by action of the United States government for seditious utterances.'"

This same individual told how he had seventy-five speeches ahead of him in prominent churches, and later added after a quiet question from his listener, "O, yes, I make them pay for it."

These things would be amusing if it were not for the fact that these rabid folks actually do put over a great many of their attempts.

I am against prohibition, but not because I drink. Personally I would not give a nickel for a carload of booze, so I have no ax to grind. As I sat in that Oak Park "L" and listened to this fellow talk I thought—"After prohibition, what?"

To me that is the real question. What other prohibitions are to follow?

H. E. DAVIES.

THE TAX TANGLE.

Chicago, May 23.—Those who follow the discussion of the Chicago tax tangle must be interested in two or three of the points developed up to this time.

First: None of the suggested improvements, not even all of them together, is adequate to meet the difficulties of Chicago.

Second: Our leading citizens seem still to be thinking in terms of more bond issues, though the facts clearly demonstrate that more bond issues would only make the situation worse.

Third: No progress seems to have been made in securing help from the legislature.

Here is my suggestion. Though not pleasant, it is at least adequate. Give up further additions to taxes, but license every business in Chicago on a fee of one per cent of its gross income, payable monthly to the city collector. The necessary bill is pending. Raise in this way all the revenue needed for the city, schools, improvements, etc., say $200,000,000 per year. Let all real estate taxes go to the county and state.

No plan for economy of the city government has yet been suggested that will meet the needs of the situation. It would be folly to cripple the fire, police, and administrative departments. If, however, the schools were closed for two years, with no salaries and no expenses, that would save a sum sufficient to enable the city to restore its credit and get on its feet while the new plan is getting into full operation.

CALVIN DICKEY.

THANK YOU.

Racine, Wis., May 24.—I've just read your editorial, "What America Needs Today," in today's TRIBUNE, and cannot resist the urge to compliment and thank you for it. If we had a few more men in this country with the courage and aggressiveness of you and your organization it wouldn't take many years to make a veritable heaven on earth of this country of ours. C. RESPONDING TO A TOAST.

Chicago, May 23.—The action of Mayor Porter of Los Angeles in refusing to respond to a toast to the presidents of France and the United States, tendered by Mayor Leon of Le Havre, deserves the severest condemnation of every sane American citizen. His attitude serves strongly to demonstrate the intolerable bigotry and fanaticism behind the whole prohibition fetish.

I am a total abstainer and have been all my life, but, thank God, I have never been so narrow minded and bigoted as to make a jackass of myself on occasions such as the one related.

I recall that shortly after the armistice a banquet was given in my honor in one of the leading cities of France at which possibly two hundred of the most prominent local citizens were present as well as several well known Americans. A similar toast was proposed. All that it was necessary for me to do was to raise my glass with the others and go through the formalities of drinking the toast. It was not at all necessary to actually drink.

Mayor Porter's action should be strongly condemned by the sensible people of his own city. If he receives the treatment due him the twenty other mayors constituting the party will refuse to further recognize him as a member of their company. R. L. I.

ECHOES OF A SWINISH PAST.

AN 'ARF PINT.

Chicago, May 25.—My congratulations upon your editorial of today concerning Mayor Porter of Los Angeles. Why not offer a prize for the best suggestion of a surname for the individual? Surely it must hurt him to have to bear the name of one of England's most popular intoxicating liquors, and we ought to change it for him. GEORGE D. CHIESLM.

WILMETTE HARBOR.

Evanston, Ill., May 25.—In view of Justice Taft's vindictive decision in the Chicago drainage canal case, isn't there a little inconsistency in the government making free use of the harbor at Wilmette, built by the same drainage canal? J. F. T.

PACIFISM.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23.—It is that you should be cheered for your writing about "Pacifism Out of Bedlam." In this country we have a habit to hide our heads in the sands like the ostriches. The sickness of cancer has hurt people for centuries and it is incurable—war also is a sickness as old as mankind—and how shall some old lady men change the ways of centuries by writings and talkings and papers?

We are not mostly good stuff for soldiers. Material can be manufactured quickly, but men must take months to make. It is good that a newspaper with force will make people see that sure some day we must fight.

I hope you forgive my rather funny English. I am citizen but not long time.

THE TREND OF WAGES.

Chicago, May 25.—The writer is not holding a brief for reduction in wages and is not in sympathy with it. He would like to see a high standard of wages maintained and increased. But whether we want to look at it in this way or not, labor is just as much a commodity as wheat and the law of supply and demand is governing the price of this commodity just the same as it has governed the prices of other commodities.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Doak will find, if they do not already know it, that the law of supply and demand governs wages as well as the price of wheat.

MUDGE CHOSEN MODERATOR BY PRESBYTERIANS

Fundamentalists Fail to Show Strength.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 28.—[Special.]—The Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge of Philadelphia, for the last ten years stated clerk of the Presbyterian general assembly, was elected moderator of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. here today. The election took place at the 143d session of the general assembly of that church, which opened and will continue in session until next Wednesday.

DR. MUDGE. [Associated Press photo.]

He was elected by an overwhelming majority. Dr. Mudge, who will succeed the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr of Pittsburgh, has been the favored candidate among Presbyterian leaders for some time. While his election by acclamation had been predicted, yet last night a few old guard fundamentalists, whose party was officially pronounced dead two years ago at the St. Paul meeting of the assembly, conjured a physical resurrection by putting an opponent to Dr. Mudge in the field.

Fundamentalists Name Candidate.

Pittsburgh is the home of one of the most militant of the old line fundamentalists, the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward MacCartney, who was moderator in fundamentalism's heyday. It was first reported that Dr. MacCartney's group would name the Rev. Dr. G Campbell Morgan of Philadelphia, formerly pastor of the City temple in London, and later a fundamentalist lecturer in this country. It was stated today, however, that Dr. Morgan would not let his name be placed before the assembly.

The group then settled on the Rev. Dr. David De Forest Burrell of Williamsport. Dr. Burrell, widely noted as a conservative, was named by the Rev. Thomas L. Coyle, a young pastor of Milton, Pa. The Rev. Mr. Coyle appealed for the election of Dr. Burrell on the ground that he is a "working pastor" and not a member of the church's officialdom, who frequently are like "the bishop who would approach the ordinary person with a hearty greeting and look right over him." Dr. Mark Mathews, Seattle fundamentalist, deserted the Pittsburgh group to second Dr. Mudge's nomination.

Ignore Birth Control.

Birth control has been officially declared to be no problem for the Presbyterian church to consider. A statement which followed rather closely the recent pronouncement of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America on birth control had been incorporated in the report of the commission on marriage, divorce, and remarriage. Last night at the pre-assembly meeting of that commission threats of violent debate on the birth control sections were made and the commission decided to remove the offending section in the interest of a harmonious general assembly.

Layman Is Elected.

Montreat, N. C., May 28.—(AP)—R. A. Dunn, Charlotte banker, was elected moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States on the third ballot taken by the general assembly here late today. He is the first layman moderator since 1914 and the fifth in the seventy years' history of the church organization.

DEATH OF ONCE RICH TURFMAN HELD ACCIDENT

The death of Charles R. Ellison, 45 years old, former race horse owner reputed to have been a millionaire some years ago, was caused by accidental asphyxiation, a coroner's jury found yesterday. Ellison and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Larson, were overcome by gas in the Ellison home near Antioch on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Larson was dead when she was found and Ellison died early yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Grace Ellison, who found the two, said her husband was in the habit of putting coffee on the stove and then returning to bed. It was believed that the coffee boiled over and extinguished the flame.

Ellison, two decades ago, became known as the "blond plunger," having become a millionaire after starting as valet to a jockey. He owned a string of race horses, including Judge Himes, winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1903. He lost most of his fortune in recent years, it is said.

LUNDQUIST GETS INDIANA BANK JOB.

Evansville, Ind., May 28.—[Special.]—Laurel A. Lundquist has been named assistant trust officer of the Old National bank here, according to the announcement of Frank Wilson, vice president of the bank. Lundquist was formerly connected with the Citizens Trust and Savings bank and the Chicago State bank, both of East Chicago.

FACES REMOVAL

MAGISTRATE JEAN NORRIS.

MOVE TO FIRE WOMAN JUDGE OF NEW YORK

Seabury Charges She Altered Records.

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Removal from the bench of Magistrate Jean Norris, woman judge, was recommended this afternoon by Samuel Seabury, referee for the appellate division.

The Appellate court set June 4 for the trial of Magistrate Norris.

The report was filed by Mr. Seabury with the justices of that court, and a "show cause" order was issued later by them. This calls upon Mrs. Norris to show why she should not be dismissed on the grounds which Mr. Seabury has cited.

Guilty on Three Counts.

The official recommendation finds Mrs. Norris guilty of unjudicial conduct on three counts as a result of the testimony adduced before the referee. The first charge is that she altered court records in the case of Jean Lapin when she learned that Miss Lapin's attorney planned to appeal her conviction to the Court of Special Sessions.

The second is that she owned stock in the Equitable Casualty and Surety company at the same time that she was approving bail bonds issued by that concern.

The third is that, on a payment of $1,000, she allowed her photograph in judicial robes to be used in advertisements which lauded the health giving qualities of a brand of yeast.

Various Photostatic Exhibits.

Accompanying the report, which was a three page document, were various photostatic exhibits. One of these revealed Magistrate Norris posing in her judicial gown for a yeast advertisement.

Another batch of photostats revealed important eliminations from a transcript of testimony in the Women's court. These changes had to do with testimony given before Magistrate Norris.

"She changed the official record in many material respects to the prejudice of the defendant and to mislead the Appellate court," is Mr. Seabury's comment regarding this phase of Magistrate Norris' activities.

Seabury's Severe Comment.

Under the head of "general unfitness," Mr. Seabury makes this severe comment:

"By her severity, by her unjudicial conduct, by her callous disregard of the rights of the defendants in the Women's court, the magistrate has shown her general unfitness."

SENTENCED FOR SHOPLIFTING.

James Miller, 45 years old, of Escanaba, Mich., was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell and fined $200 and costs by Municipal Judge John J. Lupe yesterday for shoplifting in a haberdashery at 604½ North Clark street.

GAMBLING DENS AND SPEAKEASIES DOT WASHINGTON

Police Discover Sixty in One Precinct.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Confessing that 30 gambling places, the same number of speakeasies, and about 10 disorderly houses existed in Washington's first downtown precinct, and confessing further that the police had been unable to collect evidence in a legal manner, Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, precinct commander, today proposed to raid these resorts without warrants.

SENATOR WILLIAM H. KING. [Acme Photo.]

Capt. Burke announced he was merely waiting for "permission" from District Attorney Leo A. Rover to start a cleanup campaign. Mr. Rover has not yet decided whether to permit the trial of nine men arrested in four warrantless raids last Tuesday.

Capt. Burke termed warrantless raids the best, if not the only possible way to deal with the situation and said he thought that if warrants were necessary they should be granted on hearsay knowledge possessed by the police and that actual evidence should not be required.

New Criminal Mystery.

Washington police were confronted with a new criminal mystery and the belief that organized gangs are at work in the city's underworld was strengthened today with the discovery only a few blocks from the capitol of an unconscious man, evidently beaten from head to foot, lying on the sidewalk.

A patrolman found the man lying in front of a vacant house at 107 4½ street. Marks on the door of the house, which had only recently been vacated, indicated that an attempt had been made to enter. Police are working on the theory that the affair may be the result of a failing out among members of a criminal organization. Efforts to identify the victim have so far proved futile.

Congress May Investigate.

While police worked on this latest case Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], ranking minority member of the senate District of Columbia committee, predicted that unless the police department showed greater efficiency in handling the capital's crime situation the committee would be forced to conduct an inquiry when congress reconvenes next December.

"Complaints about gambling and liquor violations have come to many members of congress," he said. "Except for a slight problem in handling itinerants who travel through the city on their way north or south, the enforcement of the law in Washington ought to be easy. The population as a whole is made up of law abiding citizens. The city government is free of the partisan dealings which have ruined the governments of other cities.

"Yet, with all these advantages, Washington police do not seem to be on the alert in their handling of modern types of crime. I have wondered whether the civil service laws, which permit men living outside the city and not familiar to city ways to win places on the force are not perhaps partly to blame. I am considering the introduction of a bill to take the police out from under civil service, concentrating further power in the hands of the district commissioners and then holding them absolutely responsible."

Judge Ready to Hear Motion For Longer Kirkland Term

Valparaiso, Ind., May 28.—(AP)—Judge Grant Crumpacker tonight said that if attorneys wished to come before him to recommend a more severe sentence for Virgil Kirkland he would "give them a hearing," and added that he did not wish to commit himself in advance as to what action he would take.

The jurist said he thought at the time the penalty was mandatory and that he could use no discretion in pronouncing sentence.

Judge Crumpacker explained that papers committing Kirkland to the state reformatory were made to specify assault and battery with intent to commit a felony "advisedly, because that covered assault and battery with intent to commit rape." Kirkland was convicted under the rape clause.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 28.—[Special.]—Charges that the papers committing Virgil Kirkland to the state reformatory for one to ten years for assault in connection with the death of Arlene Draves do not conform to the verdict of the jury were made tonight by Attorney General James M. Ogden at Indianapolis.

JUDGE GRANT CRUMPACKER.

According to the attorney general, the jury convicted Kirkland on a charge of assault and battery with intent to commit rape. The commitment papers show, the attorney general says, that Kirkland is in the reformatory for assault and battery to commit a felony.

Under the Indiana law the two offenses are separable. The punishment for assault to commit a felony is one to ten years. For assault to commit a rape it is discretionary with the judge up to five to twenty-one years, the attorney general says.

Judge Insists He's Right.

The statement of Attorney General Ogden was the latest development in the conflict over the legal propriety of Kirkland's punishment. Mr. Ogden holds the one to ten year penalty was incorrect. Judge Grant Crumpacker who presided at the trial, stands by his decision.

Earlier in the day the jurist, who also presided at the first trial and who set aside the life sentence meted out then, intimated he would not disturb the one to ten year term.

"The attorney general is just stirring up a mare's nest in citing the old twenty-one year law," said Judge Crumpacker. "I sentenced Kirkland under the juvenile act of 1927 which gives the court power to sentence any minor not previously convicted of a felony to the reformatory, provided the defendant's crime did not involve a penalty of life imprisonment or death."

Ogden Reviews Law.

However, Attorney General Ogden in reviewing the state laws pointed out that the 1927 law referred to by Judge Crumpacker had been amended in 1929 so as to make the matter of sentencing a minor such as Kirkland discretionary rather than mandatory. Later Mr. Ogden cited the difference in the jury verdict of assault to rape and the commitment papers of assault to commit a felony.

The only recourse of the prosecuting attorneys, it is said, is to file a motion for a change of judgment before Judge Crumpacker. Assistant State's Attorney Robert Underwood will go to Indianapolis tomorrow to confer with Attorney General Ogden concerning a petition asking that Kirkland receive a longer sentence. If this move is agreed upon, Underwood will appear before Judge Crumpacker Monday.

ASK HUNT FOR ATTORNEY.

The Chicago police were asked last night to look for William Quinn, 40 year old attorney of St. Paul, who disappeared from his home there several days ago while on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

MAY ASK ARREST OF AL CAPONE AS BOOZE RING HEAD

Kansas City Sure He Is Organizer There.

Kansas City, Mo., May 28.—(AP)—Possibility that Al Capone, gang overlord of Chicago and reputed directing genius of subsidiary crime organizations in other cities, may be charged with liquor conspiracy was injected into the government investigation of an alleged wholesale liquor ring here today.

Decision as to whether government agents, who have been working on the case for months, have assembled enough evidence against Capone personally to warrant filing of charges rested with District Attorney W. L. Vandeventer.

H. L. Duncan, agent in charge, declared that the Chicago gangster was the boss of the alleged Kansas City liquor distributing combine and gave his orders through John Lazia, north side politician here who is one of more than a score of persons arrested in the last two days on conspiracy charges.

Chet A. Keyes, assistant district attorney, said announcement as to whether a warrant would be issued for Capone would be made by District Attorney Vandeventer after the latter had carefully reviewed the evidence.

Federal prohibition agents pictured Capone as the leader who organized the bootleg industry in this section some months ago to stabilize prices, eliminate competition, and afford an outlet for carloads of alcohol shipped here from the east by rail. Lazia is here from the east by rail.

Police recalled today that Jimmy Howard, a local bootlegger, was slain here by an unidentified machine gunner about the time the combine is alleged to have been formed.

"Always delicious coffee"

Says Mrs. Burt Massee

"Manor House has that one quality I look for above all others in coffee—a flavor that is always the same! With guests so frequently in my home, I cannot risk serving any coffee but Manor House. In this way I can be sure that only the most delicious coffee will come to my table."

The flavor of McLaughlin's Manor House is due to expert knowledge used in selecting and blending the finest coffees—knowledge that can be secured only through years of experience. The McLaughlin family combines the experience of three generations born and bred in the coffee business. The result is pretty close to perfection in coffee.

—formerly club editor of the Chicago Tribune, who now devotes her talents to "doing something for our city." Mrs. Massee is a board member of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters, and one of the originators in Chicago last autumn of the first collection of books for seamen on the Great Lakes. You would expect Mrs. Massee's parties to be original and highly popular. And they are, whether in her Venetian apartment on Lake Shore Drive, or on the "Margo," one of the largest and most luxurious yachts on the Great Lakes.

YOU should have heard JOHN ON THE SUBJECT

I guess a man's point of view is different from a woman's, after all. I suppose it is their daily contact with business that often makes men impatient, and want quick action.

• You should have heard John after he had his first glass of Wanzer's Milk. "Why haven't we been having milk like this all the time?"—was his first comment.

• Imagine that! Instead of thanking me, he actually scolded! Men are like that—and it's a good thing we women understand them.

Try WANZER'S MILK

• We suggest that if your family has not already discovered the rich flavor of Wanzer's Milk, that you try it for one month. Phone Boulevard 7900—and say when you want service to begin. We believe you will quickly learn the reason why Wanzer customers are so loyal.

• Sidney Wanzer & Sons, established 1857, is Chicago's oldest milk company. It is still owned and operated by the Wanzers.

• Wanzer's milk and dairy products are available to every Chicago home, as well as in the north suburbs of Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, and Glencoe; in Oak Park and surrounding suburbs west, and in all suburbs south.

IF GUEST IS LATE, GO RIGHT AHEAD AND EAT DINNER

Let Him Go Hungry; Has No Apology Coming.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

Beware of the dinner guest who is never on time. Nothing so totally wrecks a carefully prepared meal as the delinquent guest who arrives in the midst of profuse apologies anywhere from a half hour to an hour and a half late.

Whether it be according to etiquette or not, I would advise the hostess to go ahead and serve her dinner to the assembled company at the appointed hour. Let the late comer suffer by eating the warmed over victuals.

It's time the harassed cooks who have to worry and fret over their meals devised some method of torture for the one who insists upon spoiling carefully laid plans by making his appearance long after the scheduled dinner hour.

Union Might Solve Problem.

A cooks' union might solve the problem. In the by-laws it should be stipulated that the habitual offender be omitted from invitation lists. Or should he be a charming person who proves an asset to the party in spite of his habits, ignore him when he arrives and let him go hungry. This ought to cure him. The next time he is invited to dinner, he will probably arrive before the stipulated time.

The hostess can't strangle the tardy arrival, nor can she bawl him out as she would delight in doing. For, sad to say, the etiquette laws that we are forced to observe save the late comer from such drastic treatment. Public opinion decrees that the perfect hostess always be diplomatic and must be guided by the strict rules laid down by the sponsors of etiquette. All she can do when he finally arrives is to put on a pleasant front, greet him cordially, and listen attentively, if a little coldly, to his weak kneed apologies.

Only one way of preparing for the habitual offender is open to the hostess. That is the one of planning her meals carefully, including in her menu only the hardy foods which lose none of their flavors when kept on the fire.

Fresh Vegetables Out.

Fresh vegetables, such as new peas, green spinach, green beans, and cabbage, are on the black list for dinners which are liable to be held up for any length of time. Not only do the green vegetables lose their vivid color but they suffer from loss of flavor in the warming up process. Canned vegetables are best on occasions such as this.

Broiled and sautéed meats fail to keep their tastiness and deteriorate in the second cooking. Fried meats usually retain their original flavor if heated over in the oven. Roasted meats, meat loaves, meat aspics, or meat mousses might be suggested as standbys to be used as entrées when some of the guests are liable to be late. For they hold their flavor longer than some of the other members of the meat family.

Mashed potatoes are usually the most perishable of foods. And it has always been considered almost an impossibility to try to save them from ruin when at the eleventh hour the last guest has not put in his appearance. But here's news hot off the presses for the cook. Mashed potatoes can be saved by the simple process of putting them in the top of a double boiler, the lower part of which has been filled with hot water, and keeping them over the flames. When dinner is ready to be served, add a little more hot milk or hot cream.

Salads Are Safe.

Salads don't need a guardian angel. They keep their trim figures and shapes in spite of the delay in serving. However, if the lettuce is left to the mercies of a heated room, it is liable to grow tired looking and wilt. To save its appearance, it should be kept in the ice box until the ringing of the bell announces the arrival of the last guest.

Desserts seldom suffer from standing. Of course, those which are topped with whipped cream might grow soggy, providing the cream is added at an early stage. Most cooks, however, add the whipped cream as a last minute decoration. Pies or cakes should not be sliced until it's time for the dessert. Last minute cutting keeps them from drying out.

Providing all of the don't and do's are observed in preparing for the habitually late dinner guest, the meal can still be a success in spite of him. However, if you are not acquainted with the idosyncrasies of your guests, you are apt to prepare a meal composed of fragile foods and discover later that you have invited one of those obnoxious late comers. In such an event, reheat the victuals as best you can, and serve them without apologies.

Plan to Put Fresh Reindeer Meat on Chicago Market

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

To most of us the mention of reindeer calls to mind a distinct picture of Prancer, Dancer, Blitzen, and the others of Santa Claus' team of the night before Christmas, but how would you like to sink your teeth into a nice, juicy reindeer steak?

It is quite probable that we shall have a chance at some of the aforesaid steak around Christmas time or shortly thereafter, as plans are being made now for putting fresh reindeer meat in the Chicago market for the first time this winter. Theodore V. Thomas, part owner of a herd of 125,000 reindeer, has been looking over the market here for the last ten days with a view to interesting packers in this meat, and his group is planning to establish itself either in Chicago or Minneapolis.

Transportation Is Slow.

Most of the herd now is ranging on the Seward peninsula, / near St. Michael, Alaska, as it has been for several years, but this has been unsatisfactory because of the slow transportation by boat, which has made it impossible to get fresh reindeer meat on the American market. The meat has to be frozen, and this, according to Mr. Thomas, injures the product, because the freezing makes the meat dry and tough. This is caused, he pointed out, because reindeer has considerably more moisture than beef and freezing takes most of this out.

Recently Mr. Thomas and his associates leased a tract of a million acres along the west side of Hudson bay from the Canadian government and incorporated as the Dominion Reindeer company. This move was made in view of the recent completion of a northern branch of the Canadian National railroad, which runs to the very edge of the tract, and will make shipment to the American market a matter of but a few days.

Move Part of Herd to Canada.

The railroad has guaranteed delivery here in four and a half days, and it is pointed out by Mr. Thomas that the animals can be shipped on the hoof or the meat sent in refrigerator cars in a chilled condition (not frozen), which leaves all the natural juice and moisture in the meat. Almost 30,000 of the herd have been moved to Canada already.

Reindeer steak does not mean venison. A veteran reindeer breeder will tell you in no uncertain terms that venison is taken from the wild deer, while reindeer meat tastes almost like beef with a trace of lamb flavor thrown in for good measure.

Reindeer has little of the wild meat flavors, but just a trace of this has been added by the recent practice of crossing with Siberian caribou which increases the weight and quality of the meat as well as the hide.

Reindeer furnishes the same cuts as beef—chops, roasts, heart, liver, soup bones, and chuck as well as the various steaks. Nor should one forget the sausage. The by-products also are almost identical with those of beef but there is no sole leather made from reindeer because the skin is not as thick as that of the steer, although it is of good quality. The Japanese use the hair, often six or eight inches long, for paint brushes, while the antlers furnish buttons and knife and fork handles in this country. Handbags and purses are made from reindeer skin.

On Cooking Reindeer Meat.

In preparing reindeer meat for the table, the main thing to remember is that too much cooking dries out the flesh and has a tendency to make it a bit tough. Where you might cook a beefsteak for five minutes you would cut this time to four minutes for reindeer steak.

As a rule the animals are not killed until they are three years old, but "veal" can be had if ordered.

"Reindeer have never been known to have a disease and the pure food laws of both the United States and Canada allow reindeer meat to pass without inspection," Mr. Thomas said.

Mr. Thomas and his associates expect to place reindeer meat on the market here at a price in competition with beef.

APPEARANCE, NOT TASTE, IS GUIDE OF FOOD BUYERS

"We Americans eat with our eyes," comments F. H. Lochner, member of a Chicago brokerage and commission firm dealing in foreign and domestic food products.

He bases his comment largely on the fact that while Brazil nuts taste better with the skins left on Chicago consumes a large proportion of its Brazils in the shelled and blanched state.

Market Meat by Grades Under New U. S. Plan

Meat consumers in some cities can now buy dressed lamb graded for quality according to standards of the United States department of agriculture, as a result of demands being made by producers, retailers, and consumers that known standards of quality be established for meats as rapidly as possible.

This new service has been started by the federal bureau of agricultural economics in four cities—St. Louis, Detroit, Buffalo, and Erie. The guaranty of quality which the bureau's stamp on beef carries has created a demand by the trade for a similar service for lamb.

The lamb grading service will gradually be extended to other cities, according to federal authorities.

CAVES AND MOLD GIVE ROQUEFORT ITS RARE TASTE

Cheese Discovered by French Shepherd.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

The legend regarding discovery of Roquefort cheese took its rise some eight centuries ago. A shepherd was in the habit of leaving his lunch, consisting of barley bread and cheese made from sheep's milk, in a cave near Roquefort in southern France. The drafty moist air in the cave kept the food cool until lunch time.

One morning a sudden violent storm broke, forcing the shepherd to drive his flocks to shelter. Either he forgot about his lunch or had not the time to get it. Two weeks later he remembered his abandoned food and went back to the cave. He found the bread spoiled and the cheese infested with a green mold. But he nibbled the cheese, nevertheless, and discovered that it had a delicious rich flavor not like anything he had ever tasted. He ate all of it.

Tries Experiment Again.

Curiosity induced him to see if he could make some more. Intentionally, he left his bread and cheese in the same cave for two weeks. And just as in the first instance he went back to find the same delicious cheese streaked through and through with green mold.

Thus was Roquefort cheese discovered. And this is the origin of all mold ripened cheese as well. It is an interesting fact that only until recent years has it been possible to make acceptable Roquefort anywhere but in these same caves, where the shepherd unwittingly conducted the first experiment.

The peculiar condition within the cave that makes this the only locality in the world where Roquefort cheese can be produced "save by something approximating laboratory control" is a "gentle draft of cool, moist air, never varying in temperature and moisture content."

Has Rare Flavor.

Authorities tell us that cheese is one of the most nutritious of foods having a very high protein and calcium content. "It contains almost all the protein and fat and much of the sugar and mineral matters of the milk from which it is made." Recent experiments have shown that cheese is from 90 to 99 per cent digestible. But because it is good for us is not our only reason for eating it. We eat it because we like it. Roquefort has a rare and fascinating flavor.

To make Roquefort dressing, add 4 ounces of grated Roquefort cheese to ½ cup of French dressing. Just before serving, stir in 2 tablespoons of thick sweet cream.

Toy Egg Beater Superior to a Spoon for Stirring

A toy egg beater is far superior to a spoon for stirring up thickening. A cup may be substituted for a bowl, making the equipment doubly convenient.

AFTER ALL THESE YEARS BROOMS WILL BE GRADED

Brooms may be brooms, but up until the announcement last week by the federal department of agriculture in Washington that the straw sweeps would now be graded and manufacturers would be expected to conform to established standards of materials every housewife has had to be her own judge of this important item in housekeeping.

Since the straw in brooms is made from a special kind of corn, called broomcorn, largely grown in sections of Illinois, the federal department has taken action after 15 years of cooperation with farmers to "help the farmer get prices commensurate with the quality of his products and to provide a reliable guide for buyers."

Leading broom manufacturers have agreed, through their Broom institute, recently formed in New York, to abide by the standard federal grades. These will include "supergrade," made from selected, fine fiber A quality broomcorn; the "fancy," made from regular run of A quality broomcorn, and "service," second quality broomcorn.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Dolly Madison once called Washington the drawing room of the nation. Today it might better be designated as the national dining room.

For Washington loves to eat.

What does it eat?

Whenever and wherever that question is asked, the immediate answer comes:

"Oh, nothing special. Just what everybody else eats."

It is, therefore, only by constant query that the searcher after menus with memories can discover the gastronomical pets of the nation's celebrities. For instance, when the question was put to a White House attaché familiar with the food fancies of President Hoover, he replied swiftly:

"Just exactly the same meals that anybody, you or I, or anybody here in Washington eats."

Here's Hoover Breakfast.

More specific kitchen data, however, revealed these details.

The White House breakfast consists of orange juice or fresh fruit, of bacon and eggs and toast, and of plenty of coffee. When the President is entertaining at one of his stag senatorial breakfasts, the menu is a bit more elaborate. Of course, there are no succulent T-bone steaks such as Taft used to enjoy for breakfast. And some of Mr. Hoover's senatorial guests have even mourned the Coolidge sausage and wheatcakes.

One such senator, in reminiscent mood, recently recalled how the Coolidge collie edged up to his senatorial plate one morning and calmly swiped a savory sausage.

Said the senator: "Mr. President, I don't mind sharing my breakfast with your dog, but I do hate to miss those New England sausages."

Whereupon the President is said to have addressed the waiter this wise: "Please bring Senator —— TWO sausages."

A Substantial Luncheon.

The Hoover luncheon, eaten in the state dining room even if there are no guests, is substantial, frequently four courses, of consommé, meat, salad and dessert. Chops are a favored item. The dessert is likely to be pudding. Sometimes there is an omelette instead of a salad. Coffee is always served, after the meal.

The regular family dinner is usually five courses. First a thick soup or oysters in season. The Hoovers are fond of oysters. Then, fish, then a roast or meat of some kind with several vegetables; a salad, preferably of fresh fruits, and for dessert, ice cream or an ice. After dinner coffee is always served.

There has been a lot of talk about the popularity of California fruits and vegetables at the White House. Attachés deny this, explaining: "Of course, if there are guests from California there are likely to be avacadoes and citrus fruit. But that doesn't mean that the Hoovers eat them any more frequently than the Coolidges did, and they came from Massachusetts."

The Artichoke Is Honored.

Artichokes, too, are on the Hoover menu. They were first introduced to official Washington, it is said, by the Tafts. But the guests had such difficulty in deciding just what part to eat and what to disregard that dinner parties were turned into experiment stations, with guests watching Mrs. Taft to see what she did. Now Washington is artichoke conscious.

Then, there's the broccoli story. A rather prominent Washingtonian had for years been eager to dine at the White House. This winter his dream was realized. He came away a sadder and a wiser man.

"Just think," he mourned, "after waiting all these years for an invitation, I get one. And they served me broccoli; I hate the stuff."

"What do I eat? Here's the answer." He pointed to a big bowl of soup, a big cup of coffee. "Sometimes I add a sandwich, and occasionally I have a piece of pie, but this is my average luncheon."

A One Egg Breakfaster.

For breakfast the vice president defies the theory of psychologists that nobody likes monotony in breakfast diets. For he has eaten, for as many years as he remembers, a glass of orange juice or half a grapefruit, toast and one egg—always one egg—and a cup of coffee.

And dinner? Here the vice president smiled. Perhaps he was recalling that Thomas Riley Marshall, when he was vice president, dubbed himself the "eating president of the United States." It's true. The vice president goes to all the dinners that the President, from custom or caprice, does not attend. And they are so numerous that a vice president rarely dines at home one evening a month.

"In the evening," mused Mr. Curtis, "I eat! I eat what my hostess serves me."

Turning his thoughts to his native Kansas, he reflected on the glories of fried chicken. Corn, too, he thinks is pretty fine.

A Cook in the Cabinet.

Of the cabinet members, Secretary of State Stimson is said to have the best chef. But he won't talk about it. The real cooking expert of the group, of course, is Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. Although he lives in a Washington hotel nothing delights him more than to put on a big apron and stir up a creamed concoction, a ragout with a dazzling sauce, or cook a steak.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon walks home to luncheon every day. He lunches most simply, on omelettes or soups.

Soup, by the way, savory bean soup, is the favorite standby of the legislators who eat their noonday meal at the senate restaurant. Next to bean soup comes oyster stew in popularity. Kansas' Senator Capper believes there is nothing to beat an oyster stew, made with cream.

Jack Garner, the Texan who may be the next speaker of the house, likes frijoles, which is a native word for Mexican beans.

"I've attended a lot of Washington dinners," he says, "and I have only one fault to find with them. No, it's not with the seating arrangements. It's the fact that they never serve frijoles and cornbread."

"Teddy" Roosevelt, home on a brief visit from Porto Rico, was bidden to luncheon the other day.

"I rarely go to luncheons," he explained, "but I'll come if you'll have plenty of coffee and chocolate for me."

They did. And he spent a happy hour drinking many cups of coffee, and munching chocolate.

One more point, to establish Washington as the dining room of the nation. If the government took all the dextrine, which is the gum on the back of postage stamps, that they use in a year, and made it up, as they could, into tapioca pudding, every man, woman and child in Chicago and the suburbs could have a great big dish of it. If they wanted it.

BLUEBERRIES FOR DELICIOUS PIE

Blueberry pies may be somewhat of a luxury at the first of the season, but the first shipments for 1931 arrived this week on the South Water market and thence to retail stores, hotels, restaurants, and homes. William E. Baker of the Phillips-Baker company at 103 South Water market is making a sale to Miss Beatrice Davidson, 4222 Grenshaw street. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FIRST SHIPMENTS OF FRESH FRUITS BEGIN TO ARRIVE

Blueberries and Apricots on Chicago Market.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Huckleberry Finn could get lost in Chicago this week and yet feel somewhat at home if he wandered into the South Water market or into many of the thousands of retail fruit and vegetable and grocery stores in Chicagoland. For blueberries, or "huckleberries," as they are called in the south, have again arrived in the market.

First shipments are from Alabama, but others will follow soon from Arkansas and Missouri, and the season will continue on into September. Then the last of the crop will be in the harvesting process in Michigan and Wisconsin around Indian reservations.

But it is not only the blueberries which are new on the market this week. Plums and apricots have arrived again for a summer's stay. These first ones now being sold are coming from the Imperial valley in California. Although they display a good color, dealers report that as usual these heralds of the plums and apricots to follow are somewhat tart in taste and haven't attained a very large size.

Dewberries a New Fruit.

Dewberries are another new fruit for this season. Honey dew melons are coming into Chicago faster than they have been and market men tell buyers that heretofore early supplies of honeydew melons have been imported from the Argentine but that this year they are coming from California.

For those who have been awaiting the watermelon season, it isn't far away, according to W. H. Hall, fruit and vegetable reporter on the South Water market for the United States department of agriculture. Ten days will see noticeable increases in shipments received here and two to three weeks from now the heavy shipments will be arriving. That means as many as 100 carloads in a day from Georgia and other southern states. Those heavy shipments will also make history of the last few weeks when watermelons have been selling for $2 or more each.

Tip in Buying Oranges.

Seedless California navel oranges are about at the end of their season. But those who like their fresh orange juice, or even oranges in shortcakes and other dishes, can have them for the rest of the year, it appears. The Valencia variety will continue to be seasonable until the next crop of navel oranges comes into Chicago, about next December.

One of the most unusual tips in buying oranges came from a veteran of the market this week. "When oranges are high in price, buy the large sized ones, and when they are low in price, buy the small ones," he advised. The reason, it seems, is that housewives in general, when oranges are high in price, prefer to get smaller oranges and spend no more than they have been paying per dozen when they were cheaper. As a result, the small oranges go up more in price than do the large ones, and for a weighted quantity of oranges or orange juice the more thrifty housewife gets more for her money by buying the large ones, even though buying fewer of them.

Sweet Corn on Market.

In the vegetable line there also is some news for shoppers. New potatoes are edging up more in the market as contrasted to those grown late in 1930 in northern states. Idaho russets and the rurals and white potatoes from Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan are getting more scarce, apparently because farmers are keeping what they have for home consumption and for planting.

Sweet corn from Texas is coming in larger shipments and whereas prices last week were about two ears for a quarter retail, the storekeepers now are selling three and four ears for a quarter.

Texas also is shipping larger quantities of tomatoes. After growers got away to a late start because of weather, a large proportion of the early tomatoes were coming from Florida and California, but now Texas is getting in the lead for this part of the year.

WISCONSIN APPEARS TO BE SUPPLIED WITH PLENTY OF ICE CREAM

Madison, Wis., May 28.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's dairy plants manufacture at least three gallons of ice cream annually for every person in the state, in addition to what is made in homes, according to Walter H. Ebling, agricultural statistician for the state and federal departments of agriculture here.

Mr. Ebling has just released a report of a study of production and consumption of ice cream in Wisconsin, showing that some 2,125,000 dairy cows in the state "provide a huge supply of milk, only a small part of which is made into ice cream."

Fifty-four of the seventy-one counties in the state have ice cream plants in operation. In 1929 the total production of factory ice cream amounted to 8,891,000 gallons. In 1923 is was 6,032,000 gallons.

ENGLISH COOKS WIN FAME FOR MEAT DISHES

Use Seasoning Sparingly, So Displease Some.

BY META GIVEN.

The present day reputation of English cookery is an admixture of criticism and praise. The descriptions given by hundreds of writers and tourists would lead one to believe that all English food is insipid, pallid, and pasty. But reports that come from those who have searched out the famous old inns like "Ye old Cheshire Cheese," "Ship and Turtle," and "Birch's and Simpson's" show that there has been and there still is a gastromonic England. The dishes for which these inns are famed are roasts, steaks, chops, meat, and game pies and puddings—all foods whose flavor is naturally high.

According to Mrs. Frances Sonley, who is our authority on English foods, the reason why England has earned the pathetic reputation for its food is because the English cook is sparing of her seasoning, and naturally those people who have developed a liking for high flavors would not enjoy a bland natural flavor. This blandness appeals to the Englishman and he enjoys it. It is true that he uses mustard, horseradish, and the well known Worcestershire sauce, but these are never used in excess. Even on salads a small quantity of piquant dressing satisfies.

Meats Cooked Tender.

And the English housewife as a rule likes to cook her meats very tender, especially those in stews and pies. This, however, is not true of her roasts. And English cooks are famous for their delicious roasts no matter whether they are prepared for the inn or in the home. And they are served rare, medium, or well done. In any case the ideal roast is one that is tender and juicy. Mrs. Sonley cooks roasts just as she did in England and these roasts are always the standing variety with the bone left in. As all other cooks experienced in meat cookery, she holds that the fewer meat fibers that are cut the juicier the meat will be. The reason that rolled roast is not so juicy and so full of flavor is because the bone which adds much to the flavor is removed and the fibers have been cut to such an extent that they lose much of their juice.

The perfect accompaniment of the perfect English roast is the perfect Yorkshire pudding. There is much disagreement about the making and baking of this pudding. In fact I have been told by more than one Englishwoman that most of the recipes for Yorkshire pudding published in this country rarely produce the true Yorkshire species. It is Mrs. Sonley's observation that American women make the batter entirely too thin, then bake it in a too shallow pan, and they use too much drippings. The result is a grease soaked, thin, leathery, sodden, indigestible affair that Mrs. Sonley would not serve to a real Englishman.

Crust Should Be Crisp.

Instead the pudding should have a tender crisp crust, top and bottom, and the crumb should be spongy and well risen and entirely digestible. Mrs. Sonley's description of the correct batter is that it is about the consistency of a layer cake or muffin batter. It should be put into a pan that is hissing hot and greased with just a trifle more fat than would be used to prepare a cake pan. This pudding should not be baked until just before it is to be served, for to be its best it must be piping hot. The pudding is cut into squares, oblongs, or diamonds and served on the platter with the meat or on a separate platter. A gravy is made from the drippings from the roast, thickened with a little flour and thinned with water. Never a milk gravy is served with roast and puddings.

Another food of which England can be proud is her meat and game pies. There is something about these pies that has inspired the greatest of England's literary men. Dickens makes his immortal Sam Weller twist his lips over "weal pie." And Edward Spencer laments, "Gone are the days of pasteboard poultry."

Old Pie Women Popular.

And the old pie woman evidently was a loved personage despite the evidence we have that she was sometimes treated with coarse jocularity, as is indicated in the following old English epitaph on the grave of a Yorkshire pie woman:

Of Nell Batchelor lately was shoven—
She was skilled in the art of pies, custards, and tarts,
And knew every use of the oven.
When she'd lived long enough, she made her last puff—
A puff by her husband much praised;
And now here she lies, a-making dirt pies,
In hopes that her crust may be raised."

Pork pies as well as those made of mutton and game are treasured English delicacies. The true English meat pie, Mrs. Sonley suggests, is always baked in a deep pie dish which resembles our casserole. And a bottom crust is never used. Either a plain or puff pastry is used to cover the top. Sometimes this pastry is plain, other times it is ornate. In making the latter a layer of plain pastry is first put on in the usual way. In the middle is left a large vent for the escape of steam. Around this vent are laid fancy cut out leaves of the pastry. And not only meat pies, but also fruit tarts and cheese tarts are popular in England.

Famous for Puddings.

The most celebrated of English desserts are her puddings of both the boiled and steamed varieties. Cheese also ranks high as a dessert. Their sweetmeats such as jams and marmalades are the finest that are made. Englishmen have always prized their homemade products. Again in the language of Sam Weller, "one knows the lady wot made them" when they are home prepared. All English cooks acknowledge that their coffee is not worth drinking, but they do not have to make apologies for their tea. English tea is the best that can be made. Their secret of making excellent tea is the use of water that is free from objectionable minerals, heating the water to just the boiling point and no longer, then steeping the tea only long enough to obtain a fragrant beverage and serving it steaming hot.

An Excellent Mutton Pie.

Take two pounds of neck or loin of mutton, free of bone and fat, and cut into little steaks [slice thinly]. Slice two kidneys thinly and add to meat. Sprinkle all with salt, pepper and minced parsley. Cook in enough water to cover until tender. Alternate layers of meat in a pie dish with layers of parboiled slices of potato. [Use from four to six medium potatoes for this amount of meat.] A little chopped onion may be added to each layer of meat if liked. Pour in additional mutton broth made by simmering the bones from mutton in a little water for two or three hours. Cover the pie with a nice plain pastry. Bake in a brisk oven [425 degrees F.] for about 20 minutes until the crust is well baked, then lower the temperature to a slow oven [325 degrees F.] and bake at least an hour.

Yeast Bread.

4 lbs. bread flour	compressed yeast [the equivalent of 3 cakes compressed yeast]
1 tbsp. salt
2 tbsp. lard
1 tsp. sugar
5 cents worth loose yeast	1 qt. lukewarm water

Sift flour and salt into a large mixing bowl and work in the lard. Make a hollow in the center and put in the sugar and finely crumbled yeast. Add water, gradually mixing all the materials into a smooth dough stiff enough to knead. Knead at least 5 minutes. Put dough into a slightly greased bowl, cover, place in a warm place out of a draft and let rise until double in bulk. Again knead into a ball and shape into three large loaves. Put into a greased pan, cover, and again let rise until double in bulk. Bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for 45 minutes.

Yorkshire Tea Cakes.

8 cups bread flour	3 cents worth loose yeast [the equivalent of 2 cakes compressed yeast]
¼ lb. [½ cup] melted butter
¼ lb. [½ cup] sugar
2 eggs

Put flour into a mixing bowl. Rub butter and sugar into the flour until there are no lumps left. Add raisins, eggs, yeast, and warm milk and mix to a nice dough. Set aside in a warm place to sponge for half an hour. Then add enough more warm milk to make a soft dough. Let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Divide dough into eight portions. Place in a greased round cake tin. Again let rise, and make in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for about 20 minutes.

Yorkshire Pudding.

1 pint flour [unsifted]	2 eggs
½ tsp. salt	Milk to make a stiff batter [about 1 pint]
½ tsp. sugar
1 tsp. baking powder

Sift the flour with the sugar, salt, and baking powder. Make a well in center and put in eggs. Mix eggs in and let gather all the flour they will. Then add milk gradually, beating all the time to make a smooth batter of the consistency about like that for layer cake. Have baking pan steaming hot and oiled with drippings from roast beef. The amount of fat used in pan is just a trifle more than would be used in a pan for baking cake. Put in batter. Bake in moderate oven [375 degrees F.] 15 or 20 minutes, or until sides curl up along the edge and are brown, then use a spatula to turn over. Bake 15 minutes longer. Should be served hot.

Curd Cheese Cakes.

1 lb. cottage cheese	1 tbsp. flour
3 eggs	½ tsp. ground nutmeg
¼ cup sugar
2 tbsp. melted butter

Mix all ingredients together thoroughly. Fill small muffin tins with good plain pastry. Add the cheese curd mixture to fill muffin tins full. Bake until a golden brown in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] about 15 minutes.

Lemon Curd.

½ lb. butter	4 lemons
1 lb. sugar	4 soda crackers' [rolled]
4 eggs

Melt butter in double boiler, then add the sugar, cracker crumbs, grated rind of one lemon and the juice of four lemons. Add the beaten eggs and cook in double boiler until it thickens. Put in a glass jar. It is ready for use. Stir constantly while cooking. Line tart shells with plain pastry. Fill half full with lemon curd mixture and bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for about 15 minutes.

BROWN SUGAR HELPS FRUIT.

SCALE IN EVERY HOME, GREIN'S ADVICE TO WIVES

City Sealer Enlists Homes for Honest Weight.

Housewives who make sure that their foodstuffs, meat, coal and ice are full measure or full weight are doing a service to their community as well as themselves, according to Joe Grein, city sealer, who 25 years ago was known as "the watchdog of the city's food supply."

Recently appointed by Mayor Cermak, City Sealer Grein, aided by his workers, is making an effort to eliminate short weighing throughout the city. In an interview calculated to reach the housewives, whom the city sealer regards as necessary aids to his success, Mr. Grein said:

"If you suspect that your coal or ice dealer, your butcher or your grocer is selling you less than you are paying for, write to the city sealer, the city hall, or call at Room 608, in the city hall. If you wish a reply, inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Scale in Every Home.

"All housewives should have in their homes scales of their own. The city sealer's office will test it at a cost of about 30 cents a year. Stand up for your rights, housewives, and learn whether you are getting value received for your money!

"Moreover, women should learn to purchase by weight and measure rather than by the formula 'A quarter's worth of sugar,' or 'Half a dollar's worth of steak.' Ask for a pound or a fraction of a pound, or a quart, peck or bushel, etc.

"Just as grocers should demand bills with every load they purchase, showing the exact amount bought, its unit and its total price, so should housewives ask for a bill with each purchase. In these days when housewives efficiently budget their income they should be just as efficient in obtaining such bills, for without them you cannot show short weight or short measure.

"Peddlers have been found using dented measures, tin pails or other illegal measures. The law in Chicago calls for the selling by standard avoirdupois net weight or by numerical count all fruits, vegetables, and other dry commodities.

"Housewives should remember to obtain the license numbers of peddlers they deal with so that they may notify this department if they do not receive full measure or weight.

"We have found that some transient peddlers place one basket or container within another, taping them together, so that the housewife gets about one-half of the amount she pays for. In recent arrests of certain peddlers they were revealed as selling, say, 13 pounds of goods for a 16 pound peck.

Study This Table.

Apples	47 lbs.	Beets	60 lbs.
Walnuts	50 lbs.	Corn on cob	70 lbs.
Carrots	50 lbs.	Irish potatoes	60 lbs.
Beans	24 lbs.	Onions	57 lbs.
Tomatoes	56 lbs.	Pickling onions	32 lbs.
Navy beans	60 lbs	Pears	58 lbs.
Spinach	12 lbs.

"The housewife should watch for various forms of deception: paper, to the amount of several ounces, perhaps, placed under the plate of the platform of the scale; salt pork placed in like manner; scales set fast several ounces, or the butter or lard sold in wooden dishes, packages or other containers and weighed with the container without allowance for it.

"The veteran short weight manipulator, however, uses the forefinger of his hand, increasing the supposed weight of the article sold by several ounces."

Long May That Humble Plant, Asparagus, Rule

BY PAUL POTTER.

Mark these words! One of these days we will pick up a gayly covered novel, with all the atmosphere of romance in its appearance and title and, upon delving into the contents, will become absorbed in the life and works of that humble yet almost human perennial, asparagus.

The story will have been written by some one who has just driven through the acreages of table top lands that roll away to the south of Chicago—a settlement where nothing but asparagus is grown. Or the author may have just returned from a shopping tour of a vegetable market, with a few bunches of the tender, appetizing sprouts.

Supreme Touch to Salad.

And the reader, to be in best mood to enjoy the work, will have found a comfortable chair beneath the glow of a floor lamp in one corner of the study, just after having enjoyed the delicious sprouts buttered or creamed—the supreme touch to a salad, or the height of garnish for a steak or lamb chop.

At once the story will plunge into a windblown field of tall, bushy, delicately flowered plants, bowing and scraping before a strong Lake Michigan breeze on its way inland across the prairies. Some of these plants, it will be found, have red berries—they are the male, or pistillate, plants.

Others, the female, or stamenate, while in a minority of one to five when a typical pound of asparagus seed is sown, soon gain in numbers, and the married families wax tall and handsome; growing as high as one's head by fall.

Most folk, the story will point out, believe that asparagus sprouts, tender and green, and about six or eight inches long when bunched for consumption, come up quickly from seed as do carrots. But such is not the case.

Some Plants 30 Years Old.

For, we will one day read in fascinating style, the seed bed must be deep and finely pulverized, rich in food value. The seed is sown quite often under the protecting roof of glass in a hotbed or greenhouse. The shoots are then transplanted in rows 4 to 6 feet apart, and 2 to 1½ feet apart in each row, giving ample room for development in their eight to ten years of service to mankind.

Some of these plantations, we will learn, have been carefully handled and when the plants are thirty years old some still remain vigorous and their sprouts are as succulent as they were twenty-five years before.

But, to add a touch of the dramatic, we will find the story turning toward early spring. While the meadow lark is singing on the fence post, glad that April has come and May is not far off, the story will be told of a band of tanned humans, each armed with a sharp knife, coming into the asparagus fields. Deftly they will prod into the base of a six inch crown laden with tender sprouts and pluck those of size and lusciousness.

Washed and gathered together in crates, according to size and quality, the toothsome morsels will be hurried cityward in this fast moving tale that's to be told. Half a pound or a little more to each bunch, they will remain banded together in the food store tiers of green and orange and red and brown.

The best of them, the No. 1 grade, will have a diameter of over half an inch at the base of the green coloring. The "strings" will be less than a quarter inch in diameter, and varied grades will be found in between.

Many men there are in Cook county who make a good living from asparagus fields alone. Illinois is third or fourth in rank among all states in volume of this vegetable produced annually.

Vegetable Costs Less.

We'll also read of growers in the neighborhood of Beecher, Rochelle, Godfrey and Alton—Illinois areas where great fields of the plants are fed, cultivated, and sprouted each year about this time, for the Chicago or nearby markets.

But, for fear some one may not write this interesting little yarn before the present season is ended, we may take the word of E. P. Lewis, in charge of the University of Illinois experiment station near Des Plaines, that the asparagus now on Chicago's market is of fine quality and cheaper than in many years.

And on the roadside stands that skirt the metropolis, as well as in many city markets, the supply is brought in fresh daily from the gardeners, who produce it within a few minutes' ride of the city.

Beef Most Economical Meat Buy for Week-End

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Chicago Meat council states:

"Beef represents the most economical meat buy for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. Rib roasts of beef, pot roasts, and round steak are available from retail meat stores at extremely attractive prices. Cooked ham and the ready to serve beef such as cooked sausages and specialties are selling at prices which enable the housewife to prepare the Memorial day picnic lunch at low cost."

TO GET MOST OUT OF THE POTATO, COOK IT IN SKIN

Expert Says Some Food Value Is Lost in Peeling.

Americans still have a hearty potato appetite, in spite of some decline in the per capita consumption of spuds, according to Miss Lelia Ogle, home economics specialist at Ohio State university, who declares that potatoes are rich in important energy giving components, and a good source of vitamins B and C.

"Because a large proportion of the valuable minerals and vitamins in potatoes are found right under the skin," Miss Ogle says, "much of their food value is lost when they are peeled before cooking. None of the food substance is lost if the skin is removed after cooking."

They're Good When Stuffed.

Miss Ogle suggests that one delicious way of preparing potatoes is to stuff them. This is done by cutting baked potatoes in half, removing the pulp, mashing it, and adding enough milk to obtain the usual consistency of mashed potatoes. It is then seasoned with butter, salt, and pepper. Then the potato pulp is beaten over heat until it becomes light and fluffy. Fill the cases, dot the tops with butter or brush them with milk, and bake the stuffed potatoes for 5 to 10 minutes in a hot oven.

Another Way to Do It.

A pleasant variation to this recipe, says Miss Ogle, may be made by adding to three medium sized mashed potatoes about ½ cup of grated cheese. A half cup of chopped meat might be added, 1 tablespoon of chopped parsley also gives a pleasant taste.

Another good way to cook potatoes, according to Miss Ogle, is to cream them with cheese. This is done by adding about ½ cup of finely cut cheese to the white sauce used in cooking creamed potatoes. The sauce is made by mixing together 2 cups of milk, 4 tablespoons of flour, 2 tablespoons of butter, and ½ teaspoon of salt. This is enough sauce for 4 cups of diced cooked potatoes.

COOK VEGETABLES TO PRESERVE ALL THEIR NATURAL COLORINGS

Take a hint from the candy man and cook fresh vegetables so attractively that they will instantly appeal to the appetite is the advice of Hazel Thomas, agricultural college food specialist in North Dakota. Fresh produce needs to have both "natural beauty" and good flavor, according to Miss Thomas. Green coloring matter of vegetables is readily destroyed by cooking. Heat and acid are its enemies, both of which have a chance to work when the vegetables are cooked for long periods, particularly in small amounts of water in covered vessels or steamers or pressure cookers.

HORS D'OEUVRES EDIBLE, POPULAR, AND DIVERSIFIED

Savory Tidbits That Add Zest to Any Meal.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Hors d'œuvres! The "quip and quirk and merry jest" beloved of Swift and Sheridan and all the best people since! Curtain raisers to the meal, little boasts of what is to come!

Popular alike at luncheon, tea, and dinner, these savory tidbits are the prologue to the meal—the amusing first lines, as it were, for humor may be quite as cleverly expressed in food as in words or pictures. What delight of the epicure is gayer, livelier, or more wisely employed than these tiny, tantalizing flirts of sharp and tasteful mouthfuls playing their appointed rôle as stimulators for the serious business of dining?

Never are the "hors d'œuvres" of France, the "antipasto" of Italy, the "smorgasbord" of Sweden, or the "zakuska" of Russia [call them what you will] designed to fulfill the function of heartiness and satisfaction. They are made to please—just that—to please and arouse the anticipation.

At Formal or Informal Meal.

Whether the occasion is a formal or an informal meal, whether it is a simple family affair, a meal to be eked out in some unsuspected fashion, a Sunday night spread, or an after theater snack, hors d'ouvres of one variety or another may, with all propriety, be served. As the first course of a dinner or luncheon, they replace the fruit cocktail and immediately precede the soup if there is to be one. Service either from a compartment dish or platter or on individual plates, placed on the service plate before the guests are seated, is correct. Since an aperitif is served in many homes before dinner or luncheon, the appetizer has also gained an important place in smart entertaining as its accompaniment.

A newer fashion and one that makes a special appeal to the masculine contingent in the household is that of serving a happy combination of substantial and piquant hors d'œuvres as the main course of an informal spread such as the Sunday evening supper.

More Play Than Work to Make.

Now to the hors d'œuvres and their making! It is play more than work, for you may run the gantlet of colors, and try every conceivable form and almost any combination of materials. The worst you can do is to win a reputation for being original, creative, and an artist in the making, and, of course, you can always try to achieve the goal of being an inspiration to others to do likewise.

There is an endless variety of these appetizer trifles, some of them made out of the most everyday ingredients, some of them achieved by the more devious ways of foreign elements, and some by combinations of this and that. They love to be dressed up with a lot of giddy trimming from the pearl of onion to the cardinal scarlet of pimento, and they are really better for being arrayed in smart stripes, dots, stars, and chevrons of brilliant hue!

To Be Stored Away.

For the housewife who indulges or is about to indulge in these tempting bits, let me suggest that she store away on her pantry shelf some cans of shrimp, chicken, sardines, deviled ham, salmon, and other potted meats; some jars of olives, smoked or pickled herring, anchovies, antipasto; and some more cans of caviar, peaches, pears, pate de foie gras, and many another item too numerous to mention. It would be difficult to suggest all the combinations of hors d'œuvres that might be prepared with the above list as a basis—yet there are favorites that must not be omitted.

Of course, caviar makes the canapé de luxe, for few appetizers are truer to the class. There is something about it—the taste of Russian seas and the saltiness of far off waters—that begins the feast in a triumphant manner. To prepare these small canapés sauté rounds of thin toast in butter, mix a medium size jar of caviar with two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped onion, season with a few drops of lemon juice, spread on toast rounds and cover with a sprinkling of hard boiled egg yolk. Serve with a tiny slice of lemon.

Fruit Can Be Used.

But caviar is by no means the only appetizer. There is no more enticing first course for spring or summer than a combination of fruit hors d'ouvres—canned or fresh peaches stoned, pared, cut in eighths and dipped in finely chopped pistachio nuts or almonds; canned or fresh pineapples cut into segments and dipped into powdered mint leaves; fresh whole strawberries; blackberries or raspberries dusted with powdered sugar, and watermelon or canteloupe diced or cut into balls, marinated in French dressing and drained.

And don't forget the salmon when it is nice and pink and fine. Press it into oblong pieces, season with lemon juice, and decorate with small bars, stars, and ribbons of pimiento. Some of the finer bits of salmon may be put upon chilled half slices of tomato and the whole dressed up with a little green mayonnaise run through a pastry tube. Use other fragments of the salmon to fill the hollowed out slices of cucumber. Season these with lemon juice and tobasco, going easy, however, on the tobasco so that it is not too peppery! Shrimp, sardine, smoked herring, or any other smoked fish may be used in the same way.

Tomato and Onion.

Tomato and onion are not to be forgotten when assembling the appetizer platter. Slices of tomato marinated in French dressing, then slices of mild onion cut to fit the tomato and the two put together on a round of sautéd bread with mayonnaise and, if you please, a little fish, pickle, or relish. Tomatoes, small ones, hollowed out and filled with mayonnaise in which chopped pickle, chopped olives, and a few capers are mixed, or with salmon, crab, or lobster, are very delicious when thoroughly chilled.

Sardines dressed with lemon juice and served on befitting fingers of toast make an enlivening and entertaining bit, and if the toast is first spread with mustard—all the better.

A Roquerfort cheese mixture in which there are chopped chives spread on diamond shaped pieces of toast with a tiny piece of parsley in the center is delicious. Medium sized stuffed olives around which pieces of bacon are wrapped and secured by toothpicks make amusing as well as good appetizers when they are heated in the open until the bacon is thoroughly crisp.

These Always Popular.

Antipasto [Italian hors d'oeuvres]—tiny pieces of tuna fish, olives, pickles, onions, and artichokes—are always popular. Then there are rose apples, which are small firm pimiento cups put up in cans and stuffed with cream cheese, Roquefort cheese, cream and chopped chives; and macedoine of vegetables, tiny bright pieces of peas, carrots, string beans, and flageolots cut in amusing star and cube shapes. Pate de foie gras cut in slices or cubes with a slice of pimiento olive pressed into each and goose liver paté are both dilicacies.

Other hors d'ouvres we cannot pass without mentioning include anchovies, crisp stalks of celery stuffed with Roquefort cheese, hearts of artichoke, truffles, pickled walnuts, green pepper circles stuffed with cheese, miniature asparagus tips, wilted cucumber slices, and beet cubes marinated in French dressing.

And these are only suggestions—there are countless more! As an inspiration guides the artist so must it guide the hostess when it comes to hors d'oeuvres!

YOU OWE YOUR SANDWICHES TO M' LORD'S HASTE

The Earl Leaves a New Food to Posterity.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Our favorite axioms and maxims to the contrary, it appears that a few of the world's champion profligates do leave something in the way of noteworthy legacies to posterity.

Consider the case of the fourth earl of Sandwich, John Montagu, who lived lavishly, gambled profusely, loved indiscreetly and double crossed his friends in merry England at about the time our Puritan fathers set themselves to the task of clipping the ties that bind and went determinedly about the business of setting up a home in the new world.

It is recorded that during a twenty-four hour session at the gaming table m' lord, feeling the need of refreshment but unwilling to interrupt his deep concentration to the extent of employing the formalities of knife, fork and plate, ordered his servant to bring him a "cutting" of beef between two slices of bread. It proved to be delectable fare, and Sandwich, thereafter, upon similar occasions, duplicated the order for himself and his associates.

Idea Spreads and Spreads.

The idea spread from house to house, from borough to borough, from nation to nation, and the new invention, from the name of its originator dubbed a "sandwich," became an integral part of the good that came out of Britain.

As many and varied as the climes and classes that adopted them have been the offspring of that first beef sandwich. With equal appropriateness they are to be found in the lunch baskets piled on the broad window sill of the little red schoolhouse, in the laborer's dinner pail, and on the bridge or garden tea table laid with exquisite silver and porcelain and fine imported napery.

There are few successful hostesses who are not well versed in the art of sandwich making. One of the first to come to mind is a gracious little lady whose Sunday night suppers attract a wide circle of friends by reason of her delightful conversation and delicious sandwiches.

In the fashioning of her small masterpieces home made bread is the primary requisite. Her favorite fillings are roast beef and chicken with cucumber rings or slices of tomato and a specially prepared mayonnaise without oil but with a dash of paprika.

Another hostess, whose forte is the planning of picnic hampers, uses golden brown just-so-big biscuits with ground tongue and pickle relish for filling, touched off with the crisp frill of a lettuce leaf.

For the afternoon bridge party one authority suggests a sandwich made of fine meshed, thinly sliced white bread, whole wheat bread, and Boston brown bread buttered with whipped sweet butter and spread with raspberry jam.

The slices should be stacked—brown, whole wheat, and white—to about a height of 2½ inches, then wrapped tightly around with cheesecloth and allowed to remain thus for a half hour. When the cloth is removed they may be cut down diagonally into triangles or into the "straight finger" type.

How to Make Cheese Crisp.

Then there is the popular cheese crisp, to be made with bread that is a day old. With the top crust off, the loaf is wrapped in a damp napkin for an hour or so. A paste of grated cheese and butter with enough milk to make it of a cottage cheese consistency should be spread over the loaf, a very thin slice cut, rolled, and folded in a small oblong of waxed paper. Before serving remove the paper and toast in the oven.

Recollections come of a sandwich supreme. I should like to steal into a certain kitchen again while old Anita is taking her afternoon siesta, filch two generous slices of raisin bread from the big tin in the pantry, insert between them a generous spoonful of thick white honey from the little rose crockery bowl, and slip out and away through the lilac bushes and the tulip beds to a corner in an old garden that I know.

The high brick walls which the years have softened in color and contour are festooned with ivy, honeysuckle, and wild rose vines mingled together in informal intimacy. Blue larkspur and yellow snapdragons nod there to each other over the heads of mignonette and candytuft. The air is vibrant with the hum of bees from neighboring hives, and now and again comes the chirp of an indignant robin that has tumbled inadvertently into the bird bath.

There is a hammock hung between an apple tree and an ancient oak—one especially adaptable to the occupant who has a predilection for lying on his stomach. Such a one peering directly down over the side will see two parallel lines of small black ants moving in opposite directions. If he inclines to day dreams, while he munches meditatively on his sweet sandwich and drops an occasional crumb along the route of travel, he may see two streams of knights-etrant riding to and from the sunny, turreted city of Camelot.

Ignorance of Food Measure Variations Handicaps Buyers

Frequently consumers are handicapped in making wise purchases of foods because they are unfamiliar with the variations between pounds and gallons and dozens of items, or with the equivalent of fresh, dried, or canned products.

These equivalents of common items in the food budget are typical of the shrinkage occurring during the processing, and also serve to indicate at times the form in which the items may best be purchased:

One pound of shelled almonds is equivalent to about 3 1-3 pounds unshelled. One pound dried apples is equivalent to about 5 pounds of fresh. Eighteen pounds of oatmeal is equivalent to about 1 bushel of oats. One pound shelled peanuts is about 1½ pounds unshelled. One pound raisins is about 4 pounds of grapes. One barrel of flour [196 pounds] is about 4.7 bushels of wheat. One pound shelled English walnuts is about 2.33 pounds unshelled. One pound of dried peaches is about 5½ pounds of fresh. One pound of dried prunes is about 2½ pounds of fresh. One pound of shelled filberts is about 2.22 pounds unshelled.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR APPLES? FIND 800 KINDS

While the apple fans in Chicagoland may be able to recognize a bare half dozen varieties to be found in the average local market, in reality there are more than 800 standard varieties of apples existing in orchards of the United States.

This declaration has been made by federal horticulture specialists in Washington, who are recommending that growers reduce the number of varieties produced commercially to improve their marketing and "to satisfy the exacting demands of consumers of high quality fruit."

In some years two-thirds of the apples grown in the Cumberland-Shenandoah states are shipped to Europe and England, the specialists report. Most of the apples shipped into Chicago come from nearby states, the west or northwest. All present supplies are being taken from storage.

CARROTS PROVIDE COLOR, VITAMINS IN MANY FORMS

Carrots with their yellow color, crispness, and supply of lime and iron, may well occupy an important place on the menu, according to Miss Alma Garvin, extension specialist in home economics at the Ohio State university, who says that this vegetable is also rich in vitamines A, B, and C.

An inexpensive and easily prepared food, carrots may be made a part of many meals. They may be sliced in rounds, cut in strips lengthwise, grated, or ground. They may be used in salads, alone or in combination with a variety of other foods, she says.

They are particularly good when cut into strips and served fresh and crisp in much the same manner as radishes or celery. As carrots are so colorful they may be used in combination with less colorful foods, such as in a potato or cabbage salad.

If carrots are to be served cooked they may be left whole or be cut into smaller pieces and cooked on top of the stove or in the oven. To conserve the health building minerals and vitamins it is best to cook them in a small amount of water for the shortest possible time. After they have been cooked all the water should have been cooked into the carrots, so that there is a delicious, sweet carrot flavor.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green ALL-BRAN package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Star in "Five Star Final"

A proper get-away in the morning accounts for the unusually exuberant spirits of Arthur Byron, stage star and popular Broadway favorite. Here he is seen with his Welch's smile . . . the smile of happy good health.

"Welch's Grape Juice is more than a delicious drink to me" he says. "I don't know anything about vitamins, but I do know that Welch's is very refreshing, both as a general beverage and as a breakfast starter".

Welch's is an energizing bracer any time of day. When you need quick energy, drop into the nearest fountain and ask for a glass of this pure, wholesome fruit juice.

for the Morning Smile

YOUR face tells a story to the world. If eyes are mirrors of the soul, no less is a radiant smile the mirror of good health.

Wholesome fruit such as Welch's Grape Juice as a part of the daily diet is the surest means of health insurance for the entire family. It is mildly laxative and non-fattening.

Drink Welch's—at breakfast, luncheon, dinner—every day throughout the year—and you will get all the concentrated goodness of America's own Concord grape. Loaded with quick energy and vitalizing elements, Welch's is brought to you scientifically pasteurized . . . ready for instant use. You'll find it wonderfully appetizing as a breakfast fruit.

1930 was a vintage year in the Westfield grape section of upper New York state. This means that today you enjoy an extra measure of that subtle bouquet, exotic flavor and lambent purple color which is the exclusive heritage of the Concord grape.

Children thrive on a fruit diet of Welch's. It supplies in abundant measure the liquids, mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins which doctors declare so necessary to growing bodies. Many prefer it with one-third to one-half water added. The best plan is to keep a supply of Welch's in your pantry always. Then there will be no interruption to the safest, simplest method of supplying your family with Nature's tonic-food.

Tully Finishes His Series on the Underworld

Pens Vivid Picture of One Strata of Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"BLOOD on the Moon," by Jim Tully [Coward-McCann], is, according to the author, "the last of a series of five volumes which I began six years ago [with 'Beggars of Life'] with the hope that they might be grouped through the coming years and known as the Underworld Edition." He discusses these volumes with characteristic frankness in "To Those Who Read," which is a sort of preface to "Blood on the Moon."

JIM TULLY.

They are all autobiographical, "Blood on the Moon" like the others. Jim Tully has evolved a peculiarly impressive method of writing. He says in the introduction: "To those critics, however kind, who contend that I am a novelist trying to find myself, I will here answer for the first and only time. If I have not been able to invent a new medium in my picaresque books, I have at least been strong enough not to conform to one which is outworn. I did not study the people in these books as an entomologist does a bug on a pin. I was one of them. I am still of them. I can taste the bitterness of their lives in the bread I eat today.

"In 'Blood on the Moon' I have written of the period which led to social adjustment, and of the people who, before and after, curdled their dreams with mine. With it, I bid farewell forever, I hope, to that life, the winds of which equally twisted and strengthened me for the sadder years ahead."

He certainly doesn't conform to any other outworn or established technique in "Blood on the Moon." It is neither autobiography nor fiction nor social observation nor biography nor comment on human life. Not any one of those things. And yet it is strangely all of them. It tells the story of a boy who was what is known as a "road kid," not, as he says in the strict sense of the word a hobo. A "road kid" is a migratory worker. It is the story of Jim Tully's own youth set down with startling frankness, and something that has at the same time the quality of detachment [because it is without restraint] and intense personal interest [because it is terribly real and ultimate]. There is no sentimentality about the author for his hero. He paints him as black as he was—and as white! He is a vivid fictional character probably because he was a real person. Jim Tully's method of writing is fictional. It tells a story always, and with the true story teller's verve.

"Blood on the Moon" is keen social observation of a strata that one meets often in fiction, but almost always in a glow of falseness. There was a picture from Punch on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE a couple of days ago in which a literary agent was saying to an aspiring author: "There's one grave drawback about your novel. You've made your parson more lovable than your gunman." Mr. Tully's work never suffers from the popular curse of making his gunmen lovable. "Blood on the Moon" is forthright, honest delineation of low characters. There is little lovableness, little sentiment, little of any of the finer sensibilities in it. But there is at the same time a certain terrific reality about it that makes it important as honest social observation.

The characters which he treats at any length at all all become biographies in parvo. His grandfather, a philosopher drunkard; Chlorine, a girl in a cheap saloon whose business it was to pet and wheedle men into spending money there, a gold-digger de luxe who never gave herself to any man; "Mink," who never didn't and who tried to get to an open window too late after she had turned on the gas; Jessie, who supported Jim with her work in the oldest profession in the world and whom he wouldn't marry to get her out of jail; Elva, the librarian who refused to marry a young man worth millions because she wanted "something that he couldn't give her—to be free," to which her old grandmother poignantly replied, "Poor child, that's another prison"; Uncle Coffee Sam, the ex-Union soldier; countless tramps and hangers-on at saloons all live in "Blood on the Moon," their biographies real and vivid, even if they are set down in a few pages.

And such a comment on human life as "Blood on the Moon" is! It is all tacit, Jim Tully's arraignment, but powerful. He writes little of mental suffering, which readers are so wont to associate with records of hard living. But in that lack his power lies. He says in one place in the book, "If little of mental suffering is in my writing the explanation is simple. In the world from which I came, if men knew they hurt you, they would hurt you again." The philosophy of a whole strata of society is in these two sentences.

But if there is little mental suffering, there is profound physical suffering. Some paragraphs about everyday life in "Blood on the Moon" are as cruel as anything that has been written about war. And irony stalks on its pages. There are a hundred novels undeveloped in them. Jim Tully has the novelist's eye when he looks at life and sets down his observations, and he has, too, a certain brutal reality.

"Blood on the Moon" isn't a pleasant book. The life that its author lived wasn't a pleasant life and he does not compromise with it in recording it.

The strange title comes from Mr. Tully's grandfather's statement that Jim was born at the time of blood on the moon. "It's blood on the moon that makes trouble," said old Hughie Tully, "an' thim that are born whin the moon is rid niver have pace till they die."

WELL I SEE OLD SCABB HAS JUST MOVED IN DOWN NEXT TO THE CORNER. A NICE NEIGHBOR TO HAVE.
BELIEVE ME I'M GOIN' TO LEAVE HIM STRICTLY ALONE.
THEY SAY HE'S GOT JUST OODLES OF MONEY TUCKED AWAY AND THAT HE MADE IT SQUEEZING WIDOWS AND ORPHANS.
YES AND STARVING HIS CHILDREN. THEY WERE TAKEN AWAY FROM HIM I UNDERSTAND.
HE BEAT HIS WIFE AND DROVE HER OUT YEARS AGO. THE NEIGHBORS HAD TO TAKE CARE OF HER.
AND HE ABUSED HIS HORSES UNTIL THEY HAD TO TAKE THEM AWAY FROM HIM.
HE GOT A NIECE TO COME AND KEEP HOUSE FOR HIM AND HE LOCKED HER UP AND KEPT HER ON BREAD AND WATER BECAUSE HE SAID SHE WASTED SOAP.
I HEARD HE GAVE A BOY TEN CENTS TO PULL HIS CARROTS FOR HIM AND THEN CHARGED HIM TEN CENTS FOR ONE CARROT HE ATE.

Visions Homes Costing $4,000 in Near Future

Predicts Mass Production Will Speed Building.

Baltimore, Md., May 28.—(AP)—Homes constructed and furnished in a week at a cost, including all modern improvements, as low as $4,000, were predicted for the near future before the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards here today.

The new style home, said Lawrence Kercher of New York, will have adjustable outside walls and partitions so the occupants may arrange the interior to suit their fancy.

"Mass production of building sections, the development of the possibilities for assembling house parts in great quantities, and the setting up of hundreds of houses in an area at one time would solve the housing need of the moment and make possible lower prices in an important field," said Mr. Kercher, managing editor of the Architectural Record and former professor of architecture at the universities of Pennsylvania and Virginia.

There will be more sun porches, roof terraces and attractive garden space, and the houses themselves will be built so that more sunlight and air may be admitted, said Kercher.

"The house of the future should be made for use and pleasure, and not to satisfy the whims of architects and developers, who build a sweetly picturesque or quaint bungalow that attracts attention but does not satisfy the more important human needs," he said.

"Tradition in design and construction has hindered improvement in this field."

Kercher called ideal the creation of community garages, and suggested also central kitchens to deliver meals to the house or apartment, and maid and valet service on call.

"The present home is built along too massive lines. It is not necessary to construct them as though they were to endure for all time," he said.

Schiller W. Franheim of Chicago told the realtors that synthetic materials, designed in the last two years, will greatly reduce the cost of American buildings. He said the new materials, one a substitute for mahogany, "will reduce upkeep to a degree which will be astounding to the ordinary layman."

Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment in Chicago, was another speaker.

Mark Levy of Chicago is scheduled to be elected treasurer of the association and three Chicagoans were named as directors—George F. Nixon, Louis Beardslee, and Earle Krumrine.

THE STAGE

THE Chicago legitimate stage has nothing in sight between "The Rap," which opens at the Studebaker tomorrow night, and Gregory Ratoff's revue, which is scheduled for the Harris June 28. Which means that the summer doldrums have begun.

But rumors of shows whose managers hope for warm weather runs here are fairly plentiful. For example, "Girl Crazy," a musical comedy which has had a long run on Broadway, was headed in this direction for a few hours yesterday. Gossip even fixed its opening date as June 22. Last night, however, the omens were reserved. The latest word on "Girl Crazy" is that its New York run will end tomorrow night, and that it will not be sent on tour.

An entertainment called "The Pajama Lady" is another possibility of the moment. George W. Lederer, veteran impresario and former Chicago citizen, is staging this piece. He has hopes of giving it a Chicago première June 15. Bulletins on this matter say that the show will go into rehearsal "as soon as financial arrangements are completed." Which means that you should not believe in "The Pajama Lady" until you see it.

Meanwhile the current playbills continue to melt away under the warmth of the premature summer sun. Six or eight productions will fold up on Broadway tomorrow night. In Chicago, "Oh, Promise Me" and "The Ninth Guest" will call it a season, leaving the Apollo and Adelphi theaters indefinitely vacant.

The Billboard, weekly trade journal of the show world, believes that the New York stage will find an unofficial censorship, called a "play jury plan," in effect next fall. It says editorially:

"The play jury plan is going into effect next season; that fact seems pretty definite. But in spite of universal eulogies, just how well it will work is another question.

"The plan provides for a jury, composed of representatives of the three branches of the theater and of the general public, to pass on plays or else to suggest changes to the management. All the managers have agreed to abide by its suggestions, and if one of them does get unruly the jury can refer his case to the police authorities."

Recent additions to the cast of the new "Ziegfeld Follies," which will begin a summer run in New York June 9, are Albert Carroll, Faith Bacon, John Daly Murphy, and Frank McCormack. Mr. Carroll was active in the two editions of the Theater Guild's "Garrick Gayeties," which have been seen in Chicago, and rates as the best female impersonator since Julian Eltinge.

The Friars club of New York, which recruits its membership from the theatrical professions, hopes to benefit its treasury by staging a "Frolic," as it used to do fifteen and twenty years ago. The plan contemplates an opening in New York June 21, and single performances in fourteen other cities, including Chicago. George M. Cohan will act as master of ceremonies when, as, and if this ambition is realized.

Patrons of the Yiddish drama at the Lawndale theater will see Samuel Goldenberg in "The Dangerous Age" tonight, Saturday, and Sunday. C. C.

Catholics May Eat Meat on Ember Day Tomorrow

Roman Catholics of the archdiocese of Chicago will be permitted to serve meat tomorrow through a special dispensation announced by Cardinal Mundelein, because of the holiday and the inconvenience or possible hardship of preparing meals without it for the occasion. This week being what is known as an Ember week, observed by Catholics four times during each year by abstinence from meat on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday as a penitential move, fish dinners would have been the rule in Catholic homes except for the dispensation.

Senn Chorus Goes to Work Like Experts

High School Group of 400 Wins Praise.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

A rather marvelous crowd of young singers, the Senn a capella chorus, appeared at Orchestra hall last night. They are the more astonishing because of the prefacing statement by Noble Cain, their director, that they are not picked voices. They are merely run of the school students, chosen with the only requirement that they want to sing.

About 400 of them, girls and boys, all clad in long green robes, appeared on the stage of Orchestra hall. Mr. Cain added in his preface that they are a wonderful gang to work with. They must be. At least they sang entrancingly.

It has been previously noted in this column that the way to get a good chorus is to catch the choristers young. That is what can be done in a high school. It may be that one does not get the full flower of completely matured voices, but, on the other hand, one finds voices that can float to any level and are not afraid of anything.

These singers went at their task like experts. They were thoroughly at home in the modern counterpoint of Arnold Bax, "I Sing of a Maiden That Is Mateless," in the ancient counterpoint of Thomas Tomkins of seventeenth century England, or Johann Sebastian Bach of eighteenth century Germany. They landed squarely in the middle of the pitch in any harmonic combination that could be put up to them, they shaded into whispers or swelled into an exultant shout. In fact, they were able to do almost anything except imitate the tone of older singers, and to make up for that the sopranos soared along on notes that would have caused older singers to split their throats, not to say the ears of the listeners.

With this kind of a program, old and new, and with this exquisite kind of singing, one is able to maintain flourishing hopes for the future of music.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Brinton Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent of Philadelphia, Pa., to William Laurens van Alen, son of Mrs. James L. van Alen of New York. Miss Kent was educated in Paris and was presented last year at the court of St. James. She came to Chicago last winter as house guest of Miss Bertha Palmer, daughter of the Potter Palmers. Mr. Van Alen is a descendent of John Jacob Astor.

Award Scholarships to H. S. Pupils at University of Chicago

Fifteen two year honor scholarships were awarded to high school seniors in the middle west by the University of Chicago yesterday. The awards, which are valued at $600, are from Chicago. Chicago winners and those of the metropolitan area follow: Frank E. Walsh, 3425 West 66th place; Sidney A. Weiss, 1513 East 68th street; Harry H. Harman, 1228 South Harding avenue; Walter E. Mochel, 414 Addison avenue, Elmhurst, and Eugene P. Ovson, 514 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park.

The American Daughters of Sweden Honor scholarship, established last month, to be given an entering freshman woman, at least one of whose parents is of Swedish descent, was granted to Miss Dorothy Swanson, 6549 South Seeley avenue, a student at Lindblom High school.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 27.—[Special.]—Imagine a girl with the sang froid to turn down $1,000,000. That's Ann Harding.

Right now Ann is making pictures for Pathe-RKO under and old contract that guarantees her $1,750 to $2,000 a week with one and one-half years yet to run. She adheres to this contract in preference to signing a new one which guarantees her $1,000,000, with no trick whereases under which a girl can be fired on short notice, the last of the million to be forthcoming in three years.

Charles R. Rogers, who is a producer at Pathe, is an individual holder of her present contract, but he made an arrangement with Pathe studio under which the studio corporation is, in fact, her employer. Rogers is trying to persuade the blond star to tear up this $2,000 current contract and sign a new one, under which she will receive $6,000 weekly at the end of three years and be guaranted a salary check each of the 52 weeks a year.

"I would sign with Mr. Rogers personally, but not an arrangement with Pathe or any other corporation because I fear the company itself might be sold to another company or merged, and my contract pass to unfriendly hands," Ann said in explaining her reasons for not signing. "I know Mr. Rogers would see that I got good stories to act in and that under him my value as an actress would not deteriorate.

"But I do not know that I would get proper stories if contracted to a corporation, and I owe it to my own future to see that poor stories do not lessen my drawing power."

Miss Harding wants Pathe to grant her the right to approve and veto suggested stories before she signs any new paper.

Pola Negri, who is sparring around while she and the Pathe-RKO moguls try to agree on a story as a vehicle for her attempted sound picture comeback, was trying to forecast what her old friend, Charlie Chaplin, will do in future.

Chaplin's "City Lights," which Charlie fondly expected to earn a lot of money to support his adherence to nontalking films, has fallen far short of Charlie's expectations.

Here is the way Pola, who recently saw Charlie in Europe, figures it out:

"Charlie is smart. He says that his next picture will be a talker. But at the same time it will be a silent Chaplin film. It will feature Charlie only in pantomime, which he insists is his forte, by making the central character a deaf and dumb man."

John Colton, the dramatist, wrote an original called "East River" for Miss Negri, but whether Pathe will really star her in this or not is undecided.

"I would like to do the story both on the stage and the screen," she said, "but we can't decide these things in a hurry.

Huge Parade Tomorrow to Honor Dead

City Will Recall Deeds of Veterans of All Wars.

Drumbeat and bugle call, flowers and flags, faded uniforms and vivid memories will herald Chicago's annual remembrance tomorrow of its hero dead. In cemetery plot and in loop streets, in the city proper and in its far flung environs, all activities are to focus on the Memorial day parade in its varied phases.

W. P. WRIGHT.

As always, the major feature of the day will be the military and civic processional which each year sweeps down Michigan avenue from Chicago avenue to Roosevelt road, keeping green the spirit of patriotism in which American soldiers of all wars have died. This year officials report indications of the greatest pageant of the community's history.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, as commander in chief of the military and naval forces of the state, will top the list of reviewing officers. Also in the stand will be Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Mayor Cermak, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the 6th corps area, Lieut. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Brig. Gens. Abel Davis, Frank S. Dickson, and John V. Clinnin, and other dignitaries.

In the vanguard of the marchers will be the horse ridden by the late Gen. James E. Stuart, in his official capacity of many years past as grand marshal of the parade. Gen. Stuart died last March.

Snappy young cadets from St. John's Military academy at Delafield, Wis., marching as honorary escort to the colors, will precede the band and drill team of Woodlawn post, No. 175, of the American Legion, which in turn will head the column of civil war veterans, each year a little thinner, a little slower. The boys in blue will form in a line at Randolph street, and leave the line of march at the Logan monument.

For the first time this year Morgan Park Military academy cadets will march in full dress regalia, as escort to Capt. William P. Wright, who succeeds Gen. Stuart as grand marshal. In previous years the cadet corps participated in the services of the Morgan Park G. A. R. post, now disbanded.

Platoons of Spanish-American war veterans, world war veterans, including hospitalized former service men in automobiles; Veterans of Foreign Wars; British and Colonial veterans, French, Belgian-American, and Polish veterans and their auxiliary organizations will make up the line of march. A special division will be comprised of army and navy forces from Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes, the Illinois National Guard, army and navy reserves, Marine corps, and Air Commerce reserves, and other groups.

More than 250 sick and wounded veterans of the world war will be brought into Chicago from local government hospitals to participate in the parade, through arrangements by the Cook County Council of the American Legion. Cars are being furnished for the purposed by the Chicago Auto Trade association. After the parade the hospitalized vets will be escorted to the Hamilton club, where William H. Malone will be their host at luncheon.

Gov. Emmerson will be accompanied to Chicago by Mrs. Emmerson, and will be the guest at noon of the Commonwealth Edison post of the Legion at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman. At 1 o'clock he will make an address, which will be broadcast over station WLS. Chairman Charles W. Hadley of the Illinois commerce commission will also attend.

Ralph T. O'Neil, Topeka, Kas., attorney and national commander of the American Legion, will arrive in Chicago this morning to fill two Memorial day engagements here prior to the actual date. He will be the guest of honor and main speaker at noon today at the annual luncheon and program of the Hamilton club. Tonight he will address the Marshall Field post of the Legion at a dinner in the men's grill.

For the ninth consecutive year a military field mass at 9:30 will begin the observance of Memorial day tomorrow in Mount Carmel cemetery for the Order of the Alhambra, in honor of the war dead. The event is sponsored by Boabdil Caravan, especially commemorating the second anniversary of the death of its chaplain, the Rev. John J. O'Donnell, major chaplain of the 33d division. It is anticipate dthat about 10,000 persons will hear the mass. The Rev. M. P. Campbell, captain chaplain, 124th field artillery, will be the celebrant.

Oak Park plans to observe the day with its usual extensive exercises, including the parade of the G. A. R., Spanish-American, and world war units and auxiliary organizations, from Ridgeland Commons to Scoville park, where a Memorial program will be held. Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity will lead the parade, in which nine civil war veterans will participate.

Commander A. B. Ferry of Phil Sheridan post, 615 of the G. A. R., and Maj. Hugh M. Walter, representing Oak Park post 15 of the Legion, the National Guard and the Forty and Eight, have directed the arrangements, as they have for the last eleven years.

At least three large parades will be staged by suburbs along the north shore. Evanston expects 1,500 to take part in the march under the auspices of Legion post 42, with Maj. William Bechtold officiating. World war veterans, the Northwestern University band, North Shore chapter of the Reserve Officers association, Evanston

High School Training corps and band, and similar groups will participate.

Winnetka Legion post 10 will lead that community's parade, including members of the chamber of commerce, Rotary club, Boy Scouts, and others, to the number of 500.

In Wilmette the Heuter Legion post and the G. A. R. chapter will direct services in the Lake Front park. Wreaths will be placed on graves in St. Joseph cemetery. A detachment of the U. S. Naval Reserve corps will march in the parade, to be led by Marshal D. J. L. Walther. Boy Scouts will parade also in Glencoe and Kenilworth.

Practically all public schools of the city and suburbs will hold Memorial day exercises today with special assemblies and programs commemorative of the patriotic spirit of the anniversary. Senn High school, however, stole a march on other institutions and held its assembly yesterday.

Special low rate excursions to points in nearby states are being offered by railroads to those Chicagoans who contemplate taking advantage of the week-end holiday. Others are expected to bring many thousands into the city for the same purpose. The Prairie club will leave 223 South Wabash avenue at 8:58 o'clock tomorrow morning for a hike from Highland Park to Fort Sheridan, in which the public is invited to join.

At Riverview park picnic grove, an international football game between Swedish and Norwegian teams will be one of the numbers of the program of the Swedish celebration held there. Concerts by glee clubs and choruses will also be held.

United Confederate Veterans, Sons of Confederate Veterans, and United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold joint Memorial day services for the men who wore the gray, at the Confederate monument in Oakwoods cemetery at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow.

Chicago Heights post 131 of the Legion will join with twenty patriotic and civic organizations in a parade through the business district of the suburb, and a program comprising the most ambitious demonstration of its type held there in years.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

MISS CORDA HIGBIE PALMER.
[Rochik photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. P. Bowditch Palmer Jr. of 1225 East 50th street announce the engagement of their daughter, Corda Higbie, to H. Ferris White Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold White of 4947 Kimbark avenue. Miss Palmer was graduated from the Faulkner School for Girls and later attended Miss Risser's school in Rome. Mr. White is a graduate of Williams college.

Woman Is Homely or Lovely According to Makeup She Chooses

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Tom C——, makeup specialist at a famous New York movie studio, and one who has been working on makeup for women lo, these many years, hints that they are homely or beautiful according to the manner in which their makeup is chosen and applied.

Experience, Mr. Cameron says, has proved to him that every woman has either lovely eyes, a well shaped mouth, a perfectly molded nose, or beautiful skin. And using one's best assets as the point of interest in makeup is what our authority urgently advises.

"The first essential in all good makeup is to have a perfectly smooth surface," this expert tells in a current beauty trade publication. "If the skin is normal or oily an astringent will serve as a base. But if it is dry a cream or liquid foundation base should be used."

The purpose of powder, we are reminded, is not to get a heavy coating or mask, but simply to remove the shine from the face, and powder dabbed on with a piece of cotton and then brushed off is the method preferred above that of rubbing powder into the face, as is so often done with a puff.

A well dressed face should have four changes of powder, according to the studio expert. Anyway, that's what he suggests to his actresses, so that there will always be perfect color harmony with the costume. A pale ivory tint, for one; a medium or darker tone, for another; a flesh tone and a lavender or orchid, are his choices. These should keep a face in pretty presentable shape.

Fort sport togs the medium or dark powder seems best. With a gray or red dress a bit of flesh powder added to the medium or dark powder helps. And a little lavender or orchid undoes the harsh effects of artificial lights on the face.

This makeup business, now, is certainly out of the amateur class. Every woman just about has to be a professional in order to pass muster. There can't be any "spottiness" in either powder or rouge application. And the more one learns of the art of blending colors and becoming colors for type and occasion, so much the better for the woman's beauty reputation.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This is a dress that is easily adjusted to the figure. The wrapover effects are decidedly slenderizing—so this model is certain to be popular. Not at all difficult to make either, which is a point in its favor. Any of the silk crêpes, summer sports silks, or thin woolens will be suitable.

The pattern, 3107, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Social Position Is Usually Determined by Husband, It Seems

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Do you believe that the husband determines a woman's place socially? Suppose an educated girl, used to the best in a social way, were to marry a man beneath her. Would she be reduced to his level, or could she not pull him up to hers? To put it more plainly, I have an admirer who had a poor education, as revealed in his conversation and in his social manner. He hasn't been much of a money success, either. His associates are men of his own grade. JULIENNE."

To a great extent, men do determine the social position of their wives. Occasionally you may see a wife with a rare personality or a particularly strong mind who can manage to achieve whatever social position she sets out to attain, by herself.

If a woman has an established background, family, money, position, it is quite possible that her husband will be accepted for her sake. But without this kind of background a woman naturally gravitates into the circle of her husband's friends, unless, as said, she is one of the personally aggressive sisters.

The reason our best authorities encourage marriage among people of like social standing is because they recognize the long, hard pull behind a "mismated" union. It happens, sometimes, that a rich girl who elopes with the family chauffeur makes a go of it. But more often this sort of union does not last.

This may be true, too, of a rich young man who marries outside his social caste, although the grade is more easily made if it is the man who has the superior position. If the couple were left to themselves they might manage successfully enough, but it's the pressure of family and friends and certain prescribed educational and etiquette codes that have to be wrestled with in our not so democratic country.

Education, of course, will lift our poorest boy out of the humblest environment into the most exalted social position. Without education, without the social niceties, it would be a long, hard pull for a girl to win a place in her educated circle for a man.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover was entertained at luncheon today by Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the secretary of war. Other guests of Mrs. Hurley were Mrs. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state; Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the attorney general; Mrs. Adams, wife of the secretary of the navy; Mrs. Doak, wife of the secretary of labor, and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr.

Mrs. Hoover gave her box for the Davis cup tennis matches at the Chevy Chase club to the cabinet hostesses. A party of them motored out to the club after the luncheon. Mrs. Hurley has charge of the box and is arranging other cabinet parties for the other days of the matches.

Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas Dresser White have returned from China, where Lieut. White has been language officer at the American legation in Peking. They are with Mrs. White's mother, Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb, who was a niece of the late James G. Blaine, secretary of state under Benjamin Harrison. Lieut. White will be stationed in Washington for two years.

Vice President Curtis yesterday joined his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gann, in their Cleveland Park home for the remainder of the time he is in town. Mr. and Mrs. Gann closed their apartment at the Mayflower yesterday.

Secretary Stimson entertained at luncheon today at Woodley in honor of Mrs. Horatio F. Alfaro, presiding commissioner of the general and special claims commission for the United States and Mexico. A large company of officials of this country and Mexico were asked to meet him.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

J. G.: SOME MOLES ARE CANcerous, therefore it is important that you have a mole treated by a specialist. It is a precautionary measure. An ordinary mole, light brown in color and elevated about the size of a pea, may be removed successfully with the electric needle.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Unwelcome Attention.

"Dear Miss Blake: I do not care for the boy who cares for me. How can I stop his paying attention to me?
"MARY."

Plead other engagements when he asks to see you or take you out, and he will soon realize that his attentions are no longer pleasing.

Attendants for Two Weddings Are Announced

BY THALIA——

MISS VIRGINIA STARR MYERS, who is to be married on June 17 to Edward C. Kohlsaat Jr., and Miss Carol Bourne, whose marriage to Edward C. Howe Jr. is to be solemnized on July 11, have selected the attendants for their respective nuptials.

There will be 22 young men and women assisting at the Myers-Kohlsaat wedding, which will take place at 5:30 o'clock [daylight saving time] in the new Princeton university chapel at Princeton, N. J., with John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, officiating. After the ceremony the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Starr Myers, will give a small wedding supper at the Present Day club of Princeton.

The groom's two sisters, Mrs. Franklin E. Agnew Jr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Harkness, will be matrons of honor, and the bride's sister, Miss Margaret Barr Myers, maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Margaret Richter, Miss Martha Stockton, Miss Margaret Maier, Miss Isabelle Johnston, and Miss Cathleen Carnochan of Princeton; Miss Jane Sayen of Hamilton Square, N. J.; Miss Marjorie Clements of New York City, and Miss Florence Bovier of Elmira, N. Y.

The groom's cousin, Harry K. Wells Jr. of Hubbard Woods, will serve as best man, and the ushers will be Frank Scott Cooper of Roanoke, Va., who was Mr. Kohlsaat's roommate in college; Franklin E. Agnew Jr., Edwin M. Harkness; Edwin T. Goodridge of New York City, Muncell T. Clark of Greenwich, Conn.; Andrew McNally of Evanston, Frank Fowler Jr. of Winnetka, Willard Jaques, William MacPheeters of Cleveland, and Hampton Ripley of Winnetka.

Miss Bourne's marriage to Mr. Howe will provide for her friends that rare treat—a summer wedding in town. The bridal entourage will consist of Miss Marion Gilman as maid of honor and a quartette of bridesmaids, including Miss Rosemary Sidley, Miss Elinor Whiting, Miss Eleanor McPherrin of Denver, Colo., and Miss Marjorie Cornell of Ithaca, N. Y.

Jack Ackerman is to be best man for Mr. Howe and Waldo Tobey, Thomas Wyman, and Morris Dowd Van Patten will usher. All of the groomsmen were classmates of Mr. Howe's at Cornell and are members of Theta Delta Chi. The Rev. Gardner McWhorter, who will perform the ceremony, is affiliated with the same fraternity. Following the service at St. Chrysostom's there will be a reception at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Rudolph E. Prussing, at 1247 North State street.

HER ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

MISS PAULINE M'COY.
[Chidnoff Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McCoy of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Pauline, to Robert Sargent Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Cook of Evanston.

Miss Eloise Higgins' Engagement Told.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilfred Higgins of 1448 Lake Shore drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Eloise Winifred to Norris B. Gregg Jr. of St. Louis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norris B. Gregg of St. Louis and New York. Miss Higgins is a graduate of Mary Institute in St. Louis where the Higginses resided before coming to Chicago several years ago, and is a member of the Junior league. Mr. Gregg studied at the Hackley school at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson and at Washington university.

Miss Higgins' sister, Miss Jeanette Higgins, gave a luncheon for her yesterday to reveal the betrothal. The wedding, which is to be a small family affair, is to take place on June 27 in the chapel of St. James's, and will be followed by a reception at the Fortnightly. Mr. Gregg is visiting the Higginses for several days.

North shore youngsters are working their heads off to make a showing in the second annual model yachting regatta to be staged on June 6, a week from tomorrow, at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Lake Forest boys who will enter homemade and store models include Gordon Potter, Howard Peabody, Billy Mann, Larry and Edward Dawson, David Peck Jr., Edward Birmingham, Buddy Seaverns, David Owen Jr., Henry Dangler, Charles Wacker and Henry Preston.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis, who were summoned to Florence in February by the illness of Mr. Aldis's sister, Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, have returned from Europe and are ensconced in the Playhouse on the Aldis compound in Lake Forest. Mrs. Lathrop is quite well again and will sail homeward in July to spend the late summer at her estate in York Harbor, Me. The Graham Aldises and their four children are occupying the largest house on the compound and Mrs. Aldis's niece, Mrs. George L. Dickson, and her children are in the little cottage which Mrs. Aldis christened the Hayloft.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Valentine of 1215 Astor street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at St. Luke's hospital on Tuesday. Mrs. Valentine is the former Jean Purcell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Purcell. She and Mr. Valentine were married in Boston last July. The baby is to be named Ann Loring Valentine.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John Farson have gone to their summer home in Greenwich for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden sailed on the Aquitania to pass the summer in Switzerland.

Miss Errol Katherine Brown gave a luncheon at the Park Lane for Miss Hazel Henderson of Garden City, whose engagement to Kenneth Williams was announced recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Barret Andrews will sail on June 10 for Morocco, where they will spend a month before traveling for two months in Europe and Africa.

Mrs. Alfred Kessler left for Balston Spa, where she will pass the summer.

Some to Europe, Others to Summer Homes.

Mentionables—Miss Cornelia Fairbanks is visiting a former schoolmate, Miss Virginia Borden, in Media, Penn., for the horse show week. The Daniel Peterkin servants arrived in Lake Geneva this week to open the Peterkin place in readiness for the family for Memorial day. Mrs. Hugh McBirney returned to this country a short while ago, and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, has been spending a few days with her before she and the two little girls sail today for Europe. The seacow was one of the most looked at of the fishy inhabitants of the Shedd aquarium at the reception Tuesday evening, and the guests seemed to like the seahorse best.

Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr. of Lake Forest is betaking herself and her two young daughters to Germany shortly to spend the summer. The Casselberry house having been let for the summer, Mr. Casselberry will be with his mother. Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry and her youngsters are coming up from Florida to be here for most of the summer. They will probably divide their visit between Lake Forest and the Winnetka residence of Mrs. Casselberry's father, John R. Leonard, and Mrs. Casselberry will come up later to join them.

A number of interested organizations will be represented at the speakers' table at the Century of Progress banquet to be given under the auspices of the Association of Arts and Industries on Monday evening at the Palmer house. Col. William Nelson Pelouse, president of the association, will preside, and the speakers will include Rufus C. Dawes, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, and Harvey Wiley Corbett, chairman of the architectural commission of the Century of Progress exposition. The group at the speakers' table will include Sewell L. Avery, Bernard E. Sunny, Daniel H. Burnham, Howard L. Cheney, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, Edward H. Bennett, George W. Dixon, Frank G. Logan, Britton I. Budd, and George A. Williams.

Another of the popular bridge teas being given under the auspices of the Woman's Guild and Auxiliary of Christ church, Winnetka, will take place next Monday afternoon with Mrs. Stephen Gregory Jr. and Miss Dorothy Stirling as hostesses, assisted by Mrs. William Ogden Green, Mrs. Langdon Pearse, and Mrs. Walter O. Wilson.

ENGAGEMENT

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mary Elisabeth Bunn, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Glaser Bunn of Philadelphia, to Alexander Kennedy Dewar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Whiteside Dewar of Chicago.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. She and her mother lived in a remote section of Paris. Clare attended a school play one evening and was brought home by friends. Her mother heard the car stop in front of the house and Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opened the door Clare had vanished.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of great charm, but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to help Iris.

Iris moves to her aunt's home. When she arrives she learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. He has been seeing Clare, unknown to her mother, for some time past, and knows more of the child's life and her friends than Iris.

Alan is refused admittance at the home of the comtesse. Iris sees him secretly and tells him that on account of her aunt's financial assistance she cannot offend her. They plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan meets Marcel at Helen's and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily, and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. Alan runs across an old friend, Tommy Kostetter, a journalist, and asks his help. They drop in a café, where Alan sees the woman who was one of De Bertincourt's companions in Le Touquet. They go to Tommy's apartment. Tommy shows Alan an apartment opposite, formerly Marcel's but now occupied by Suzanne Marly, an actress. As he is leaving, Alan sees Marcel entering Miss Marly's home. Helen tells Alan that she had dinner with Marcel the night Clare disappeared. Alan receives a wire giving him an extra fortnight's leave in Paris.

Iris receives a letter stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris will become reconciled. Marcel interrupts a visit at Helen's of Iris and Alan. He offers to drive them home.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

EMOTIONAL OUTPOURINGS.

Meanwhile, driving swiftly and well, de Bertincourt had headed straight for the rue de Babylone, which meant that he meant to set his wife down first. Charnwood, alighting to open the door for her, caught a glance of mute appeal, which he tried to answer reassuringly.

"Don't worry," he murmured, "I believe he is as anxious as you are not to run any risk." He longed to add that probably there was no risk, but dared not say more.

As he took her hand something with a hard edge pressed into his palm. It was one of her visiting cards, on which, no doubt, she had managed to scribble a note. He dropped it surreptitiously into his pocket and rejoined her husband.

"Your hotel? Ah yes, the little Lambaile! I know it well."

In a few minutes they had turned into the rue de Bourgogne, where Charnwood made a movement to descend, only to be stopped by a pressure on his arm. He then saw that de Bertincourt, tense and distrait, was frowning ahead with a look of indecision, difficult to translate.

"Can I help you in any way?" ventured Charnwood diffidently as he failed to speak. "If so, I need hardly say I am at your service."

To his astonishment the Frenchman responded with impulsive alacrity.

"You really mean that, monsieur? Then perhaps you will permit me to come inside with you and talk this matter over? I am too bewildered to think clearly, and frankly," with a burst of confidence, "I am in a very painful quandry!"

"Come in, by all means," invited Charnwood, masking his surprise, and touched, oddly enough, by this direct appeal.

Presently, moving aimlessly to and fro, he began to talk.

Within the archway de Bertincourt halted apprehensively.

"These public places—one never knows who may be listening. Might I suggest your own room?"

"Certainly. The lift is just ahead."

Although they reached the upper floor without encountering a soul, de Bertincourt fairly plunged into Charnwood's door, where, letting a deep sigh escape him, he mopped his forehead with his gray silk handkerchief. He seemed completely unnerved.

He allowed Charnwood to pour three fingers of whisky into a tumbler, meanwhile lighting one of his own cigarets with trembling hands. Still standing, he turned his deep ringed, unnaturally bright eyes about the room with a vacant stare. From carpet to ceiling they roamed, dwelling on every object they encountered, but always with the same air of mental detachment. It was some moments before he remembered his drink, and gulped it down quickly.

Suddenly Charnwood woke to the fact that Iris' photograph faced them in full view from the chest of drawers. The blood rushed into his face. Quietly crossing, he laid his hat in front of it, glancing round to see if his actions had been observed. Apparently not. The Frenchman's eyes were glued to the little traveling clock on the mantel.

Presently, moving aimlessly to and fro, he began to talk. Turbulent sentences, questions not requiring answers, poured from his lips as he spoke of the possible fraud, the chance that after the ransom was paid, Clare might not be restored to them, the despicable advantages taken by the criminals, his own burning desire for vengeance—all with an utter lack of logic or continuity which left the listener confused. Charnwood waited patiently for him to come to some definite point, only to conclude that there was none in sight. His sense of injury showed itself in violent language.

"Is there no possible means of outwitting these blackguards?" he raved. "Of what use is the law if it cannot cope with such dastardly crime? Do you realize, monsieur, what an outrage has been perpetrated on three innocent people, and that we have absolutely no redress? None whatever—we are made to toe the mark in more ways than one——" Charnwood imagined this referred to the comtesse's demands——"or else incur some consequence too frightful to think of." He wiped his brow again. "When I picture what my little Clare has endured this last week, when I see what has been done to my wife, I find it hard to restrain myself. Yet in all probability these scoundrels will go unpunished!"

In any case, one thing was clear. De Bertincourt had no more idea that the plot might emanate from his aunt than Iris had. Like her, he believed this to be the work of strangers whom he could not reach.

Letting him run on in this strain, Charnwood became aware of two impressions. First, more strongly than ever before, he began to perceive his visitor's great personal charm. Strange that this ungoverned emotion did not render the man ridiculous in his British eyes, yet somehow de Bertincourt never once lost dignity nor failed to enlist both sympathy and—yes, it was true—liking. Charnwood felt his prejudices slipping away, clutched at them to find them melting between his fingers. One had to like this fellow! That was all there was about it. He was endowed with some quality of child-like simplicity and candor which disarmed criticism and made one want to help him, his very instability constituting an appeal. No wonder Helen was anxious to support, to defend him. In a little time, he thought uneasily, Iris would do the same, and one would not be able to blame her.

The second impression, less easy to define, was a repetition of his sensations a little while ago in Helen's salon. He got the idea that although De Bertincourt was verbally inveighing against circumstances, suggesting one wild plan after another to trap the criminals, his inner mind was struggling with some other problem, perhaps a concrete one, which he refrained from mentioning. At times he broke off altogether to glance at his watch, stare ahead unseemingly, or dab his forehead with his handkerchief. That he had a good reason for being frightened and worried was without question, but was there some other secret cause for alarm, something he hesitated to speak about? Charnwood almost fancied there was.

At last in a flash he guessed what he believed to be the truth, in short, that the distraught man was troubled over the enforced promise to return his marital ties. From first to last he had behaved like a gentleman, but Iris was convinced that like her he was being driven against his inclinations. If so, he must be thinking desperately of a way out, hoping for some means of rendering the payment unnecessary. As this occurred to him, Charnwood had the brilliant inspiration that the three of them might work together towards a common end. Something might be done about this after all. Drawing forward the one comfortable chair, he urged his companion to sit down.

"May I offer a suggestion?" he said awkwardly, lighting the fresh cigaret the other had just produced. Incidentally the hearth was littered with half smoked ones. "But first let me get this clear. Am I to understand that you feel you ought to inform the police of this new move, but you are deterred from doing so by the threats contained in the letter?"

De Bertincourt eyed him dazedly.

"Eh? But yes, monsieur, you have grasped my precise difficulty. We are too well known, are probably being watched—and the awful part is, we don't know by whom! I do not dare take even my friends into my confidence." He made a despairing gesture.

"In that case, what about me? I am a stranger in Paris, no one is at all likely to notice what I do. If you are willing to entrust the communication to me, I can at least show it to Inspector Maupin and get an opinion. Experts might find some internal clew which has escaped our eyes. I don't say that anything could be done, and I would get his promise to make no move without consulting you, but we should have the satisfaction of knowing we were not acting altogether blindly."

Through clouds of smoke his guest eyed him rather blankly.

"You would not mind undertaking this, monsieur?"

"Of course not—only we must have your wife's consent. She may disapprove."

Student Work and Old Prints Are on Display

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One of the interesting exhibits of the week is that of the work by students being held in the American Academy of Art, Kimball hall. Of this efficient school Frank Young is the director. There is a great deal of extremely fine work in the exhibit. The various divisions show an intelligent understanding of the possibilities of design, color, line, pattern, novelty, and the academic tradition and have arranged a comprehensive display of their understanding that warrants placing the school in an above the average category.

To go back almost a century into Chicago's history, there is an exhibit of prints of early scenes in and around town now on view at the Chicago Historical society. A view of the Clark and Wells street bridges in 1861 shows sailing vessels predominating and no building along the river's bank rising higher than five stories. Another lithograph depicts the early days of pork packing and canning. There is a Currier & Ives view of Chicago before the world's Fairs another of the steamboat Christopher Columbus in the days of its glory; others of the old Briggs house and the old Sherman house when cars were horse drawn. The exhibit is fascinating.

The Art institute has several little exhibits of interest to offer at the moment. In the Children's museum is an intriguing array of pottery from Hull house. This pottery enterprise of Hull house is rapidly becoming a real factor in Chicago's art life. In the print galleries may be found a stirring group of etchings by James McBey, one of the greatest of English etchers. In the print department there is also an exhibit of the work of four great Italians, Giambattista Piranesi, Antonio Canaletto, and the two Tiepolos, father and son. In gallery H-5 of the Hutchinson wing are "pillar prints" from the Clarence Buckingham collection. The prints are, of course, of Japanese origin. They illustrate perfectly a characteristic form of 18th century Japanese art and will be on view to June 1.

Dr. Samuels Named President of Hotel Physicians' Society

Dr. M. W. Samuels, house physician of the Bismarck hotel, was chosen yesterday as the first president of the newly formed Society of Hotel Physicians at a meeting in the Palmer house. Dr. Joseph Blake of the Congress hotel was elected secretary and Dr. John Sweeney of the Palmer house was chosen chairman of a committee to draft bylaws and to arrange for affiliation with the medical societies, of which all the hotel physicians are members.

Dr. Samuels said the aims and purposes of the Society of Hotel Physicians is to improve the facilities for proper medical and surgical care of travelers, to counsel and advise with the hotel owners and associations for the proper sanitation and prevention of accidents to guests and employés.

The Chicago Society of Hotel Physicians is intended to be the forerunner of a national organization of hotel physicians, Dr. Samuels said. Among the charter members are Dr. William Harsha of the Stevens hotel; Dr. T. J. Coogan of the Blackstone and the Drake; Dr. Lee Kiel of the Sherman; Dr. L. G. Reese of the Morrison, and the officers.

Authors and Singers Are Guests of Club Presidents' Conference

Authors, composers, and opera singers were guests at the annual conference of club presidents at the Stevens hotel yesterday. More than 350 presidents of clubs in northern Illinois and Indiana were among the 1,600 who attended the meeting.

Carrie Jacobs Bond of Hollywood, Cal., composer of "A Perfect Day," sang and played some of her compositions. Barre Hill and Miss Alice Mock of the Chicago Civic Opera company also sang. Actors of productions appearing in Chicago were present.

Detroit Conductor Declines to Lead Italian Concerts

BERLIN, May 28.—(AP)—Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, who is visiting in Berlin, today declined to conduct a series of concerts in Milan and Scala on the grounds that his feelings had been "outraged" by the treatment accorded Arturo Toscanini, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, in Bologna. "A handful of ruffians simply appointed themselves as Toscanini's judges and executioners and abused a man whom the entire world venerates. It is beside the question whether Toscanini was right or wrong in refusing to play the Fascist hymn."

Gala Program to Be Staged Tomorrow at Knollwood Club

Gala day will be observed tomorrow at the Knollwood club in Lake Forest. With the formal opening of the golfing season with qualifying rounds for the greens trophy Charles H. MacDowell donates each year, the equestrian committee staging a parade of riders in fancy dress as the initial move in its program, informal inauguration of the new swimming pool, and the customary dance in the evening, things will be humming.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

One day last summer in the country some one conceived the idea of having an old fashioned spelling bee. Lists of the hair raising polysyllabic words were made with the aid of several fat dictionaries. In order to make it as hilarious as possible one of the men—it would be a man—suggested that we take a large cowbell he had found and ring it violently whenever any one missed a word. Well, we did the ringing and shouts of good natured derisive laughter would greet the loser, as he ignominiously went down the line. This match was for grownups only.

Later on the children came around and wanted a spelling bee held for them the next Sunday. There were good spellers and bad spellers, private school children and public school children, gentle little girls and rough big boys—but they all stipulated with one accord. "But don't have a bell!"

"I don't believe that most people even partly realize how sensitive children are to ridicule. Ridicule is so often lightly used by grownups toward children—but it never falls lightly on the child. Ridicule becomes a weapon against which children find it hard to defend themselves.

The fact that those children in the country couldn't stand that derisive bell ringing, even done with the utmost good nature, shows how unable children are to cope with ridicule. I have seen parents and relatives, too, who have dropped into a habit of ridicule with their children—sometimes privately, sometimes in public—without sensing how raw their children become under its flicking. They don't see them flinch, wince, or shrink because children will go to any lengths to cover up the hurt.

Ridicule is a destructive, a disintegrating force and people who are in daily association with children should watch themselves lest they unconsciously fall into the habit of using it.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

An Error in Briefcases.

When I was a high school student I always carried a brief case. I seldom missed taking it home every day. It was necessary for me to take a street car home, so I always put the case under the seat and held it place with my legs.

One day it wasn't necessary to take the case home. I found a seat on the crowded street car and started to read a book. Glancing up I saw the next stop was mine. I closed my book and picked up a case from underneath my seat, and hurried to the door.

Imagine my embarrassment when a man put his hand on my shoulder and said, "Stop, thief!"

After returning the case with a hasty explanation it didn't take me long to leave the car. B. R. S.

Pajamas for Mood of Leisure and Gayety

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—For those hours of relaxation in which the hardworking social butterfly restores her shattered nerves (at least they're popularly supposed to be shattered, but I think the modern woman has strong, fit ones) the smartest and most comfortable garments to be found in Paris are pajamas. Not those old pajamas that have literal trousers, reminiscent of our boy friends, but flowing affairs, each leg of which is wider than an ordinary skirt.

Jumpers have been reinstated in the smart round the clock mode, and a separate jumper with one of the new divided skirts make an ideal lounging ensemble.

An extremely smart version of this sartorial idea is sketched today. Mainbiocher makes it in three colors: Brown, pale pink, and pale yellow, composed in a slenderizing effect. The full circular divided skirt is all in dark brown crêpe Flamand, that has a ribbed surface like silk serge. The jumper is cleverly cut in triangles that drape it becomingly on the figure. The little cap sleeves and the central triangle, that becomes a tie belt in the back, are of dark brown crêpe. The lower section and the bib collar are yellow, while the décolleté point in back and the one over the bust in front are pale pink. This adaptable ensemble is equally smart for informal evening occasions, being quite dressed enough for the summer dinner hostess.

HEAD ACHE

When you feel a headache coming on, it's time to take Bayer Aspirin. Two tablets will head it off, and you can finish your shopping in comfort.

Any over-exertion is apt to bring pain in some form. Head pains from crowds or noise. Limbs that ache from sheer weariness. Joints sore from the beginnings of a cold. Systemic pain. The remedy is rest. But immediate relief is yours for the taking; a pocket tin of Bayer Aspirin is protection from pain wherever you go.

You never know when these tablets may save the day, avoid breaking an engagement, spare you from a miserable evening or sleepless night.

Get real aspirin. Look for Bayer on the box. Read the proven directions found inside every genuine Bayer package. They cover headaches, colds, sore throat, toothache, neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, muscular pains—and other suffering which need not be endured.

Bayer-Tablets of Aspirin
BAYER
Genuine

These tablets do not depress the heart. Nor do they upset the stomach. They do nothing but stop the pain. Every druggist has Bayer Aspirin in the pocket size, and in bottles. If you wish to save money, buy the genuine tablets by the hundred. It doesn't pay to experiment with imitations at any price!

FARM AND GARDEN

SEND FOR YOUR COPY.

"Flower Gardening," a handsome 64 page, illustrated booklet for Chicagoland amateurs, has been reprinted and may be secured for 10 cents at any Tribune public service office or for 13 cents in stamps from Farm and Garden editor, Chicago Tribune.

RECOGNITION FOR AMATEURS.

Many Chicagoans maintain their gardens for the sheer love of floral culture and the joy it brings to the immediate family or friends. In recent years contests such as those THE TRIBUNE or local garden clubs sponsor have given wider recognition to those who develop excellent plants or blooms.

But in the recent development of the amateur flower shows of such organizations as the Men's Garden club, both men and women flower growers have a distinctive opportunity. The spring flower exhibit, to be held at Garfield park conservatory June 13 and 14, offers an opportunity to win medals and ribbons, and to gain experience under the judging of the best authorities in this region. It is open to all, including suburbanites.

No advance entry need be made for this competition, which provides classes for peonies, bearded and beardless iris, roses, lilies, pyrethrum, primula, poppies, delphinium, daisies, columbine, viola, hemerocallis, hesperis, heuchera, lupines, pansies, sweet william, artistically arranged vase of flowers, or bowls, baskets, including any other flowers in season.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Georgene, who is 3 years old, asked me to tell her a story. I started to tell her about Jack and the Beanstalk.

"O," she said, after I had started, "that's a vegetable story, isn't it?"

Request for Evening Wrap.

"I wonder if some reader has an evening wrap my daughter could use for her high school 'prom.' She graduates in June. Her dress and slippers were given to her by a friend, but, as my husband has been ill and unable to work for more than a year, I cannot buy a wrap. My salary covers only the bare necessities. I could remodel one that doesn't fit.

"MRS. I. C."

The woman whose extensive wardrobe boasts more than one evening wrap may be able to find one for this girl graduate. Her joy would be complete if she were able to attend the "prom" in proper style.

Find the Words With the Daggers (†)

The Chicago Tribune Will Pay

A Week in Cash Prizes

IN A GRAND TREASURE HUNT

FOR THE BEST SOLUTIONS TO

"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

HOW many words with daggers (†) after them can you find in the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune?

Certain words in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune have been identified with this mark (†). When all the words so marked are placed in their proper order they will form a "Good Time Charliegram"—a message of good cheer or sound advice, named after Good Time Charlie Dawson, the mythical person who sent $5,000.00 to Mayor Cermak to help bring back good times.

The Tribune is matching Good Time Charlie's offer! This newspaper will pay $1,000.00 a week for five weeks for the best solutions to "Good Time Charliegrams" submitted in accordance with a few simple rules.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. Each day for seven consecutive days, daily and Sunday, various words in display advertisements which appear in the Chicago Tribune will be identified by a dagger (†) after the word. When these words are arranged in the proper manner they will form a "Good Time Charliegram"—a message of good cheer or sound advice of interest during the present period of reconstruction. You are invited to look for these words and find the Good Time Charliegram. No words will be hidden in the Want Ads.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1000.00 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the most nearly correctly arranged and the neatest complete sets of Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

3. The prizes for each week are as follows:

1st Prize	$250.00
2nd Prize	100.00
Next 2 Prizes $50.00 each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes $25.00 each	100.00
Next 25 Prizes $10.00 each	250.00
Next 40 Prizes $ 5.00 each	200.00
74 weekly prizes totaling $1,000.00

4. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

5. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's solution separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 3, 1931.

6. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

7. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the hand blank or you may copy your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

8. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

NEW BALL BIG AID TO GOLF--OR MAYBE IT ISN'T

Players' Opinions of Change Vary.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Tournaments played so far this season have given Chicago golfers a chance to test the new ball in rain and in sunshine, in calm and in windy weather. So it's time they told what they think of it.

IRA COUCH JR.

Many players look upon the larger and lighter ball as an infernal device, calculated to break down their morale and ruin their dispositions. They consider it an invention which will inspire them to break their clubs over their knees, tear up their cards, and walk off the links once and for all. On the other hand, some of our leading players have plenty of words to say in its favor.

What They Think of It.

Here are the opinions voiced yesterday by these golfers:

R. E. Knepper, Onwentsia—"Under favorable conditions, the new ball is easier to play than the old as it sits up better on the fairway and in the rough. And I like it better for putting, too, as it gives a truer run. Of course under unfavorable weather conditions, there is no doubt that it adds several strokes to the score.

"Just the same, I think it's a good thing for the game. It's no longer a case of getting a good drive and making an easy pitch to the green. Now a fellow will have to master every club in the bag."

Ira L. Couch, Glen View—"When you hit it right, it goes as well as the old ball, but when you're the least bit off your game, your weakness is exaggerated. I'd just as soon play one as the other."

A. L. Novotny, Edgewood Valley—"I can think of nothing to say in its favor. I don't like it on the fairways and I don't like it on the greens. I think it takes a lot of enjoyment away from the fellow who shoots around 100, and after all, they're the backbone of the game. It's pretty tough on a windy day when two full woods won't get you home on a 360 yard hole."

Charles Evans, Edgewater—"At Midlothian last Sunday, I couldn't find any other player who liked the large ball, but I think it all right. The average player really hasn't given it a thorough test yet under his best efforts. I like variety in golf and the new ball has given it to us.

"The old ball becoming perceptibly softer year by year and championship courses were being laid out to keep pace with it. Beverly was revised last season so that it was a stiff test even then, and now with the new ball I think it will be too difficult to be fair to most players.

"Three sets of tees should be built on most courses and each morning an intelligent green keeper should specify which is to be used, thereby varying the length of each hole to meet changing weather conditions."

James Garard, Midlothian—"I don't like it, though in good weather it is easy on the green that I can see much difference. It doesn't roll straight and hasn't much as the ball is larger the cups should be larger, too.

George Dawson, Glen Oak—"Either ball is O. K. so far as I'm concerned but I think that the great majority of players have had a lot of pleasure taken out of their game. If everybody else uses it, I'm willing to do so."

Howard B. Maguire, Flossmoor—"I could never see any reason for changing the old ball. It will make the game less simple for Bobby Jones and a few of the long driving pros but the

New York, May 28.—(AP)—Announcement has been made by Mrs. George H. Collett, Greenwich, Conn., of the engagement of her daughter, Glenna Collett, golf champion, to Edwin H. Vare Jr., of Philadelphia. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Collett won the United States woman's national golf title five times, in 1922-25-28-29 and 1930, establishing a record in that event. She won the title the last time in a match with Virginia Van Wie in Los Angeles last October.

Mr. Vare is a son of Mrs. Edwin H. Vare and the late Mr. Vare, a state senator in Pennsylvania and a Republican leader, who died Oct. 16, 1922. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the Gun Valley club and the Philadelphia Country club.

COAST GUARD TO WATCH OVER 90 MILE BOAT DASH

Planes and First Aid Craft Form Convoy.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

With a record field of outboard motorboat drivers ready to start the 90 mile race from Milwaukee to Chicago tomorrow morning, all precaution has been taken to patrol the course, so that a ducking will be the height of misfortune for any pilot.

The United States coast guard has assumed the major portion of the safety task. The Great Lakes Naval Training station also will render invaluable assistance. Admiral F. C. Billard of Washington, D. C., in command of the coast guard, yesterday telegraphed orders to local stations to coöperate with THE TRIBUNE in the marathon race. Lake Michigan waters, if necessary, under these orders can be closed to transportation. The outboard racers will have the right of way over all transportation and pleasure boats.

Patrol Plans Completed.

The patrol committee, consisting of David Zimmerman, chairman, and the commanding officers of coast guard stations in Chicago and along the north shore to Milwaukee, yesterday completed details of their duties. The members of the committee coöperating with Mr. Zimmerman are Capt. J. O. Anderson, Capt. F. E. Stebbins, Capt. C. W. Fricke, Capt. A. E. Kristoffer-son, Capt. J. A. Olander, Capt. S. Nedeau, and M. W. Ottershagen.

The plan of patrol for the coast guard stations follows:

Milwaukee coast guard will patrol from Milwaukee 20 miles south. The Racine station will cover the next 20 miles. Then the Kenosha coast guard will contact and cover 20 miles to approximately due east of the Great Lakes Naval Training station. The section from Great Lakes to Evanston will be patrolled by the Jackson park coast guard in a speed boat. The Evanston guard will patrol its own vicinity and the Chicago coast guard crew will have the final lap of the marathon from Evanston to Navy pier.

Convoy Whole Distance.

Capt. J. O. Anderson of the old Chicago station will go to Milwaukee Friday evening and will convoy the entire race on Saturday. Capt. Anderson will use a large cabin cruiser which will be able to take care of any major accident.

Lieut. Hoskins, in charge of aviation at Great Lakes, and Lieut. Johanson will have command of three planes which will patrol the course. The planes will fly in wedge formation and will land on the water to render assistance unless the lake is very rough. In that event the planes will locate one of the patrol boats and, flying low, will signal and direct the boat to the racer which needs assistance. The planes will reach Navy pier with the racers at noon Saturday.

Great Lakes also will stand by with a Dart speed boat which is equipped as a hospital ship.

Tribune Craft on Duty.

THE TRIBUNE has chartered the speed boat Miss Miami, which will be the last boat to quit the course. Miss Miami, in command of David Zimmerman, will patrol from Milwaukee to Chicago. Miss Miami is owned by Gordon Jones and last winter at Miami rescued 13 persons in the disaster to a glass bottom sight seeing vessel in Miami waters.

Each driver will be given a map of the course tonight at the meeting at the Milwaukee Yacht club. Printed instructions also will be given out at the same time. While the outboards do not have to follow the charted course, it is advised that they do to facilitate rescue work if boats meet with engine trouble or are capsized.

Thousands will see the outboard racers Saturday morning as they speed down the north shore. These spectators are urged by Mr. Zimmerman to assist in any necessary rescue work.

Speed Races on Sunday.

In a marathon, motor trouble and rough water form a combination which must cause many of the drivers to quit the race. Boats frequently capsize. Since each pilot is required

Modern Sokol in America Carries on Founder's Work

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

If Dr. Miroslav Tyrs, the fiery Czech who founded the gymnastic organization known as the Sokol, could be present at the first Chicagoland Sports Congress, to be sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field on Sunday afternoon, June 21, he would have reason to be proud of the new generation of Sokol members.

Hundreds of Americans of Czech descent will be among the participants in the congress, the most pretentious spectacle of its kind ever presented in America. And all of these loyal Sokol followers attribute their physical excellence to the little man whose doctrine of a fit man became a national institution.

Many Nationalities Entered.

That doctrine of Dr. Tyrs will be exemplified by present day Sokol members as a part of a program which also brings together men, women and children athletes of German and Polish descent. Norwegian, Danish, and Swedish groups also have been invited to take part in the first sports congress.

The program of the congress includes calisthenic drills by the various groups, a giant tug of war, and relay races with hundreds competing, gymnastic and fencing exhibitions, and as a grand finale a mass drill in which all those on the field will participate.

The story of the foundation of Sokol by Dr. Tyrs, a University of Prague philosophy professor in 1862, and the important part it played in the ultimate independence of Czecho-Slovakia, has been told. It now remains to relate the history of the Sokol organization in America.

Union Grew Up in Chicago.

The first Sokol society in the United States was founded at St. Louis in 1865, but the most important group, the one out of which the American Sokol union, the present national organization, grew, had its origin in Chicago in 1878. It was called the Bohemian Gymnastic Union of the United States.

One of the first articles in the constitution of this organization stated that each member "must be or must become a citizen of the United States," following Dr. Tyrs' rule that Sokol members should be loyal in every way to their new country.

Two weeks after President Wilson's call for American volunteers in the world war practically every Sokol gym throughout the country lost its young men's membership, all of the available Czechs responding. And it is the boast of Sokol officials that not one of their members was rejected because of physical deficiency.

Union Founded in 1917.

The American Sokol union, founded in 1917, has its national headquarters in Chicago. Joseph Cermak of the Bohemian newspaper Svornost, is its president. Other officials of the union are J. J. Jelinek, captain of the technical committee, which has jurisdiction over the actual work of Sokol members; Frank Vorel, Mrs. Helen Kouba, Betty Prener, and Rose Lejhanec, the last three assisting the technical committee in the promotion of women's Sokol work.

The national membership of the American Sokol union now numbers between 10,000 and 12,000, with headquarters in eight cities. These eight, together with the number of clubs in each, are New York City, 12; Cleveland, 9; Chicago, 18; Omaha, 23; St. Paul, 11; Dallas, 15; San Francisco, 7, and Caldwell, Kas., 6.

Represented U. S. at Prague.

Mrs. Kouba, in addition to being a member of the technical committee, also instructs clases in Chicago Sokol work. She is a member of the Havlicak-Tyrs Sokol. A graduate of Harrison High school, Mrs. Kouba was one of the 63 Americans of Czech ancestry chosen to represent the United States in the great Sokol festival at Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, in 1929. More than 80,000 men, women, and children took part in this program. The festival is held every five or six years, and is looked forward to eagerly for months ahead by all native Czechs, who regard it as a national holiday.

High Time Has Proud Day as Sons Win at Homewood

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old High Time, the thoroughbred sire which recently sold under the hammer at an auction in Kentucky for $50,000, must have enjoyed his dinner down on Dixiana farm, near Lexington, last night.

EARL POOL.

He probably called for an extra bowl of oats and smoked a couple of three for a half cigars as he patted himself on the chest.

That is, he did all this if he likes to see his sons get along well in the world. Two of his very fashionable sons went into action at Washington Park and the High Time boys did things their old daddy used to do.

When Easter Time, one of High Time's youngest sons now at the races, cantered home in the Sheridan Road purse, which was a dash at 5 furlongs, the Chicago turfgoers became convinced that this is the best 2 year old they have looked at this season. He may be a champion and don't forget that.

If Jockey Earl Pool hadn't nearly broken Easter Time's neck holding him back as he came down the stretch the winner by six lengths he might have taken a second or two off the track record. Easter Time will crack the track record any time they ask him to do it. He's going to beat a lot of great 2 year olds before the year is over. It was his second start and his second victory. He looks a better horse than Sarazen did when that mighty racer was making his bow to the racing world several years ago.

The Whig, a son of Bostonian, finished second to him. Lojo was third. But they were beaten so badly nobody hardly knew they were in the race. Easter Time's victory on opening day had been so brilliant that he was at less than 1 to 2 in the betting. He won like a 1 to 100 shot.

High Time's other son to step in the winner's circle was Calf Roper, 5 years old, almost an old timer as ages go on the turf. He won a Louisiana Derby and ran other good races, but the crowd at Washington Park yesterday forgot all his noble deeds of other years and wagered on Fiddler, Broad Meadows and other fleet but

Bill Legalizing Florida Racing Goes Into Effect

Tallahassee, Fla., May 28.—[Special.]—Horse racing and pari-mutuel betting at Florida tracks became legal today through Gov. Carlton's failure to act on a bill passed by both houses of the legislature on May 21. The bill which legalized the pari-mutuel system carried a provision that it should become effective automatically five days after its delivery to the governor if he failed either to sign it or veto it.

Passage and operation of the pari-mutuel measure marks a victory for Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Association of New York, who has sponsored such a movement for several years. Mr. Widener is also head of the Miami Jockey club, which conducts racing at Hialeh Park, Miami, the largest and most largely patronized track in Florida.

With the Hialeh track under protection of the state, which in turn receives a share of all wagers through operation of the pari-mutuel system, Mr. Widener's program to make the Miami course the most beautiful racing ground will begun at once. More than $500,000 will be expended on improvements within the next six months. It is planned to lengthen the circumference of the track from a mile to a mile and one-eighth.

CHICAGOANS OFF TO INDIANAPOLIS AUTO RACE TODAY

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago motorists will stream out of the city this afternoon and tonight to join the crowd of 160,000 that will attend the annual Memorial day automobile race in Indianapolis.

It's a drive of 187 miles over the preferred route, U. S. 41 and U. S. 52, from the loop to the speedway where 40 cars tomorrow will roar around a brick oval in a 500 mile test of machinery, nerves and luck, in a race with competitors, with time records, and with possible death from accident.

The preferred route picks up U. S. 41 on the outer drive in Grant park and goes south through Jackson park, continuing on the boulevard system through the steel mill district to where the federal markers turn southward shortly after crossing the Indiana-Illinois line. The highway is followed to where it leads into U. S. 52 just south of Earl Park, Ind., 91 miles from Chicago.

Dodge Dyer Bottle Neck.

There's some new pavement that enables traffic to dodge the bottle neck at Dyer, Ind., by turning east from U. S. 41 on the Ridgeland road for two miles and thence south again to pick up U. S. 41 at the Lincoln highway.

During rush hours, the congestion on the boulevard system south of Jackson park can be avoided by taking Stony Island avenue from the park to 93d street, thence to Colfax avenue, thence to 95th stret and a jog to Torrence avenue, which carries traffic to Ridgeland road for the jump east to U. S. 41.

A new route to Indianapolis was completed last year, using Ind. 55, which intersects U. S. 41 at St. John, Ind. It passes through Crown Point, Rensselaer, and Lafayette to Crawfordsville, where Ind. 34 can be picked up for the run into Indianapolis. The distance by this route is 199 miles.

Dixie Highway Third Route.

Some Chicagoans will go by way of the crooked old Dixie highway, Ill. 1, to Danville and thence east over Ill. 10 and Ind. 34 to the speedway. This distance is 223 miles. Some use this route merely for a change, while others take it to spend the night at Danville since Indianapolis hotels are crowded.

The drive from Chicago to Indianapolis, without pushing and allowing time for an occasional stop, can be made in seven hours.

Cubs Get Only 5 Hits; Lose to Reds for First Time, 3-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 28.—Silas Johnson, a young man who used to trap muskrats at Marseilles, Ill., but who now wears spats evenings when the weather's not too hot, this afternoon took violent exception to the Chicago Cubs' plans to win all this year's contests with the Cincinnati Reds. Silas pitched a great game today and the Reds licked the Cubs for the first time this year, 3 to 1.

Johnson allowed only five hits, the fifth a triple by Hornsby with two out in the ninth, and walked only one man. The one walk was promptly nullified by one of the two double plays of which the Cubs were victims.

Even so, the Reds made the same number of earned runs as the Cubs did in hanging up their lone marker. The Red margin of victory was tainted through errors by Hornsby and Moore. Moore's was a three base muff which led to the final run of the game in the fourth inning.

English's Triple Scores Moore.

As per their custom this season when pitted against good pitchers in possession of their stuff, the Cubs were quite futile whenever Johnson chose to bear down. The one Cub run caught Silas off guard. It came in when English followed a single by Moore with a triple. Then Silas tightened up and let Woody perish while he crushed Hornsby, Stephenson, and Wilson, the last named fanning to terminate the rally. It took only 1 hour and 25 minutes for Silas to do his stuff.

The Cubs were back in fourth place as they left after the game for Pittsburgh, where they will face the Pirates tomorrow afternoon, Saturday morning and Saturday afternoon. The Cubs and Pirates will return to Chicago for one game Sunday afternoon. Then come the eastern clubs, with the Robins opening at Wrigley field on Tuesday afternoon.

Nothing to Cheer About.

At the end of the first three innings this afternoon the Reds were leading by a score of 2 to 0 and the Cubs had nothing to cheer about except the fact that Stephenson had singled at the outset of the second inning for his fifth successive hit. The cheering wasn't very loud, however, for Stevie forthwith went down with Wilson in a double play.

The Reds had men on third and second in the first inning but could not accrue, but in the third they got themselves a couple of runs. Crabtree led off with his second infield hit, a slow roller to Hornsby, but for the second time he was forced at second on an attempted sacrifice by Ford. Hendrick singled to left, Ford stopping at second. Cullop singled, scoring Ford and putting Hendrick on third. Hornsby fumbled Roush's grounder with a double play in sight, Hendrick scoring and Cullop stopping at second. The runners advanced while Hornsby was throwing out Cuccinello, and died when English threw out Durocher.

Bruins Fade in Fourth.

The Cubs appeared to be under way at the start of the fourth but faded out after manufacturing one run. Moore opened with a single and scored

HOSE SCORE ON LONG DRIVES BY BLUE, WATWOOD

Detroit Rally in 9th Falls Short.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ted Lyons seems to have settled down for a season of regular work. He made his second start of the campaign yesterday, and, like his other, this turned out profitably for the White Sox. With Lyons' pitching the bulwark of their defense, they bunched just enough hits off Vic Sorrell to capture the final of the series with the Tigers, 3 to 2. It was the third straight victory for the Pale Hose in the four game set.

TED LYONS.

Lyons, while he allowed eight hits, was in actual danger only twice. One of these occurrences was in the third when the Tigers did enough to earn themselves a run. The other was in the ninth, after Lyons had steadied down and hurled three hitless innings. This belated splurge on the part of the Tigers had its inception in an error by Bill Cissell, who previously had sparkled in the field, but Lyons managed to halt the rumpus with one run across and two more waiting on second and third.

Sox Get Hits When Needed.

The hitting of the Sox against Sorrell wasn't exactly boisterous, but it had one redeeming feature. Four of their ten hits were peeled off in the third and as two of them were for extra bases, the south siders had no trouble scoring three runs right then and there. That was all they needed, although a wider margin would have been appreciated in the ninth when Detroit had the bases full and only one out. After the third Sorrell permitted only one hit to an inning.

There were a couple of healthy hits registered against Lyons in the first two innings. So, when the Tigers batted him hard enough to score once in the third it didn't occasion much surprise. This scoring incident began with a pass to Koenig. Hayworth sacrificed and Eichrodt made a holiday catch of a bad looking liner by Sorrell. Johnson then doubled to the wall in left and Koenig scored. H. Walker beat out a phoney hit in front of the plate and Johnson moved over to third, but Watwood grabbed Owen's fly and there was no further excitement.

Jeffries Starts Attack.

Jeffries, who thus far has done a good job of making it easy to forget Willie Kamm, instigated the movement which developed into three runs for the Sox in the home third. Jeffries singled to center and Tate sneaked a swinging bunt past third base. Lyons sacrificed, whereupon a couple of real hits were turned loose. Blue lined a two bagger to right center, Jeff and Tate scoring. Watwood drove a triple against the wall in left, and Blue ran home. Watwood was thrown out at the plate on Fonseca's hopper to short and Fothergill flied to right.

A harmless disturbance was raised against Lyons in the fifth. After Hayworth had fouled out Sorrell scratched a single to deep short. He was forced by Johnson. H. Walker then singled to right. Watwood had no chance to head off the speedy Johnson at third, but he threw there. The result of this mistake in judgment was to enable H. Walker to get to second, putting two men in position to score on a hit. Cissell got Lyons out of the jam by smothering Akers' grounder and throwing him out.

In both the sixth and the seventh the Sox had a man on with none out, but couldn't score him. Fothergill singled to start the sixth and Cissell forced him. Cissell endeavored to add another stolen base to his string, but was tossed out. Eichrodt then walked and Jeffries lined to Stone. Tate opened the next inning with a hit and Lyons performed the customary sac-

In the WAKE of the NEWS

CUB FAN REPLIES.

DEAR WAKE: "White Sox Fan" in Wednesday's Wake attempts to place us north siders in a false light, especially as regards sportsmanship. First, let me say we do not need his sympathy. Showing of the Cubs, contrasted with that of the Sox for the last several years, is enough answer to that.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

The Cubs have not yet hit their stride. Yet we're within reach of the top if our boys have the ability. Perhaps St. Louis, perhaps New York are too strong for us. The season will tell that, but every true Cub fan feels we are getting all our players have.

Now I was a great admirer of McCarthy for what he had accomplished. I would prefer that he had remained. Instead we have Hornsby. We may be critical, but we're not disloyal, as White Sox Fan intimates. The Cub management is known for good sportsmanship. It is unthinkable this management is not trying to give us a winner and it has the bank roll if a bank roll will do it. But as paying customers we have a right to suggestion or criticism.

Sox Fan mentions the behavior of certain fans toward players when they slump. That's exaggerated. Some incidents we do regret. They come from a small majority who may be Sox fans, for all we know. Observers know that most of it, however, is only good natured "razzing." Hack takes it all right. Ask him how he feels about it. The real fans do not give it a thought, as it does not reflect their attitude.

So, Mr. White Sox Fan, you need not worry about the Cubs or our temporary troubles. You've plenty of your own at 35th and Wentworth. But we're not "quitters," just remember that.

Cub Fan.

Golf Opening.

Golf in the Chicago district is formally opened tomorrow. Some golfers already have been "sniping" to get in shape for the regular club events. The Wake has yet to make the maiden 1931 effort. There'll be things to tell such of our readers as follow our game. We may state in confidence that our club handicap of 30, which is the limit allowed, has not been reduced. Our usual instructions will follow in due season. You see, we figure none is better qualified than we to tell others what faults to avoid.

ATHLETICS COME FROM BEHIND TO BEAT YANKS, 5-4

Tie Game in Eighth on Gehrig, Chapman Errors

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28.—[Special.]—The world champion Athletics defeated the Yankees again today, 5 to 4, in the final game of the series. The A's won in the ninth after Chapman and Gehrig erred in the eighth, allowing the A's to tie the score with 3 runs.

Mose Grove, who pitched the last 3 innings, opened the ninth with a double over Ruth's head. With the bases loaded Al Simmons drove a long fly to Chapman that allowed Lefty to score the winning run.

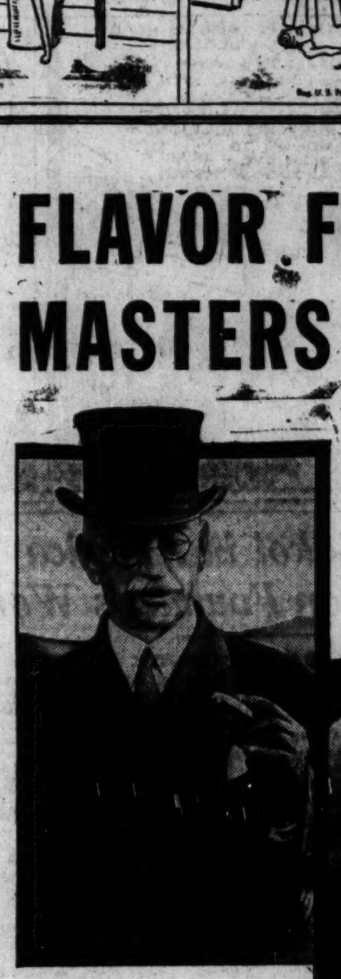
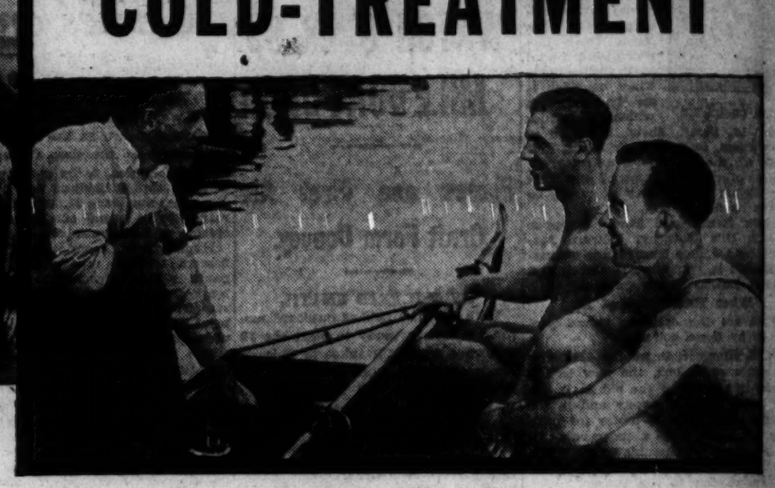
FLAVOR FRESHNESS OF DUTCH MASTERS CIGARS sealed in by "COLD-TREATMENT"



"I've smoked Dutch Masters a long while. This new 'Cold-Treatment' makes it even better," declares JOHN FEEHAN, N.Y.C.



FRED G. MYERS, of Philadelphia's Bachelor Barge Club, says—"I think the new cold process is a big improvement in cigar making."

All popular sizes and shapes, 10¢, 2 for 25¢; 15¢, 3 for 50¢. Cello-Sealed to protect against pocket breakage.

By an exclusive new process Dutch Masters makes it possible for any smoker to have—any day—that greatest of smoke-thrills . . .

The pleasure of smoking a cigar that is as fresh and full of rich flavor when you light it as at the moment it is made. "Cold-Treatment" does it!

This unique process takes a Dutch Masters Cigar just as it comes from the machine—just at the moment when the mellow tobaccos are at their Peak of Fragrant Perfection . . .

And then seals in the cigar itself all the "new-made" taste and flavor that makes a really fresh cigar the treat that it is. There's as much difference between a Dutch Masters "Cold-Treated" cigar and an ordinary cigar, as there is between fresh fruit and dried fruit!

JOSEPH T. MILLER, Manhattanite, enjoys his first "Cold-Treated" cigar. "Who wouldn't like a cigar that tastes so fresh and fragrant!" he says.

LOOK FOR THIS FAMOUS PAINTING at the cigar counter. It is on the inside lid of every box of Dutch Masters cigars

Londos Faces Bronowicz on Coliseum Mat

Frank Bronowicz will try to do tonight what six others have failed to accomplish here—defeat elusive Jim Londos, Greek heavyweight wrestler. Bronowicz, 210 pound Pole, is getting his big chance at the Coliseum. The grappler getting two out of three falls wins.

Bronowicz is confident that he will end the long winning streak of Londos. They are meeting for the first time.

McMillen vs. Kwariani.

Londos has proved a big gate attraction in Chicago since the first of the year. When he made his debut at the Stadium in April against Kola Kwariani, the show attracted more than 17,000 fans.

Jim McMillen makes his fourth start here since the first of the year and meets Kwariani. They are billed for the semi-windup. They have never met before.

Homebred Talent on Card.

Outside of McMillen, former University of Illinois gridiron star, who lives in Grayslake, Ill., two other homebred grunters are on the card. One is Karl Pojello, Lithuanian, who is matched with Don De Long, French matman. The other is Jack Smith, who will skirmish with Dick Warner of Lincoln, Neb.

Ray Steele, Hollywood, Cal., meets Milo Steinborn. Pat O'Shocker appears in the other contest against Floyd Marshall, California. The card is being promoted by Doc Krone.

HARVEY PLAYS 2 GAMES.

The Harvey Amateur Athletic club will play St. Joseph's at Sportsmans park, Chicago Heights, tomorrow. On Sunday they will meet the Chicago Roamers at Washington park.

MAROON'S TITLE CHANCES HINGE ON GAME TODAY

Chicago and Indiana play this afternoon on the Midway in one of the most important games of the Big Ten baseball race. The Maroons are tied with Illinois for the lead, and to beat out the Illini, who have only tomorrow's game at Northwestern left to play, they probably will have to win from the Hoosiers this afternoon and then finish up with a victory over Wisconsin at Madison next Saturday.

Austin High Net Team Wins 8th Match in Row

Austin High school's tennis team scored its eighth consecutive victory yesterday by defeating Crane Tech in a west section match of the City Public High School league. The score was 3 to 0. Vaughn and Ingvaldstad defeated Lash and Skandorsky in the doubles contest, 6-1, 6-2.

on English's triple to right. Woody died on third because Hornsby fouled to Asbjornsen, Johnson threw out Stevie and Wilson fanned.

The Reds made their second unearned run and their third tally of the game in the fourth. Asbjornsen reached third when Moore muffed his long fly. Johnson fanned and Crabtree walked, but Asbjornsen scored when Ford forced Crabtree for the third successive time. Hendrick rolled out to Blair.

The Cubs were dormant from the fourth till two were out in the ninth then Hornsby tripled. But the game ended when Crabtree made a great running catch of Stephenson's gigantic wallop to end the contest.

Sox Defeat Tigers, 3-2; Lyons Hurls

Tigers Growl in Ninth.

The Tiger ninth, in which Lyons, not to mention the other Sox, spent some decidedly uncomfortable moments, turned sour when, with one out, Cissell booted McManus' grounder. Akers hit a single to center and McManus went to third. Uhle batted for Koenig and Lyons feared him enough to give him a walk. Manager Harris ran for Uhle. Another pinch batter appeared in G. Walker, who swung for Hayworth. He bounced to Cissell who touched second and was about to throw to first for a double play when Harris knocked him off his feet.

Cissell, with encouragement from some of his mates, raised a big howl about the matter, but Umpire Campbell preferred to believe that Harris, while a bit rough, had done nothing illegal. G. Walker then stole second, Tate preferring not to make the throw. Doljack was brought up to bat for Sorrell, and everything was all right when he grounded to Kerr, who had taken over Fonseca's job at second. The latter retired in the eighth to rest up his nond too sturdy underpinning.

The Browns will arrive today for the weekly ladies' day game. Tommy Thomas will oppose them and Manager Killefer probably will nominate Coffman.

CLEVELAND PREP NINE HERE TODAY FOR LANE SERIES

Shaw High school baseball team of Cleveland, O., winner of the Cleveland championship last year, will arrive this afternoon for its intercity series with Lane Technical High school, city high school league titleholder. The opening game will be played at Wrigley field tomorrow.

The squad will arrive at the LaSalle street station at 3 o'clock, where it will be met by the Lane Tech band and team. Mayor Cermak and William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, will welcome the visitors at the city hall.

NIHLEEN'S original White Buck $48
The Regal Reproduction $6.60

New York millionaires go to Anton Nihleen. He is one of the most famous Custom Bootmakers in the world. This photograph was taken by us at his little shop, 30 West 47th Street, New York City.

Plain toe, saddle strap oxford in soft Norwegian grain of white buckskin trimmed with brown or black calf. The Regal Reproduction of a high price Famous American Golf Shoe costs you $6.60

Special Cord and Rubber combination non-slip sole. In natural Elk with Black Calf Trim or Russia Calf Trim. This Regal Reproduction costs you $6.60

We went to Nihleen because it is our policy to reproduce for you the best Styles made by the best Bootmakers in the World.

We paid $48 for Nihleen's Original Wing-Tip, White Buckskin Oxford, with Spring Heel and Flame Red Rubber Sole. If you can afford this Price today, there's no better place to go. But if you want the exact reproduction of this $48 Style for $6.60 there is no other place you can go—except to the Regal Shoe Store.

Since we started reproducing exclusive high price models, there are a number of imitators who talk about "copying" expensive styles. But up to date we do not know of anyone else who tells you the name of the maker—where he purchased the shoe—what he paid for it—and ACTUALLY SHOW THE ORIGINAL MODEL WITH THE REPRODUCTION SIDE BY SIDE—to let you decide for yourself whether you want to pay $48 or $6.60.

In the Regal Reproduction we are using the same tannage Genuine White Buckskin that Nihleen uses, and incidentally, we bought more of this expensive leather this year, than all the other shoe manufacturers in the country put together.

Last, Leather, Pattern, Design and every Style Detail is exactly the same, from the Size of the Perforations on the Wing-Tip, to the Flame Red Rubber Sole on the bottom.

And this is only one of 30 Regal Reproductions of famous high priced shoes for sport wear. Genuine White Buckskin, Chrome Brown Buck, Natural Elk or White Buckskin Trimmed with Brown or Black Calf. Winged Tips, Plain Toes, Ball Straps. Red Rubber, Black Rubber, All Leather Soles; All Styles, All Leathers, All One Price—$6.60.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Harry F. Sinclair's Mokatam, which was considered a formidable rival of Whichone as a juvenile until he went wrong, ran and won at Belmont Park today as a 4 year old. In many respects it was the best race of his career. He carried 124 pounds, conceding weight to half a dozen rivals, and stepped a mile and an eighth in 1:49, three-fifths of a second behind Hot Toddy's world record, which was set at Belmont in 1929 over a lightning fast track under 110 pounds.

A length and a half back of the son of Bud Lerner and Katrina finished Joseph E. Widener's Curate, beating the Rolling Plains stable's Milkman by three lengths. Then in order came Ironclad, Flaming, Rhodesia, and Snow Flake. Mokatam flashed his form in the Spindrift handicap, which carried a purse of $4,180 to the winner. It was being renewed for the first time since 1909.

Mokatam was the trailer in the early stages, but drew off in the stretch and won so easily that the fast time that was hung out was not generally expected. He was an 8-5 favorite.

Curate had set a blazing pace in the early stages, and was ridden by the veteran Mack Garner, who got all out of his mount there was to get. The six furlongs was timed in 1:11 1-5, and the mile in 1:36 4-5.

High Time Has Proud Day as Two Sons Win

As the field charged down the stretch Calf Roper found an opening next to the rail, through which he skimmed. He went on to a handy victory by a length over Nifty. Lahor, a castoff from Harry Sinclair's Rancocas stable, was third.

When the prices went up old High Time must have ordered those three for a half cigars, for Calf Roper paid $40.78 to win, $19.08 to place, and $8.74 to show. I just wonder if High Time had a little bet on Calf Roper up in that top story handbook at the Phoenix hotel in Lexington. Hope the old rascal did bet and let it all ride back on Easter Time.

Calf Roper's best days are behind him or he wouldn't be running to be claimed for $6,000, but Easter Time is an up and coming young fellow. Wouldn't be surprised if his name was spread all over the headlines before the season is over. If names mean anything, the mothers of the two High Time sons might have been flappers, for Calf Roper's mother was Free Love and Easter Time's mamma was Complexion.

Horsemen at Washington Park were still chuckling yesterday over the way Nevada Queen, the Pacific coast 2 year old champion, exploded when she was sent against the best of her age in the middle west.

They were not chuckling at Nevada Queen's inability to hold her own with the best of the middle western fillies but chuckling because somebody talked Miss Marian Hollins, the former golf champion, into buying Nevada Queen for $15,000.

Talked to an old timer from Kentucky about Nevada Queen yesterday. "I would have no part of a wager on her," he said. "She has all the conformation of a quarter horse. Too much speed. There has never been a horse that could carry such a foot more than a half mile." This old timer has been around with the thoroughbreds since Hickory Jim was a suckling colt.

Easter Time had won at Washington Park yesterday when T. S. Worden of Chicago, agent for Herbert Woolf's stable, rushed wildly into the press box and pleaded for the result of the first race at Woodbine. He had played a hunch parley of Easter Time at Washington Park and Easter Hatter at Woodbine. Both Easter horses won. We'll let you picture the expression of Mr. Worden's face when the price on Easter Hatter came ticking in over the wire. Two twenty-five for a two dollar ticket, it read. He got $2.72 on Easter Time here. Worden was happy just the same. Any guy that picks two winners in one afternoon ought to be happy, no matter what the price.

FOUR A COLLEGE MEET TO BE HELD ON COAST IN 1932

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28.—(AP)—The Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. tonight voted to hold the 1932 championship track and field meet at Berkeley, Cal. between July 2 and July 6, the exact date to be set later.

Invitation to come west was extended by Floyd Cerorgeso, graduate manager of the University of California, speaking for that school and Stanford and Southern California. A guarantee of $55,000 for expenses to athletes was made jointly by the three schools.

Wet Flies Get a Workout in North Woods

BY BOB BECKER.

Wisconsin Northwoods, Wis., May 28.—[Special.]—The Laramie spinners, Professors, Cahills and California Coachmen were given considerable excitement on a trout stream which we have fished up here where the forests vibrate to the booming of the ruffed grouse as they strut on fallen logs to impress their lady loves. The wet flies named were paraded before the brook trout which inhabit a cold clear spring-fed stream flowing through the forest, and for several hours while the sky was partly overcast the fish were very much interested in these patterns.

The setting for the "parade of the feathers" was of the type that comes only at this time of the year. Marsh marigolds at the side of the stream, warblers and grosbeaks singing from the cedar thickets near at hand, the rich fragrance of a virgin forest, a porcupine on a log feeding on the root of some water plant.

Score First on Cahill.

The canoe from which Paul H. Davis and Carroll Gray Jr. of Chicago were shooting their feathered lures at the trout scored first on a Cahill pattern. We found scores of trout in one pool which was partly filled with fallen cedars, and, since it was large enough for several flycasters to operate, Dr. Ernest Ovitz of Laona, Wis., who was handling the stern paddle in our canoe, wheeled our ship into position for a crack at the fish.

We started with a March Brown pattern (No. 10) and then switched to one of Ovitz' Laramie spinners. For upwards of twenty minutes the sport was glorious if you worked your fly rather deep and not too fast. There was no hatch on the surface so the red spotted trout were not coming up to feed, but they were perfectly willing to smash these feathered imitations if they were fished well under the surface.

Both Big Ones Get Away.

As is often the case, the largest trout that a fellow gets hold of will do you dirt. This is how the big one got away. With Ovitz still occupying the stern seat in our canoe we eased into a narrow place on the stream where a cut bank extended well back under the boggy shore, an ideal loafing spot for big trout. Both of us flicked out our flies. Our casts to this hole were not more than three seconds apart. We hooked a beautiful fish 14 or 15 inches long. He was plainly visible for a split second. Ovitz hooked another practically the same size. We had this old scrapper on for about a second and then he departed.

Arlington Park's Second Classic Draws Epithet

Epithet, son of Epinard and Fairy Wand and the only horse that can claim the distinction of having finished in front of Jamestown, last season's American 2 year old champion, yesterday was nominated for the second Arlington Classic at the Arlington Park meeting June 29 to Aug. 1. The classic is a $70,000 added stake.

Epithet also is named for the Stars and Stripes handicap, Arlington handicap, Arlington Cup, and Arlington Inaugural handicap. The entry came from the headquarters of the Warm stable—Silas Mason and Arnold Hanger—at Lexington, Ky.

to wear a life preserver, an enforced ducking is his only penalty, but the length of time he is adrift depends on the vigilance of the patrols and the spectators along the shore. After leaving Milwaukee some of the more daring drivers may go far out in order to head straight down the lake.

While the marathon is the only event on Saturday, the speed races north of Navy pier on Sunday afford better opportunity for spectators. Many of the boats will develop speeds of more than 40 miles an hour. For more than four hours the outboards and inboards will race around the 2½ mile triangular course. Their struggle for supremacy can be seen to advantage not only from Navy pier but from Lake Shore drive.

E. H. Young of Covina, Cal., has come the farthest to compete in the inboard races Sunday. Young will drive a Chris-Craft.

Mary Alcott Richardson, 17 year old daughter of H. E. Richardson, vice chairman of the regatta, and a student at Northwestern university, is one of the women drivers who has entered Sunday's races. Several women also will compete in the Marathon tomorrow.

LOGAN SQUARES SIGN TWO.

Joe Witry, who was given a tryout by the New York Giants as a catcher two seasons ago, and Johnny Bordes, third baseman, who trl the Eastern league in hitting last year, have been signed by the Logan Square team of the Chicago Semi-pro league.

GENERAL PARKER REVIEWS CADETS AT UNIV. OF ILL.

3,000 March in Parade; Awards Made.

Urbana, Ill., May 28.—[Special.]—Over three thousand cadets, members of the University of Illinois reënforced R. O. T. C. brigade, passed in review before Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the Sixth corps area, as the feature of the annual military day festivities at the state educational institution this afternoon. Student Colonel S. P. Langhoff, Peoria, was in command during the review.

S. P. LANGHOFF. [Hoyt Studio.]

Thirteen guns were fired for Maj. Gen. Parker upon his arrival from Chicago this noon. The annual dinner and convention of the Illinois Reserve Officers' association was held at Newman hall. The officers were welcomed by Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the university, and Maj. Gen. Parker spoke. Four hundred university advanced corps students were guests of the association at the dinner.

During the dinner, the Cook County Reserve Officers' association presented an engraved saber to the newly named student colonel, J. E. Lattan, Oak Park.

Military Awards Made.

Elliott Durand, 1104 East 46th street, Chicago, the university gold medal and cavalry medal; D. A. McNeill Jr., 6539 North Mozart avenue, Chicago, the Hazleton medal; Cadet Captain H. C. Poyer, Desplaines, scabbard and blade infantry award; A. K. Carroll, Louisville, Ky.; D. E. Smith, Urbana, and W. N. Matthias, 104 Loomis avenue, Chicago, field artillery trophies.

F. D. Hollenbeck, 7101 North Ashland boulevard, Chicago, and R. C. Retherford, Danville, Pi Tau-Pi Sigma medals; L. H. Rimel, 2100 North Kedzie avenue, Chicago, J. H. Glascock, Pond Creek, Okla., O. P. Catlin, 2036 North Tripp avenue, Chicago, W. G. Smith, Tuscola, F. W. Mast, Quincy, R. C. Retherford, Danville, and E. T. Rust, Evanston, Phalanx freshman knit awards.

J. E. Lattan, Oak Park, was installed as student colonel for next semester after which the reinforced brigade was dismissed by Lattan, who succeeded S. P. Langhoff, Peoria.

Purdue Corps Rated High.

Lafayette, Ind., May 28.—[Special.]—For the eighth consecutive time in as many years, Purdue university's reserve officers training corps has been rated excellent by the United States war department, which recently sent officers here for the yearly inspection. Maj. John F. McMahon, commanding the corps, received the word today from Washington.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Fate

BRIAND BEATS FOES IN PEACE POLICY BATTLE

Laval Cabinet Wins Confidence Vote.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 28.—Smiling and cheerful and with renewed confidence following his severe defeat in the presidential election, Aristide Briand, the wily old foreign minister of France, won another solid victory tonight, despite obstacles set up by his enemies, when the chamber of deputies approved his foreign policy by a vote of 298 against 263.

M. Briand's foreign policy was once more the subject of a long interpellation, marked by a violent attack by his perennial enemy, Franklin Bouillon, the nationalist deputy of Seine at Oise. But when the verbal smoke had cleared away, and a second confidence vote was called for by the government, Premier Laval and his foreign minister won by a majority of 62 votes.

Claims Briand Shelved Pact.

As usual, the onslaught started with a violent attack by Franklin Bouillon, who bitterly criticized the foreign policy carried out at Geneva. He accused Briand of having shelved the proposed Austro-German customs pact for the moment by giving away French gold to Austria. He pointed out that Dr. Johann Schober, Austrian vice chancellor, had just been granted a loan of $21,000,000 by the world bank for international reparations settlements.

"France has not obtained anything in recent negotiations at Geneva," shouted the fire eating nationalist deputy, banging the top of his desk angrily.

Denies Knowledge of Loan.

Another of Franklin Bouillon's arguments against Briand was the latter's attitude at Geneva when he backed up Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, for president of the forthcoming disarmament conference, instead of Edouard Benes, Czecho-Slovakian foreign minister, who would have strongly backed the French viewpoint.

Calm and smiling, Briand got up and declared that he was proud of the results at the last session in Geneva.

"I never heard about that loan of $21,000,000 to Austria," he said. "I was not the minister of finance. I congratulate myself over the improvement in our relations with Italy and I hope that a complete agreement will be reached, and that the remaining difficulties on naval questions will be pushed aside."

RECOMMENDS RADIO BOARD DENY WIBO FULL TIME ON AIR

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—Chief Examiner Yost of the radio commission today recommended denial of the application of station WBIO, Chicago, for full time operation on its present frequency of 560 kilocycles.

The examiner said the station had failed to show that public interest would be served by taking time now assigned to station WPCC, Chicago, and assigned it to station WIBO.

JOHN W. WALSH, ATTORNEY HERE 40 YEARS, DIES

Attorney John W. Walsh, for twenty-five years connected with the law department of the Chicago Surface lines, died last night in the Henrotin hospital after an illness of several months. He was 64 years old, and lived at 129 North Leamington avenue.

Mr. Walsh was born in La Salle, Ill., and was graduated at the University of Illinois. He practiced law in Chicago for more than forty years. He was a specialist in damage suits, and with his brother, Attorney Martin Walsh, successfully maintained for the first time the right of double indemnity in accident damages. Mr. Walsh also assisted in the original prohibition test case before the United States Supreme court by drawing a brief for counsel against the amendment. He was active in church affairs, and one of the founders of the Catholic Benevolent league.

Funeral services will be held on Monday at St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic church. Burial will be in Mount Carmel. Mr. Walsh is survived by his brother and a sister, Mrs. Stanley Clancey, of Cleveland.

PILOT SHORT'S BODY SENT TO IOWA FOR BURIAL

The body of Shirley J. Short, who, with three companion flyers, was killed in the crash of the Daily News Bellanca airplane on Tuesday, was sent last night to Goldfield, Ia., his former home, for burial. Funeral services for Short were held yesterday at Maywood, while services for his co-pilot, Richard K. Peck, were held at Elgin.

Members of the Aviation post of the American Legion attended both services. Floral offerings were sent by the flying fraternity, "Quiet Birdmen," a national organization, and by noted flyers.

Chicago aviation leaders and staff members of the Daily News were among the honorary pallbearers for the Short funeral.

Funeral services for Robert J. Gormley, mechanic, will be held today at the family home in Maywood. Services also will be held today in Milwaukee for Lewis S. Rice, radio operator and navigator.

WARNS LAWYERS PUBLIC DEMANDS LEGAL REFORMS

Cites English History as Precedent.

Peoria, Ill., May 28.—[Special.]—The legal profession must take the lead in facilitating the administration of justice or laymen will, the Illinois State Bar association was warned today by its president, Clarence W. Heyl. He delivered the annual president's address when the association convened for its two day annual meeting.

"About a century ago in England there was a condition almost as unwholesome as we have today in this country," he said. "The administration of justice there was subject to the bitter criticism of the lay press—the Westminster Review took the lead in this attack upon the bench and bar. This was the beginning of a controversy which lasted for more than fifty years between the press and lay organizations on the one hand, and the bench and bar on the other.

Judicial System Reformed.

"As a result of this struggle, England through the enactment of the judicature act of 1837 laid the firm foundation for a judicial system which today represents the highest known standards for expedition, efficiency, and economy in the administration of justice in the British isles.

"It is to be noted that the movement in England was not initiated nor inspired by the legal profession. The fact is, the lay press finally drove the profession into line. One writer upon the subject recently said:

"'The reform movement in England was initiated and dominated by laymen. It is commonly said that the lawyers were forced to reform and like it.'

"The criticism of the lay press in America has been summed up and restated by three of the most eminent men in the profession, Elihu Root, representing the active practitioner; the late Chief Justice Taft, the bench, and Dean Roscoe Pound, the educational branch," he said.

Disgrace to Justice.

"'Every lawyer knows that the continued reversal of judgments, the sending of parties to litigation to and fro between the trial courts and the appellate courts, has become a disgrace to the administration of justice in the United States. Everybody knows that the vast network of highly technical rules of evidence and procedure which prevail in this country serve as a denial of justice in the name of form. It is a disgrace to our profession, it is a disgrace to our law, and a disgrace to our institutions.'

"'The administration of the criminal law is a disgrace to our civilization,' Justice Taft said."

A. H. Hawley, 65, Railway Brotherhood Official, Dead

Cleveland, O., May 28.—(AP)—Albert H. Hawley, 65, general secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen for 23 years, fell dead in a drug store near his home here tonight. Hawley succumbed to heart disease, from which he had been suffering for some time. Hawley was first elected general secretary and treasurer of the brotherhood in 1908 and never failed of reelection since.

Funeral Rites Tomorrow for James Keyser Boyd

Funeral services for James Keyser Boyd, who had been advertising representative in Chicago for a number of magazines since 1902, will be held at the family residence, 140 South Washington street, Hinsdale, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Mr. Boyd, who died at his home on Wednesday, was 75 years old. His widow and two daughters survive.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES FIRMER; VOLUME LAGS

Utilities Again Hold the Center of Interest.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

There was a better feeling in market circles yesterday with prices showing some slight improvement after an early period of uncertainty. On the Chicago exchange the volume of trading declined and stocks displayed a better tone although few issues were able to extend their gains beyond a point.

A scattering of investment buying and professional support helped several stocks to hold their own. Reports that investment trusts were doing selective purchasing among the industrial stocks was cheering a market which for weeks has been hearing stories of large scale selling by some of the big holding companies.

Bears Display Caution.

The questioning of the shorts by the New York exchange is receiving commendation by the majority of the tape audience and there is a feeling that the move may lead to a real curtailment of bear activity. Already a display of caution has been noted in the bear camp which is attributed to the exchange investigation.

The utilities were again the center of interest on the Chicago exchange. The trade in Commonwealth Edison fell off to around 1,200 shares and the stock added a point to its previous closing price after an early recession to 230½. Middle West closed slightly lower on a heavy trade after moving within a narrow range throughout the day. Insull was slightly better at the end of the session. Activity in Cities Service was heavy, but the stock was well supported and closed slightly higher.

In the automotive group the price changes were insignificant except in the case of Allied Products which pushed ahead 2 points to 19 on the purchase of a bare 200 shares.

Traders continued to discuss the report that a banking group had been formed to stabilize security markets. Reports of the organization of such a group have been bobbing up for several days although confirmation has been lacking.

Omit Dividend.

Cherry-Burrell corporation directors have decided to omit the quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the common stock, which was paid last quarter. Previous to that time the stock had been on an annual basis of $2.50. The firm reported earnings for the six months ended April 30 of $75,547, which compares with $127,380 for the corresponding period of the preceding year. The earnings were equivalent to less than one cent a share as compared to 71 cents in the same period last year. As of April 30 the company had current assets of $5,153,000 and current liabilities of $641,000. Current assets included cash of $565,000.

AVER PINCH OF UNEMPLOYMENT NOW RELAXING

Middle West Data Show Trends.

The Chicago Board of Trade, the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges and other leading northern commodity and security markets will be closed Saturday, Memorial day. The Chicago live stock market also will suspend operations. Banks will be closed. The Winnipeg and Liverpool wheat markets will be open.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Supporting the oft repeated belief of business leaders and bankers that trade and industry now are at the bottom of the depression cycle comes evidence that the pinch of unemployment is relaxing. In the middle west this is especially noticeable, according to the monthly review of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, although considerable irregularity among industries still continues.

"The ratios of applicants to positions available at free employment offices were lower in April in all four states reporting the data," the review says. "This represents continuous improvement during several months in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, while in Iowa the highest ratio of the depression period was reported for March.

Pay Rolls Rise Slightly.

"April data disclosed a reversal of the slight upward trend in manufacturing employment and pay rolls which obtained during February and March. In nonmanufacturing phases moderate gains were recorded—the first in number of men since last August and in their earnings since September. In the aggregates of all groups, employment remained practically the same, while pay rolls increased slightly."

BROKERS' LOANS DROP

Once again in the last week the amount of credit devoted to stock market speculation has shrunk to the smallest volume since data began to be compiled in 1926. The weekly report on brokers' loans, issued by the federal reserve board yesterday, disclosed a further decline of $57,000,000, bringing the current total down to $1,574,000,000, compared with $4,622,000,000 a year ago, or a decrease of $2,448,000,000.

The continued decline was expected in view of the downward course of stock prices. However, the detail of the statement contains an interesting commentary of the present situation of abnormal interest rates. In spite of the fact that the ruling rate in the call money market has been 1½ per cent, interior banks in the last week expanded their lendings to brokers by $22,000,000 and nonbank-

Dr. Klein Makes Vigorous Defense of U. S. Tariff

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—Vigorous defense of the American tariff and denial that the United States had "slammed the door" on importation of foreign goods, or that foreign markets had resorted to drastic embargoes on American products, were the features of an address tonight by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, at a dinner of the Export Managers' club of New York. The dinner was held in connection with the convention of the National Foreign Trade council.

DR. JULIUS KLEIN.

Replying to the critics of the Hawley-Smoot tariff, Dr. Klein asserted that even the most ardent partisans could not prove that the decline in our imports from Europe was directly attributable to the tariff. As to exports, the shrinkage during the depression, he said, had been almost exactly the same, to within a fraction of a per cent, as the decline in exports during the 1921 depression, or about 18 per cent.

Worthy of "Yellow Streak."

Despite "lamentations of partisan critics," Dr. Klein declared, foreign countries are not excluding American goods by drastic tariff barriers. In nineteen leading countries, he said in support of his statement, our shares in their import totals last year was almost exactly 20 per cent and our share of trade in the same markets in 1924-'27 was 20.7 per cent. He labeled those who advocated our retirement from the foreign field in the interests of our hard pressed rivals as worthy of the decoration of "the grand order of the yellow streak."

Earlier in the day the general session of the council heard Señor Don Manuel E. Malbran, ambassador from Argentina to the United States, deliver a polite warning that his country might be compelled soon to embark on a high tariff policy because of inequitable treatment received at the hands of the United States.

"This would not be in any case a reactionary policy," he said, "much less a policy of aggression, but simply one of defense on the one hand and foresight on the other, to avoid a repetition of successive crises by endeavoring to increase the number of products we export and prevent our imports from continuing to increase."

Suggest Planning Groups.

To coördinate our effort in overseas trade, Dr. Klein suggested the formation within each major export industry of some type of export planning body, composed of high executives, that meeting frequently, perhaps in close collaboration with government officials, could serve as boards of strategy and smooth out obstacles which are too formirable for individual companies to overcome.

Latin America, which borrowed heavily from the United States while its credit was good in the era of prosperity, was described today by Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer, financial adviser to eleven foreign governments, as being "between the devil and the deep, blue sea."

Most of the South American countries, Dr. Kemmerer told the national foreign trade council, find themselves unable to follow out the extensive programs of public works which they planned before the business recession because of a falling off in their exports and the consequent reduction in government revenues.

At Bottom of Unrest.

This is what is at the bottom of the economic and political unrest in most South American countries, Prof. Kemmerer asserted. But he added his conviction that although nine of the Latin American republics have had revolutions they were all "showers rather than storms."

The great difficulty with our southern neighbors, according to Prof. Kemmerer, is that they all put their eggs in one basket in the matter of exports. He showed, for instance, that coffee comprised 71 per cent of Brazil's exports, tin 77 per cent of Bolivia's foreign shipments, and sugar and tobacco 87 per cent of Cuba's exports.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET LOWER; RAILS IN SLUMP

New York, May 28.—(AP)—Bonds were generally lower today, and a large number of new low prices for 1931 were established. High grade issues as a rule resisted the wave of selling pressure. The slump was most apparent among railroad obligations, although many of the widest losses occurred in foreign issues.

Such varied rail bonds as Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s of 1960, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Chicago and North Western series A 4¾s, Rock Island refunding 4s of 1934, Denver and Rio Grande Consolidated 4s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s, Erie series A 4s, Illinois Central refunding 4s and 5s, New York, Chicago and St. Louis series C 4½s, both issues of New York Central 4½s of 2013 and 5s and Pennsylvania debenture 4½s hit new bottom levels.

Westinghouse to Share in Big Pennsy Ry. Order

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company will have a $9,000,000 share in the Pennsylvania railroad's order for $16,000,000 worth of electric motive power, it was announced today by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the industrial. The total order will be for 150 locomotives of unequaled speed and power. Mr. Robertson praised the railroad for placing the order at this time.

"This order would have attracted world-wide attention at any time," said Mr. Robertson, "for it is the largest single order for electrical propulsion ever placed. It is of immeasurable value at this time, for it not only provides immediate business of magnitude but furnishes evidence of the confidence a great railroad has in the future. This should be an effective factor in restoring public confidence and in stimulating other forms of enterprise."

BRITISH FOREIGN TRADE IS ONE-THIRD BELOW LAST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—Copper was selling today at a new alltime low of 8⅛c a pound, delivered in Connecticut. That was one quarter of a cent below the previous low records, which had stood as the record since the late 80's.

Although the immediate effect of the disclosure that sales of domestic copper had been made at that low figure was to stop export buying, the foreign price being above the domestic parity, sales of the metal in the last week were reported by the metal and mineral markets to have been the heaviest for any week this year.

Metal and mineral markets placed total sales of copper in the week ended yesterday at more than 44,000,000 lbs.

WITHDRAWALS BRING CLOSING OF WEST SIDE BANK

The Commerce Trust and Savings bank, 1425 South Racine avenue, was closed yesterday afternoon by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. The action was taken at the request of the board of directors, Mr. Nelson said, because of depletion of cash resources by the withdrawals of depositors. The bank had a capital of $200,000 and deposits of approximately $800,000. The bank had no connection or affiliation with the Chicago Bank of Commerce.

$80,000,000 Treasury Bills Heavily Oversubscribed

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—The $80,000,000 issue of 91 day treasury bills to be dated June 1 was reported today by Secretary Mellon to have been heavily oversubscribed. The total amount applied for was $322,313,000, with 99.777 the lowest bid accepted, equivalent to an interest rate of about seven-eighths of 1 per cent on an annual basis. The total amount of bids accepted was $80,013,000, with the average price on a bank discount basis about .85 per cent.

Trust Certificates Bill Is Assailed by D. H. Jackson

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—Losses to Illinois investors of hundreds of millions of dollars invested in "first mortgage bonds which should never have been sold" were called to the attention of the general assembly today in a circular letter from David H. Jackson, head of the securities department of the secretary of state's office, urging defeat of house bill No. 929, which would authorize "investment trust certificates" in the state.

DAVID H. JACKSON.
[Ray Huff Photo.]

Mr. Jackson said the bill gave the secretary no power to protect the interests of the public. "It does not even require that people interested in the trust shares become a party to its registration," the letter said.

Losses May Increase.

"I predict now that if house bill 929 is passed, inside of a few years worse scandals and worse losses to investors will grow out of the sale of these investment trusts than have grown out of the sale of first mortgage bonds.

"They are a new form of security in this country, having had no considerable sale until the last year and a half. I am very certain that in a short time these portfolios will be used to unload certain weak stocks through association with stronger stocks. If the Illinois legislature puts this burden on investors they are laying themselves open to very severe criticism in the future.

"The bill would permit any security listed on the Chicago curb or in the case of a corporation whose common stock is listed on the curb, would permit any of the preferred stock of such a corporation or any of its bonds to be included in one of these portfolios.

What Advocates Claim.

"If a small guarantee company should be organized and its common stock should be listed on the Chicago curb, then the latter stock would be a class A security, which under the act could be included in one of the fixed trusts.

"Advocates of this bill claim they are high class people, just as the large bond houses in Chicago who sold first mortgage bonds said they were high class, and just as the bankers who also sold first mortgage bonds claimed they also were high class. These self-given certificates of high character, however, did not prevent these institutions from unloading on thousands of investors first mortgage bonds which never should have been sold and which resulted in hundreds of millions of dollars of losses to investors in Illinois alone."

INTER. MATCH REPORTS GAIN IN '30 PROFIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—The largest earnings in its history were reported today for 1930 by the International Match corporation and its constituent companies. Consolidated net profits for the year, after depreciation, amortization, interest, writing down of securities, and taxes, were $20,923,626, compared with $20,623,530 in the preceding year.

Net earnings last year were equivalent to $8.90 a share on both the participating preference and common stocks outstanding, while the earnings in 1929 were equivalent to $8.77 a share on these stocks. After dividends on these two classes, at the rate of $4 a year, there was a balance of $11,523,626, increasing earned surplus to $71,324,249.

Discussing the progress of the company in this country last year, Ivar Krueger, president, said in his letter to stockholders:

"The new tariff, increasing the duty on matches, became effective June 17, 1930, but the company, anticipating this increase, had imported large quantities of safety matches before this date and it is therefore not yet possible to determine what effect the increased duty will have on the sales of imported matches."

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—Things looked a little brighter to the Wall street crowd today—just why nobody seemed to know. Dividend news was as unpalatable as ever, railroad earnings reports continued to present a sorry picture, and copper metal prices took a fresh dip to the lowest levels in the history of the industry.

And yet the stock market was able to stage a fairly worthwhile recovery. United States Steel continued under pressure, sinking at one time to a new minimum of 20⅜, but most of the other pivotals registered gains, some of them as much as 2 and 3 points. American Can was up 1⅜ points at the close, Atchison 2¾, Consolidated Gas 1¼, Eastman Kodak 2¾, Western Union 2¾, Westinghouse 2¼, Johns-Manville 3⅜, and Air Reduction 1¼ points.

Trading was quite heavy at times, but the pace usually slowed up as a rally would approach its peak, thus indicating that the buying was largely for the account of shorts. When the more timid of that category had run to cover there was little left of the market and prices would sag off anew.

Dairy Stocks Weak.

There were isolated displays of weakness, one of them developing in the dairy stocks late in the day, but the rank and file held up well following a momentary setback in the early dealings. Copper shares, with the new dip in metal rates to contend with, stood up fairly well, Anaconda finishing the day at yesterday's closing price.

Railroad shares were mixed, with the gains more impressive than the declines. Traders evidently were inclined to pay less attention to the April earnings statements revealing a drop of between 35 and 40 per cent in the net income of the roads and more to the prospect of a large addition to income from hoped for higher freight

Some of the smallest receipts in years for Thursday blocked additional price cuts in the cattle market yesterday, but hogs slipped down to new low levels on the largest receipts since April 2, barring Mondays. The general average price of hogs dropped 15c more at $5.75, lowest since December, 1908.

The extreme top of yesterday's market at $6.20 showed a 20c loss and compares with $7.10 the middle of last week. Prices at $1.15@1.25 lower than two weeks ago. Other low years were 1911 when the average decline to $5.82; 1912 when the average went down to $6.09 and 1915 when the low average was $6.13. The highest year on record for hogs was 1919 when the top went to $23.60 in July. Four years later, in 1923, the top went down to $6.75, a drop of $16.85 from the high point. Less than three years ago top hogs sold up to $13.50.

September Hogs Decline.

The market for heavy hogs slipped below the $7.00 line for the first time since the futures market was established. One carload reached $7.00 at the start, but closing sales were made at $6.90. Prices were off 10@20c, June light were bid $6.20, September light were offered at $7.65. Mediums for September were offered at $7.00 for the last half and were bid $7.00 for the first half of that month. On the "to arrive" market light weights for today were bid $6.00, but no offers to sell were made at this figure in view of the light run of 13,000 estimated for the cash trade for today.

Although there was no recovery in the cattle market yesterday, salesmen were well satisfied to hold quotations from slipping down to new low levels. The meager supply was the only advantage the selling side had, only 3,000 arriving at Chicago against 6,754 last Thursday. Choice 1,145 lb steers topped the market at $7.60, while most sales were within the narrow range of $6.25@6.75.

Lamb Market Erratic.

Conditions in the lamb market were more unsettled than usual yesterday, best grades of strong weight well finished stock selling to slightly better advantage, while medium and commoner grades ruled weak to lower. Best native springers sold at $10.25@10.65, while California springers went at $9.75, the culls selling at $7.50. Matured shorn lambs sold at $7.75@8.60, although inferior thin light "throw out" ranged down to $3.50@4.00. Aged sheep and yearlings were weak. The first Idaho range lambs were on the market yesterday and sold at $9.00, but were of only plain quality.

CROOKER WARNS OF PENNSY RY. CONTROL OF NEW ENGLAND LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—The Pennsylvania railroad will acquire the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine unless New England taxes action in the immediate future, George L. Crooker, chairman of the Rhode Island committee of the governors' railroad committee, warned in a statement today.

"The railroad problem of New England is rapidly moving to a solution," he said, "and while the business interests are discussing what disposition shall be made of our transportation system, and what form of consolidation is in our best interest, one of the trunk lines is quietly buying control of two of our leading systems handling 75 per cent of our tonnage, not including the Boston and Albany.

"Unless we take immediate action, it is inevitable that the question will be settled for us."

Asks Review of Order.

New York, May 28.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad company and the Pennsylvania company today filed petitions asking the federal Circuit Court of Appeals to review and set aside the order of the interstate commerce commission requiring them to divest themselves of Lehigh Valley and Wabash railroad stock.

THINGS APPEAR A BIT BRIGHTER IN WALL STREET

rates. Thus most of the buying in this department is evidently for the long pull. Besides Atchison, the stronger issues of the group were Union Pacific, Erie, and New Haven. New York Central lost more than a point and Rock Island more than a half.

In the railroad equipment division Baldwin broke more than 2 points to a new low on news of the omission of its semi-annual dividend due at this time.

Sells Off a Point.

A weak member of the oils group was Standard of New York, which gave up about a point to sell at the lowest price since listing on the exchange. Fractional declines were the rule for the group, although Houston Oil registered a gain of 2 points and Mexican Seaboard scored a modest upturn.

Skelly Oil preferred appeared on the tape for the first time in several days when a sale of 100 shares was recorded at $10 a share. The decline from the previous sale was 18 points, the new price being the lowest ever set for this issue. Incidentally the current yield is 60 per cent, a new high mark for the stock list. The regular quarterly dividend was paid on May 1 and another dividend meeting is not due until next month, but the market appears to have little doubt as to the outcome. Until today the record for yield was held by Abitibi Paper preferred with more than 40 per cent.

Utilities Pick Up.

Utilities perked up noticeably under the leadership of Consolidated Gas. American Telephone got a late start in the rally, but ran up about 2 points when it did get under way. Peoples Gas went through about the same performance it has been putting on daily for nearly a week, dipping below the 200 mark, then rallying—this time to 202. Westinghouse benefited from talk that the company will get an electrical equipment order from the Pennsylvania railroad.

In the automobile division, General Motors firmed up as a result of estimates that dividend requirements for the next quarter will be well covered. Auburn behaved itself—for a change.

EMPIRE STEEL CORP. IS PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP

Cleveland, O., May 28.—(AP)—The Empire Steel corporation of Mansfield, O., fifth largest producer of steel sheets in the United States, was in receivership tonight after several months of effort by stockholders and directors to save it had failed. Federal Judge Samuel West named Carl H. Hankel, president, to take over operations of the company under jurisdiction of the court pending liquidation and reorganization.

Decision to put the company into receivers' hands was made at a conference of banking and other creditors at a meeting here Tuesday. Petition for receivership was filed by the Interlake Iron corporation of Chicago, which claimed Empire owed it $460,906. The meeting followed granting of a $378,578 judgment to Youngstown and Niles banks on some of the corporation's past due cognovit notes. Other creditors took similar action, leaving the company without working funds.

The corporation was formed in December, 1927, by the seven Davey brothers, whose ancestors had been working in iron, they say, ever since the conquest of Britain by the Romans. Their parents emigrated from Britain while the boys were young, and the boys worked their way from laborers in the mills to executive positions.

SAYS $21,000,000 IS IMPROPERLY IN FIXED CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—Gathering his data from figures jotted down ten years ago, M. S. Anderson, federal trade commission accountant, testified today at the commission's utilities inquiry that he found over $21,000,000 improperly included as fixed capital on the books of the Mississippi River Power company.

He said, however, the $21,000,000 went into the records years before the company was acquired by the Union Electric Light and Power company, subsidiary of the North American company, one of the largest utilities holding groups.

Anderson said the increase in ledger value of the Mississippi Power company came when Hydraulic Engineering company, subsidiary of the Stone & Webster utilities group, made a contract with the original Mississippi Power company to build a dam at Keokuk, Ia.

He explained Mississippi Power was organized in 1910 under the laws of Maine and the contract was made the same year. The company now supplies Missouri and Illinois communities with power.

The Hydraulic Engineering company acquired the securities of Mississippi River Power and when the transaction was over the assets of the power company were recorded on Hydraulic Engineering's books at $33,718,160, Anderson testified.

He said more than $21,000,000 of this was classified as discounts, common stock bonus and commissions. Under the uniform classification of accounts approved by the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners, he added, no part of the discount on capital stock and no part of the value of the common stock given as bonus may be included as part of the cost of acquiring property.

The Union Electric Light and Power company acquired the Mississippi River Power company in 1925.

Gets Preliminary Permit for Power Development

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—A preliminary permit for a $46,000,000 power development on the lower Tennessee river was issued today by the power commission to a company formed by W. G. Waldo, Washington and Chattanooga engineer. The power project would be an integral part of the navigation scheme prepared by the army engineers to move freight from as far up the Tennessee as Knoxville, 500 miles from the mouth at Paducah, Ky.

Waldo explained his concern, the Southern Industries and Utilities, Inc., was not committed to construction. His company, power commission records show, had a financial agreement with the Continental Illinois company, a subsidiary of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago, by which the Chicago concern held an option on financing the project if found feasible.

Next Alton Hearing Set for June 29 in Washington

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today set for oral argument June 29 the application of the Alton Railroad company and the Baltimore and Ohio for permission to acquire the properties of the Chicago and Alton Railroad company. The Chicago and Alton, after being in receivership since 1922, was sold to the Baltimore and Ohio last December at a receivership sale. The Baltimore and Ohio formed the Alton Railroad company to operate the line and asked for permission for that company to take over the road.

Suggests Brazil Suspends Foreign Debt Payments

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 28. —A national moratorium, including the suspension of interest and sinking fund payments on all foreign obligations of the national and state governments, is one of the principal recommendations of the report made to President Getulio Vargas and the Rothschilds, London, by Sir Otto Niemeyer, vice governor of the Bank of England, who has been here for several months studying the financial reconstruction of Brazil.

Your correspondent is reliably informed that the reconstruction program includes establishment of a central bank of issue and rediscount under British and American supervision and the balancing of the budget, also under foreign technical advice, the underlying purpose of the entire program being to prepare the way for a loan of about $200,000,000 with which to fund present obligations and stabilize the milreis at around 8.3 cents.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 28.—(AP)—Cotton goods continued quiet today, with prices weak due to raw material conditions. Rayon was sold by to knitters and weavers to the extent of current production. Buying markets were firmer on reports of further curtailment of production in Calcutta mills. Wool goods were selling moderately.

CORN ADVANCES, WHEAT PRICES CLOSE AT PEAK

Oats Rally After New Low Is Touched.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculation interest in the grains is so light that the markets quickly pass from an overbought to an oversold condition. An attempt on the part of commission houses yesterday to buy July corn disclosed a lack of pressure and the price advanced 2¼c from the early low to 57⅝c before it was checked.

The tightness in the July had considerable influence on the other corn futures and also on wheat, and while there was selling on the upturn by holders of offers and on resting orders the close was within a fraction of the top net gains of ⅝@1⅛c with July leading. The latter was 57⅛@57½c at the last or 3¾c over September and the widest difference on the crop, while May closed at 56⅝c and the December, 47¾@47½c.

There was nothing in the routine news to account for the sharp upturn in corn, but the July delivery has shown a tendency to respond quickly to any good buying for several days. The technical position of the July future is regarded as unique. Deliveries under the rules must be made in public elevators except during the last three business days of that month when country run grain can be tendered, and with prospects that storage room here will be congested by the immense holding of wheat by the government, the position of the short seller is regarded as rather precarious.

Wheat Maintains Bulge.

Wheat futures were slightly lower at the start but there was no pressure of consequence on the market and when corn turned strong wheat rallied 1¼@1½c from the inside figures and closed at the top with net gains of ⅛@1c on the active futures, July being 59⅝@60c; September, 59½@59⅝c, and December, 62⅝@62¾c. Government agencies were credited with selling May freely with the close ½c lower on the old style at 82⅛@82¾c, while the new style was 85c.

Wednesday's sellers of wheat futures were credited with taking the buying side early, but turned sellers on the bulge, and there was also some pressure from holders of offers toward the last. Further highly beneficial rains were received in Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota, but the Canadian northwest remains dry and the forecast was for fair and continued warm. Winnipeg closed ⅝@⅞c higher, with July at 60c, the market showing a tendency to lag as compared with Chicago owing to the lack of export business. However, around 500,000 bu Manitobas were said to have been sold in all positions, including a cargo to Greece recently which had not been previously reported.

Large World's Wheat Surplus.

So large is the estimated world's wheat surplus that the trade believes that if Canada harvests only half of a normal spring wheat crop the leading exporting countries will still have too much grain as compared with the prospective demand from importers. Liverpool closed ¼@¾d lower in sympathy with the decline in North America on Wednesday and a slow cash demand. July in the English market finished at 62¾c, 2½c over the same delivery at Chicago at the time it closed. A little new No. 1 hard winter was reported sold at the gulf for July shipment to Rotterdam to Chicago September price, and the United Kingdom and the continent bought old crop wheat. An official statement from the farm board claimed 25,000,000 bu out of the 35,000,000 bu recently announced as for sale for export had been disposed of.

COTTON UP AFTER BREAK

Heavy selling of cotton on lower Liverpool cables carried prices down to new low early yesterday, but afterward short covering, regaining about all the loss. A big selling order stopped the advance after January in New York reached 9.25c. This pressure, combined with commission house offerings, made another break but they had another rally and closed with Chicago futures unchanged to 4 points lower, New Orleans 3 points higher to 2 points lower and New York 2 points lower to 1 point higher. Liverpool closed 10@12 points lower with spot sales including 3,000 bales American. Spots were unchanged. New York 8.65c, New Orleans 8.34c, Galveston 8.65c, Houston 8.40c. Prices follow:

LARD RALLIES

Lard futures set another new low mark early yesterday on selling by house credited with eastern and foreign connections, and by packers who were hedging. A rally came later on covering by shorts and in sympathy with grains, closing 2¼@7½c lower. Liverpool lard was 3d to 6d lower. Export clearances, 1,315,000 lbs. Cash trade was fair. Bellies were neglected. There was said to be fair sales of cash bellies late on Wednesday. Hog prices were 10@15c lower with receipts at western markets smaller than a week and a year ago. KANSAS WHEAT ESTIMATE

F. F. Thompson of J. E. Bennett & Co., who has spent over a week in Kansas City, where he had the opportunity of observing wheat conditions and talking with grain men and others interested in wheat raising, says he feels the state will produce a crop around last year's final, which was 158,000,000 bu. Unless we experience some extremely high temperatures during next 2 or 3 weeks he thinks present condition will be maintained.

OVER HALF U. S. APRIL EXPORTS FINISHED GOODS

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—More than half the United States exports during April consisted of finished manufactures, while less than one-fourth of the imports came under the same classification. The commerce department, in its monthly analysis of exports and imports, today placed domestic exports in April at $209,876,000 and imports at $185,747,000. April, 1930, exports were $326,536,000 and imports $307,824,000.

Finished manufactures exported during April totaled $111,088,000, compared with $189,268,000 in April, 1930; crude materials $39,977,000, against $52,436,000; crude foodstuffs $8,626,000, against $9,356,000; manufactured foodstuffs $19,593,000, against $27,709,000, and semi-manufactures $30,592,000, against $47,766,000.

Finished manufactures imported during April totaled $45,719,000, as compared with $70,800,000 in April, 1930; crude materials $54,729,000, against $105,560,000; crude foodstuffs $28,912,000, against $38,597,000; manufactured foodstuffs $22,923,000, against $31,078,000, and semi-manufactures $33,394,000, against $61,789,000.

CANADIAN WHEAT

"We believe the wheat crop is now at the stage when the weather of the next week or 10 days will have a big bearing on its final outcome," says a Winnipeg authority in a message to Farrell Brothers. "To overcome high moisture deficiency and permit crop to enter June under anything like normal conditions, exceptionally heavy rains must be received immediately in those districts now deficient in moisture. This will overcome present adverse conditions, but if moisture situation is not immediately remedied deterioration is certain to occur."

LAKE RATES ON GRAIN LOW

Lake grain rates from Chicago to Buffalo and other points are the lowest in recent years. A boat loaded at South Chicago yesterday with 100,000 bu wheat and 120,000 bu corn at 1⅛c per bu to Buffalo. A government subsidiary was the shipper. Rates are so low that the vessel men say boats are laying up rather than operate at a loss.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Windup of trading in May wheat will be witnessed at the close today. It is said there will be no necessity for shorts in May to become excited and bid the market up, as the government is to provide all the wheat that is necessary for shorts to even up. Open interest in old style May at the close on Wednesday was 11,046,000 bu and in new style 3,670,000 bu, a total of nearly 15,000,000 bu. These quantities were considerably reduced in Thursday's trading. Trade expectations are that with May wheat out of the way the market will act more natural and respond to the general run of news.

An increase in trading is looked for within a few weeks. New wheat is likely to be moved in fair volume and hedging sales in liberal volume are expected. It was suggested by a large operator that possibly the trade might be disappointed in regard to hedging business, as millers who are looked upon as being the largest buyers of the new wheat will get it at a price that will not necessitate hedging other than by sales of flour. Taking it in all, the outlook for the trade is considered much brighter.

Corn specialists are inclined to the belief that there is sufficient holding of July by strong interests to materially affect the market position should shorts try to cover. The open interest at the close on Wednesday was 19,635,000 bu. Leading holders are regarded as strong enough to increase their lines, which are estimated at 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 bu. Those who are bearish expect a larger movement from the country in the next few weeks, as corn planting will be over and there usually is a run of corn that lasts a few weeks.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 28.—SUGAR—Raw was firmer today and, although trading was not very active, a much better inquiry was reported from refiners while offerings were comparatively light.

Influenced by the much firmer tone of raws and expectations of a renewed buying movement in refined, futures were sharply higher, closing with net gains of 7 to 8 points. Approximate sales, 48,250 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
Sept.	1.17	1.24	1.16	1.24	1.16
Dec.	1.26	1.33	1.26	1.32	1.25
Jan.	1.28	1.34	1.28	1.34	1.27
March	1.33	1.40	1.33	1.40	1.33
May	1.39	1.47	1.39	1.47 up .04

The only change in refined was the extension of the four payment plan to all territory outside of the metropolitan district, while in the latter district buyers are allowed a discount on lots of not less than 400 bags to one address within 48 hours. List prices remained unchanged at 4.35c for fine granulated.

100 GALS. OF GAS FREE WITH ANY CAR PURCHASED

A book entitling you to 100 gallons of gasoline at any Standard Oil station will be given you if you buy a used car from us before 10 p. m. May 30, 1931. In addition – there are reductions of $100 to $300 per car. 5 days' free driving trial goes with each sale.

STUDEBAKER ROADSTER. Spec. 6 that's very sporty. Rumble seat. Beautiful original tan finish. Many extras. $175.

AUBURN SEDAN. 1931 Free Wheeling model that was only driven a few hundred miles. This is a de luxe job with wire wheels, Silvertown white wall tires, and many extras. It's in brand new condition throughout. Offered at big saving.

NASH SEDAN. Adv. 6, seven pass. The blue finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery appears unworn. Excellent tires. Equipped with driving light, heater, snubbers, etc. $145.

PIERCE-ARROW SEDAN-LIMOUSINE. Model 33 seven pass. that was chauffeur driven and now it's in dandy condition throughout. Very fully equipped. $95.

LINCOLN SEDAN. Has Brunn custom body. This is a 7 pass. The tires have plus mileage and there are wealth of extras. Here is an auto that will give new car satisfaction today. Priced at only $465.

GARDNER 8 ROADSTER. Has low slung base, snappy appearance, and spirited performance. Rumble seat. Many extras. $195.

NUFMOBILE SEDAN. It was in storage 15 months, but it's a wonderful condition throughout. The interior and exterior will please you in every detail. Runs fine. $215.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. This Chrysler is a real beauty and the motor is A1. Has snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Reduced from $500 to $295.

HUDSON 8 SEDAN. 1930 that was used less than 90 days. The tires look as though they had never gone a mile. The finish, upholstery and motor are in the original new condition. Chance to make a big saving. $795.

STUDEBAKER COUPE. 1930 with rumble seat. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery is luxurious. Has shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $645.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SEDAN. 1929 eight with wire wheels, side mounts, trunk rack and snubbers. The finish is glossy as a new dollar and the interior is very distinguished. Motor could not be improved. Will last remain long at our price of $745.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1929 President 8. This is a de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts and $1500 worth of extras. A careful examination of every feature of this car and a demonstration will convince you that it looks and runs like new today. $795.
